Rebels Explode Load Of Bombs On Paris Street

PARIS (AP) — A parked truck believed loaded with bombs by the terrorist secret army exploded on a busy suburban street Saturday, blowing two policemen and a priest to bits and injuring 50 persons.

Heard across most of nervous Paris, the blast touched off an angry street demonstration. About 5,000 persons marched, shouting "to the guillotine with the OAS secret army murderers."

In a television-radio address, Interior Minister Roger Frey expressed government indignation at the bombing, blamed "outlaws, fascists and wartime collaborators" and called for harsh punishment of the perpetrators.

CAUSES CONCERN

The explosion caused grave concern among security officers, who are making formidable preparations to prevent a rightist wave of terror and violence when and if a cease-fire is announced with the Algerian nationalist rebels.

In the border city of Evian, French and Algerian rebel negotiators met in full dress session to hear reports of committees drafting final terms of a cease-fire to end the 7-year-old nationalist rebellion.

In Algeria, where hundreds have died since the first of the year in secret army terror and Algerian nationalist counter terror, the pace of violence slackened. Three deaths were reported in Algeria, far below the average daily toll of 1962.

Sworn to keep Algeria French, the secret army is expected to react violently when news is announced of a French-Algerian nationalist agreement that will clear the way to independence.

It is for this reason that heavy and light tanks are being posted in the suburbs of Paris, and a main security control point has been set up atop the famed Arc de Triomphe itself.

A portent of what may come was the blast of the booby-trapped truck in the suburb of Issy Les

PAR Accepts State Board Study Action

Calls For Ground Rules Desired On Proposed Survey

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Vertrees Young, president of the Public Affairs Research Council PAR said Saturday PAR accepts the action of the State Board of Education in approving in principle a study of excellence in the state's high schools.

In a prepared statement here, Young of Bogalusa, called on the board to lay down the ground rules for the study, but pointed out that PAR has always operated on the principle that it could not give up the final selection of its research staff to others.

LIMIT APPROVAL

In some quarters, there has been insistence that the survey be conducted by educators.

The education board decided Friday a study of excellence would be beneficial and would consider sanctioning such a study if it . . . the board could lay down ground rules.

Young's statement said:

"We therefore will ask the board to specify the ground rules, which it says it feels it should lay down, so that efforts may be made to proceed with the study at the earliest possible date.

"In its presentation to the board Feb. 28 PAR said it "is open to suggestions for improving its planned studies and will welcome any opportunity to discuss such ideas with a committee of this board or with other leaders in education.'

PAR further stated its belief that "surely there can be a common ground of co-operation among people sincerely motivated toward the same goals."

PAR also stated to the board that in order to be responsible for the accuracy and completeness of its findings and for the integrity of its recommendations, PAR has

Rusk Arrives In Geneva To Begin Talks

Efforts Pledged To Attain Pact On Disarmament

GENEVA (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk arrived early Sunday for complex East-West diplomatic negotiations and said he was under instructions from President Kennedy to "make every effort toward disarmament."

The secretary stepped from his giant military transport plane a few minutes after midnight.

It was raining, just as it had been a few hours earlier when Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko arrived at Geneva's Cointrin Airport.

ISSUE STATEMENTS

In their arrival statements, Rusk and Gromyko both stressed the need for disarmament.

Rusk said the problem "touches on the welfare and security of every human being on the face of the earth."

Earlier, Gromyko said the 17-nation disarmament conference, opening here Wednesday, should make a serious effort to remove the tremendous burden placed on mankind by the world's "avalanche of armaments."

Rusk said he hoped the meetings scheduled the next three days with Gromyko and Britain's Foreign Secretary Lord Home will help create the appropriate political atmosphere in which the general disarmament negotiations can move forward.

After a few hours' sleep, the U.S. secretary begins a delicate round of private diplomatic consultations. He will meet West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder at nearby Lausanne shortly before noon, and the two men will lunch together.

Then Rusk will confer with Lord Home shortly after the British foreign secretary's noontime arrival. They will seek to sew up the broad lines the West will take on a variety of problems, including general disarmament, nuclear

Congo Calls Off Bomber Buying Trip

Official On Way To Seek Planes In U.S. Recalled

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—The Congolese central government is recalling a top official who recently left for the United States to shop for B26 bombers, informed sources reported Saturday.

The informants said that Simon Bohulu, chief of cabinet in the Defense Ministry, had departed earlier last week for the United States by way of Europe to buy the bombers. Saturday, however, the government of Prime Minister Cryille Adoula had second thoughts and decided to recall Bohulu.

NOT CONSULTED

The reports of Bohulu's mission caused considerable diplomatic eyebrow-lifting here, since neither the U.S. Embassy nor the U.N. mission here had been consulted by the Congolese.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said that any such purchase of bombers would be subject to licensing by the U.S. Commerce Department. He said it thus appeared odd that the embassy had not been consulted or informed of the trip.

The United Nations has been helping the Congolese organize both their economy and their defense structure. U.N. officials thus would have expected to be consulted before such a mission.

The exact reason prompting Adoula to recall Bohulu was not revealed, but it was assumed that diplomatic pressure had been brought to bear.

In addition to the report about the B26s, there were reliable reports that the Bohulu mission was looking into the possibility of buying British-made Vampire jets and British Bristol freighters.

Official government spokesmen could not be reached for comment on the reports. Veteran observers here assumed, however, that any such purchases would imply the Adoula government is interested in building up its own air strength independently of the United Nations.

Informants said Adoula apparently wants to be in position to annex secessionist Katanga Province by force if peaceful negotiations fail.

Six Bail Out Of Huge Air Force Craft

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — An Air Force C119 Flying Boxcar crashed into a home in nearby Kenilworth Saturday night, killing at least four persons inside the house.

Six men were aboard the aircraft, but the Coast Guard said three crewmen had bailed out and were rescued. Flashlights seen in a wooded area indicated other crew members also parachuted out and were rescued.

BASED IN OHIO

The big plane was based at Clinton County Air Force Base, Wilmington, Ohio.

Hospital sources identified the dead as Loubet Levron, 35, his wife, Margie, and two sons, Kirby, 10, and Chris, 18 months. A third child, Janice, 7, was reported in serious condition in St. Bernard General Hospital.

The plane was on a training flight and had taken off from Alvin Callender Field here about 8 p. m. EST, bound for McDill Air Force Base, Tampa, Fla. It developed engine trouble about 25 miles east of New Orleans and tried to return to Callender Field, the Coast Guard said.

According to a Coast Guard spokesman, the pilot radioed the plane had lost one engine and was losing altitude.

A Coast Guard amphibian plane and two Coast Guard helicopters flew over the crash area. Several hours after the crash, the Coast Guard aircraft reported fog was hampering search operations.

Two crewmen on the C119 said they believed all six occupants of the plane bailed out.

Hearings Set On Deficits Of Schools

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A Louisiana legislative committee Monday opens three days of hearings on the deficit operations of parish and city school boards.

Twelve school boards will appear before Rep. Jerry Ashley's legislative committee watching school board finances. Ashley said Saturday the first of the school boards will be heard beginning at 11 a.m., one hour after the committee meets.

19 TO BE HEARD

Nineteen local school boards in all will be heard by the Ashley Committee, the last seven of them next week.

Earlier, Ashley said state audits indicated the state overpaid the 19 school boards nearly $500,000 to help with their financial deficits.

The state legislature has agreed to meet deficits run up by local school boards in order to complete full nine-month terms last year. But the legislature insisted those parishes which received funds had to submit to a close audit.

Ashley indicated the hearings may be rather routine because the school board audits have been "very complete."

An audit by the office of J. B. Lancaster, supervisor of public funds, has called for Tangipahoa Parish to return $60,000 to the state treasury as overpaid. Ashley gave this schedule for hearing school boards this week:

Monday — Ouachita, LaSalle, Tangipahoa and Iberville parishes.

Tuesday — East Feliciana, Red River, Catahoula and Concordia parishes.

Wednesday — Pointe Coupee, Washington and Evangeline parishes and the city of Bogalusa.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

LMA Ends 25th Annual Meeting

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Louisiana Municipal Association ended its 25th annual convention here Saturday by electing Mayor Raymond Laborde of Marksville as president.

Laborde succeeded Mayor Charles Cassidy of Bogalousa, Mayor W. H. Scott of New Roads was elected first vice president.

In a speech, Cassidy said one of the LMA's main tasks during the coming year would be to work with the legislature to help residents of the state's cities.

He said the biggest problems cities face is one of income. "Our income is not able to keep up with increased growth and increased demand for services," he said.

OUTLINES PLANS

Another closing day speaker, Claude Kirkpatrick, director of the state department of public works, outlined plans for a federal-state $500,000 survey aimed at pinpointing the state's future development needs.

He said the survey "is designed to provide the state with a joint plan of action for the next decade or so."

The projects will include highways, public works, recreation, conservation and other needs.

"It is a dramatic new approach to state problems, and Louisiana will be one of the first states to attempt it," Kirkpatrick said.

The objective is coordination of all state services, he said, adding,

Professor Says Sea Monster May Be Rayfish

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A sea monster found in a lonely cove in Tasmania may be a giant rayfish — the biggest in the world.

This theory was put forward Saturday by zoology Prof. A. M. Clark of Hobart University. Clark said the blubbery monster might also be a outsize sunfish.

The creature, 5 feet thick and almost 20 feet in diameter, resembles a turtle in shape but has no shell or legs. Its carcass was sighted on the sandy west coast beach two years ago, but its importance was realized only last week after examination by scientists.

Reporter Jack Percival of the Sydney Sun-Herald, after a flight over the carcass, said: "It projects from its sandy tomb like a giant garden snail — at close quarters, it resembles a prehistoric creature that could have emerged straight from the pages of a picture book."

Percival said at least three land parties were making their way to the monster over some of the most rugged

GI Family Travel Ban Lift Eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The administration Saturday was reported near a decision to ease the complete ban in effect since last Oct. 9 on government-paid overseas travel by military dependents.

The Army, with the largest number of families involved, was said to have presented a plan which, in many cases, would delay the travel of dependents for six to eight months after a soldier was assigned overseas.

But the Army-Navy-Air Force Journal said "some families will be reunited this spring."

Since the ban, the Army has sent more than 40,000 additional troops to Europe for full-three year tours of duty.

Gen. Lauris Norstad, commander in chief for Europe, and Gen. Bruce C. Clarke, Army commander for Europe, were understood to have argued in separate presentations that a resumption of family travel would be a decisive morale builder.

The two military leaders also have pledged themselves to take measures to slow the serious drain on gold and dollars occasioned by the presence of military families in Europe, the Journal said.

The ban was ordered at the height of the Berlin crisis when removal of families already in Europe was being urged, but it also had the major purpose of reducing the gold drain.

Defense sources said an announcement of new travel regulations may come next week.

Academy Expansion Is Planned

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Officials of the U.S. Naval Academy announced plans Saturday for a $9.6 million expansion that would cut three blocks of historic buildings from this pre-Revolutionary War town.

One of the buildings facing demolition would be the Peggy Stewart House. In 1774 Anthony Stewart, his wife, and his daughter Peggy watched rebellious colonialists burn his brig "Peggy Stewart" in protest against the load of taxed English tea it contained.

The planned academy expansion was made public by a special advisory commission headed by Adm. Ben Moreell, retired. The plan has been submitted to the chief of naval personnel for consideration.

Robert J. Kerr, executive director of Historic Annapolis, Inc., said "my feeling is that all of these monuments of historic importance are necessary for the preservation of the character of Annapolsi."

A Naval Academy spokesman said nothing had been decided yet. "The government is certainly not going to just plow through here with a bulldozer," he said.

"For a student body of 4,000, we need more classrooms. We don't want to build on the parade ground, and we can't go out into the Severen River."

First Lady Feted By Nobility

ROME (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy, wearing a gleaming white gown with a black top, was feted by Italian nobility in a Rennaissance palace Saturday night to climax her first day in Rome.

It was almost 1 a.m. when America's First Lady, making a brief stop here on her way to India and Pakistan, left the four-story palace of her host, Count Dino Pecci Blunt. The count attended Harvard with President Kennedy.

Mrs. Kennedy was accompanied to the dinner party by her sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, and U.S. Ambassador and Mrs. G. Frederick Reinhardt.

The 14 dinner guests of the count, who represents a U.S. brokerage house in Rome, were mostly from noble families.

After the party, Mrs .Kennedy drove back to Villa Taverna, the U.S. ambassador's residence. She was to have an audience with Pope John XXIII later Sunday and continue her trip to New Delhi Sunday evening.

President Giovanni Gronchi and Romans who braved the rain gave Mrs. Kennedy a warm welcome on her arrival Saturday.

Worst Storm Of Winter Hits In Utah Area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Drifting snow piled up on highways in a broad area in the West Saturday.

Utah's worst snowstorm of the winter roared cross the northern section of that state on 30 mile per hour winds.

Up to 12 inches of snow accumulated in Salt Lake City and more fell at higher altitudes, laying a dangerous coverlet on roads.

A blizzard hit St. George in the southern part of Utah.

Six inches of snow fell in northwestern Wyoming.

Snowfall of 2 to 6 inches hindered traffic in Nebraska. Visibility dwindled to a quarter of a mile in the worst storm areas.

Heavy snow warnings were posted for Saturday night for northwestern and west-central Kansas and southwestern Nebraska as the storm rolled eastward. Stockmen in those sections also were alerted.

Clash Flares In Dominican

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI)— Dominican police using clubs, tear gas and noise bombs clashed with rebellious anti-government youths Saturday in a downtown Santo Domingo restaurant.

Police said one youth was injured by a home-made bomb tossed from the roof of the restaurant by other demonstrators. At least 17 youths were arrested.

The clash took place in the "Sublime" restaurant on Conde Street which is a favorite hangout of anti-government youths. Police cleared out the youths after a clash that raged inside and on the roof of the restaurant.

The police acted in a continuing crackdown on agitators in an effort to prevent a repetition of the looting and street disorders by leftist led groups Thursday during which rioters attacked the American Embassy's passport offices.

'ELECTRONIC INVADERS'

Cancer Scientists Offer New Theory

PHOEIX, Ariz. (UPI) —The newest scientific idea on the causes of cancer holds that it is a matter of the electronics and of the shape and thickness of a foreign substance invading the chemistry of a living creature, whether that of a man or a mouse.

This is on the sub-microsopic level of molecules and the chemical behavior of individual body cells, of course. If the invading substance has a surplus of charged electronics to "donate" to the molecules native to the body chemistry, and if the shape and thicknesses are the same, then the invader can become part and parcel of the chemistry.

And if the invader is a cancer-causer it can modify the whole chemistry of the cell, change its course and set it to reproducing not normal replicas of itself but cancerous cells. This remarkable hypothesis, backed with experimental evidence, was described Saturday at the annual Science Writers Seminar of the American Cancer Society.

The describers were the veteran and world-famous cancer scientists, Dr. Charles B. Huggins of the University of Chicago and his brilliant young associate Professor Dr. Nien-chu Yang. They worked with the molecules of some of the hormones which regulate body chemistry and with the molecules of the aromatic hydrocarbons which are both foreign to body chemistry and are known cancer-causers.

The point of this is that some cancers of human beings and of mice are demonstrably "hormone dependent" yet no one can believe the hormones cause cancer because they are part of the indispensable mechanisms of normal chemistry.

SCHOOL GRANTS IN AID

Voelker Says New Legislation Needed

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' state sovereignty chairman said Saturday new legislation will be necessary to help protect Louisiana's grants in aid tuitions from federal assault.

The newest state strategy, said Chairman Frank Voelker Jr. of the State Sovereignty Commission, would involve transferring the grants in aid system from the state department of education to a new and separate agency.

Voelker, strategist of the Davis administration, works closely with Rep. John Garrett of Claiborne Parish, chairman, and Sen. E. W. Gravolet Jr., Pointe a la Hache, vice chairman, of the Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation. Months ago, Gravolet first mentioned the possibility of a separate commission to supervise grants in aid.

"If the present grants in aid law is carried to the federal court," Voelker emphasized, "it probably would be knocked out because it is really the state operating the schools."

The private school cooperatives, he said, cannot successfully function "on any substantial scale" without grants in aid.

Observers interpreted Voelker's statement to mean that while some private elementary and secondary schools could be maintained for those with private means, parents of most school pupils would have to have some kind of financial help.

Under present law more than $3 million, growing at the rate of $200,000 monthly, has been set aside for the state's financing of grants in aid. Local public school boards process the grants in aid applications, forwarding them to Moliveaux, described by police as a typical secret army operation.

The small truck was parked in front of a hall where a meeting of the Movement For Peace—an anti-secret army group—was to begin within an hour of the explosion.

The explosion shattered the front of the meeting hall and a post office across the street. Windows for several blocks were broken.

Parked cars on the street were slammed one into the other as if kicked by a giant. Several were total wrecks. Broken glass and debris littered the entire block.

The two policemen killed had been standing in front of the hall, stationed to keep order during the meeting. The priest had just arrived at the post office to pick up mail for a nearby church.

The exploding van was wadded into two blackened pieces. The front landed near the post office and the second section crashed into a parked sedan 100 yards away. Ambulances hauled away the screaming wounded.

The street demonstration was quickly organized by Communist-leaning leaders of the Movement For Peace organization. The crowd met in front of the city hall and cheered as several speakers assailed the secret army and the police for not stopping the terrorist wave.

After the speeches, the crowd—many carrying hastily made placards—marched through the streets, then quieted into a silent, moving mass in a parade past a hospital where many of the blast victims had been taken.

Madison of near Dayton, Ohio, the engineer, were reluctant to talk about the crash until it could be investigated.

It came down across the highway, ripped down power lines and plunged much of St. Bernard Parish (county) into darkness. Then it slammed into the frame house of Lubrett Levron, a carpenter.

The plane dragged an auto 200 feet and wedged it between the wreckage of Levron's house and another house. Part of the plane penetrated another house occupied by Levron's sister, Miss Viola Levron.

Part of the plane rested in Bayou Terre au Boeuf which parallels the St. Bernard Highway leading out of New Orleans.

testing, Berlin and Germany, and European security.

In the evening, Rusk will be host at a dinner for Gromyko and Lord Home. It is then that the first serious attempts may be made to see if there is a chance to thaw the cold war.

Gromyko was accompanied by a large group of advisors and experts including Deputy Ministers of Foreign Affairs Valerian A. Zorin and Vladimir Semenov.

Gromyko said at the airport that it was difficult to overestimate the importance of solving the arms problem and eliminating the threat of a nuclear and missile war.

The Russian made no reference to the Berlin problem.

Before leaving Washington, Rusk also stressed the need to halt the ever-growing stockpiles of weapons.

The American secretary promised that the U.S. government would do everything possible to stem the arms race and reduce world tensions. He said "we will make some real headway" if the other participating nations approach the Geneva talks in the right spirit.

Hopeful as the Gromyko and Rusk statements appeared when placed side by side, they in no way obscured the naked reality of the sharp conflict dividing Washington and Moscow.

Voelker Says New Legislation Needed

the State Board of Education for approval and authorization of state funds.

The amount per applicant roughly is figured according to the average cost per student in the public schools of the parish involved.

The Ninth Ward School Cooperative in New Orleans is functioning under the law, and the education board Friday voted another $8,095 to cover 41 new applications. The state has spent $111,428 so far on this school, for a total 484 pupils.

Voelker, in an Associated Press interview, said "I think a well established system of private schools would act as the greatest single deterrent to integration of our public schools."

Since the U.S. Supreme Court in the St. Helena Parish case, Voelker said, has knocked out Louisiana's local option law, giving a choice between public and private schools, the court has ruled, in effect, that the people of a community cannot voluntarily refuse to operate public schools.

"The decision," he said, "strikes down the last of the plans thus far confected by the Louisiana legislature for the preservation of the right of its people to run their own schools without federal interference."

There is a weakness in the state's present grants in aid law, Voelker said.

It is under the direct supervision and administration of the state department of education, he said, and "the federal courts have, in effect, even to a limited extent, assumed control over and operation of our state public school system.

"It might well be contended, and validly argued, that grants in aid also fall under federal regulations and control," Voelker said.

"It would thus appear," he continued, "that any solution to our problems will necessarily involve a new approach to the administration of tuition grants, and that such administration must be removed—as far as possible and practicable—from state control, and must be made directly to the student rater than to the school."

Voelker stressed again that the new approach must involve making the tuition payments directly to the pupil "without regard to the school which he would attend."

The proposed separate commission to supervise grants in aid would have the function of determining eligibility of the individual applicant.

Voelker said:

"This alone may not be a completely effective solution for the court has indicated that there can be no discrimination as to these grants in aid, and that if tuition grants or benefits are made directly to the child—exclusion of children attending church schools would be discriminatory. Our state constitution permits financial assistance only to students attending private, nonsectarian, elementary and secondary schools."

There may be other ways out, Voelker suggested, but at this time Louisiana legislators should start thinking about the new approach "which presumably might be free from successful legal attack."

LMA Ends 25th Annual Meeting

"it will not work miracles, but it will help us find the right cures."

The ailments he attributed largely to a growing, urbanized population.

"In another 90 years," Kirkpatrick said, "there well may be one billion Americans, and Louisiana is likely to have a population of 15 million or more."

In Louisiana, he said, "we need to start, on an average of 1½ new school buildings every Monday morning to keep up with our expanding population.

"Caught in the squeeze between a population growing twice as fast as the state as a whole and limited revenues, some communities are developing without regard for water supply, drainage, sanitation and other urban services. They become slums before the paint is dry. Police juries, school boards, drainage districts and other agencies, with the power to tax and spend, cause not only mass confusion, but disillusioned and bewildered citizens."

An additional problem, he went on, is that most taxes are collected on a state level and disbursed by a legislature which is largely controlled by rural areas.

"These non-urban areas, with considerably less than half of the registered voters in the state, have well over 50 per cent of the representation."

And since 1953 more than 50 communities have commissioned city planning surveys. Federal grants are available to planning agencies in amounts up to two-thirds of the cost of planning assitance programs in communities under 50,000 population. The program is administered by the Department of Public Works. In addition to the federal grants, the state puts up half of the remaining funds needed, and the community comes up with the remainder.

Elected district vice presidents by LMA were Mayor Victor H. Schiro, New Orleans, first district; Mayor William White, Gretna, second district; Leonard Toups, Thibodaux, third district; James Allen, Spring Hill, fourth district; Loy Cloninger, Rayville, fifth district; Eugene Alexander, Port Allen, sixth district; Alfred Roberts, Lake Charles, seventh district; and Aswell Rhodes, Colfax, eighth district.

SOME REFUSE TO LEAVE

Island Evacuation Still In Progress

CHINCOTEAGUE, Va. (AP)—The evacuation of this seven-mile-long island off the eastern shore of Virginia continued Saturday, although many residents still refused to leave.

Trucks shuttled back and forth from the island to nearby Crisfield, Md., with load after load of dead chickens, drowned when abnormally high tides inundated Chincoteague.

Dr. William Fritz, Accomack County health officer, said he ordered removal of the island town for fear they might start a typhoid epidemic.

Most of the damage done here by Monday's storm was caused by flooding. Cars and boats were strewn about the streets, buildings were [illegible] lying in shambles and general devastation was everywhere.

Still many residents, like Fred Savage, could not be persuaded to evacuate. Savage, who has been on the island since his birth 76 years ago, remarked, "I stayed through the storm, what's the use of leaving now?"

All workers on the island, helping with the clean-up and evacuation, are being inoculated against typhoid. Residents who refuse to leave also receive the inoculations if they wanted them.

Dead animals and the island's sewerage system posed the greatest health threats.

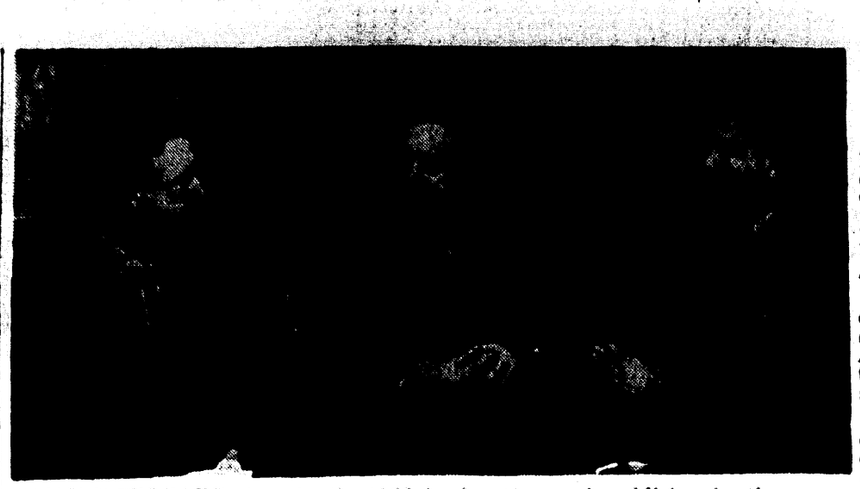
"It's getting rank," one islander said. "I saw five coffins in one person's yard."

The flooding forced many coffins up from graveyards, and earlier in the week, a number were floating about in streets and yards.

Two local ministers toured Chincoteague in sound trucks Friday night in a desperate effort to get people to leave.

The island's senior physician, Dr. Henrich Shelley, also pleaded with inhabitants to leave until the community could be cleaned up and there no longer would be any danger of contamination.

Persons leaving are being taken to the Wallop's Island headquarters of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.



CANCER CRUSADE plans for the 1962 Ouachita drive in April are discussed by (left to right) Dr. N. R. Spencer, president of the Ouachita Parish Cancer Society, and crusade co-chairmen M. D. Tarver and Sam Hanna. Besides education and publicity in the campaign, a drive covering business-to-business and house-to-house will be conducted on April 9. (Staff photo by John Fogleman)

Cancer Drive Co-Chairmen Announced

Dr. N. R. Spencer, president of the Ouachita Parish Cancer Society, has announced that M. D. Tarver and Sam Hanna will serve as Ouachita co-chairmen of the 1962 Cancer Crusade here in April.

"Since cancer has not been conquered, the Ouachita Cancer Society, which is an affiliate of the American Cancer Society, hopes to have its most successful crusade in April," Dr. Spencer said.

With April designated as Cancer Crusade Month throughout the country, the local program will include emphasis on education and publicity and the solicitation of contributions.

A business - to - business and house-to-house crusade will be stated in the parish on April 9.

"It is important to remember that funds collected by our group is spent on cancer victims at home, research on a national basis and research in Louisiana," Dr. Spencer said.

Working with Tarver and Hanna to conduct the campaign are division chairmen:

James Harbuck, Monroe business, Mrs. Fred Beckett, Monroe residential; Leslie Hamm, West Monroe business, Mrs. Joyce Smith, West Monroe residential; and Charles G. Drennan, Sterlington.

"We are fortunate to have experienced people to serve as chairmen of our key divisions," Dr. Spencer explained. "All of our chairmen have worked with the Cancer Society or other civic groups in the past."

Volunteer workers will make the solicitations to conclude the crusade by the end of April.

Report Meet Due Monday On Tidelands

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Louisiana's team of Tidelands negotiators Monday will make a report on their progress to Gov. Jimmie H. Davis.

The Louisiana governor called a meeting at the mansion at 10 a. m. of all concerned in seeking a settlement with the federal government of the dispute over ownership of the mineral-rich waterbottoms in the Gulf of Mexico.

"I want to see how near we are to having our part of the job completed," the governor said when announcing the meeting. "Once we have done this, we will decide on what steps we want to take."

Gov. Davis has said he hoped for a Tidelands settlement this fiscal year. Any settlement that would release some of the $350 million held in escrow from oil and gas revenues taken from the disputed area would be a great boost to the state's depleted treasury.

The most immediate problem is to decide where the state will recommend that a coastline will be drawn.

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled Louisiana is entitled to having its seaward boundary set three miles from the coastline, which is yet to be determined.

Federal and state negotiators are attempting to settle on a coastline amicably to prevent the Supreme Court from setting down a long and involved legal procedure to reach the same end.

Apparently preparing for discussions with top federal officials, Davis said earlier the Louisiana team at the mansion meeting will discuss lines of apparent agreement and disagreement between the federal and state negotiators.

These are the men expected to call on the governor:

Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion; Chairman William G. Helis Jr. of the State Mineral Board; Gordon Atwater, New Orleans consulting geologist who is chairman of the coastline finding team for the state; Scott Wilkinson, Shreveport attorney, and Monty Haynes, engineer with the state department of public works, both members of the team; Owen Ware, legal counsel to the governor; and James S. Reily, State Commissioner of Administration and the governor's chief fiscal officer.

NEWSPAPER PRICES

FRANCO BACKER

Wealthy Man Dies Of Crash Injuries

MADRID, Spain (AP) —Juan March, one of Europe's richest men and reputed financial backer of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's civil war victory, died in a deep coma Saturday of injuries suffered in an automobile accident. He was 80.

March, whose climb to fortune included exile, jail and struggles with the pre-Franco republican government, was rushed to a hospital Feb. 25 with fractures of a hip, arm and leg. His expensive U.S. - built limousine was hit by an oncoming car during a rainstorm.

At his death, March owned practically everything on the Mediterranean resort island of Mallorca, where he began his working life as a stevedore. He headed some of Spain's largest banks, power companies and corporations. He kept the size of his fortune a secret but financial experts said he controlled investments reaching into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

The manner in which he amassed this wealth earned him such titles as the "bad boy of Spanish finance" and "last pirate of the Mediterranean." But in his final years, March donated millions to a charitable foundation that bears his name and on his death bed signed papers turning $16.6 million more over to it.

March started his fortune by acquiring a tobacco monopoly for Spanish Morocco and got in trouble over it with the Spanish republican government. He was accused of illegal business procedures and jailed, but without formal charges, for a year and a half. He escaped after bribing his jailer, who fled with him and wound up with a big job in the March empire.

His reported financial backing of Franco is said to have brought him into the favor of the Franco government and gave him national prominence, but it stopped short of one big ambition—to win a title of Spanish nobility. March was the son of a Catalan peasant.

In his aging years, March cut back on his activities and spent most of his time visiting old friends and living the aristocratic life in his spacious Madrid home. He smoked big cigars and filled the home, a palace built by a Spanish prince, with valuable art works.

Though less active, March remained mentally alert and continued to advise Franco on financial and business affairs.

One friend described him as a "spidery old man with a crooked neck—but a keen mind."

March leaves his widow, whom he married late in life after his first wife died, and his two sons, who were his chief aides.

CONVALESCENT HOMES

Gray Ladies Aid Twin City Aged

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
World Staff Writer

For 343 aged persons in Monroe's nine convalescent homes, the Gray Ladies serve as friends, substitute for family — and sometimes are the only visitors to brighten the days of elderly men and women.

A recruiting drive is now underway, to bring the Gray Ladies volunteer organization up to at least 50 members.

"We now have 29 Gray Ladies," said Mrs. Taunton Veazey, manager of the local Red Cross, of which the organization is a subsidiary.

"We don't have enough members right now . . . we have fewer than ever before," she sighed. "We're just desperate for new members."

A new class for the Gray Ladies starts next Thursday morning, March 15. It will be in two weekly sessions, of three hours each, at Red Cross headquarters, 200 S. Grand St.

Registration now is underway, and local ladies may volunteer by calling the Red Cross office, FA 3-5141, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Only requirement for being a Gray Lady: To like working with people. Anyone over age 21 may volunteer.

A Gray Lady spends a few hours during a morning or afternoon, one day a week, at one convalescent home. She is delegated to only one home, and the elderly people there come to think of her as their special friend.

CALL TO ASK

"If circumstances prevent a Gray Lady from visiting the home on her regularly scheduled day," said Mrs. Veazey, "the elderly people frequently will call the office to find out why she isn't there to visit them. These old people look forward to the day when she is supposed to come, and it is quite an occasion."

"Many of the old folks are miles away from families and friends. The Gray Lady becomes their friend."

What does a Gray Lady do?

Writes letters and reads for those whose eyesight has dimmed or whose hand trembles.

Takes an elderly friend for a ride, to the doctor or the dentist, or to the beauty shop. This may be one of the few times during the month that the elderly man or woman get out.

Plans entertainment. Plays cards.

Shops for the elderly, who have the financial means but are physically unable to go out for lengthy periods.

Sponsors a birthday party once a month at each home.

Assists at the monthly "Fireside Party" presented for elderly folks by local clubs. The party is held at the Red Cross headquarters.

"Many of the old people would not come to the party unless the Gray Ladies were present," said Mrs. Veazey.

Also, on the first and third Thursdays of each month, a Gray Lady assists during the morning at the Carolyn Rose Strauss rehabilitation Center, 1209 Oliver Rd.

When the organization was up to full strength, Gray Ladies helped out some at Conway Memorial Hospital.

At the class from 9 to 11:30 a.m. next Thursday, a local physician will talk to the new volunteers on care of the aged.

Joe Worley, director of the Department of Public Welfare in Monroe, will speak on the income which elderly people receive from his department.

Mrs. William Weinberg, Gray Ladies chairman, will discuss the duties and responsibilities of each convalescent home, and its rules and regulations.

Sharing official duties with Mrs. Weinberg are co-chairman, Mrs. M. A. Newburn, and party chairman, Mrs. Reese Major.

The organization has served as a volunteer group since 1949. Operating expenses come from United Givers Fund, through Red Cross. Each volunteer purchases her own gray uniform.

"A Gray Lady's visit is one of the few bright spots in the lives of elderly people in our local convalescent homes," say officials.

GRAY LADIES Mrs. Jack Dew, left, and Mrs. Esther Embanato, standing, chat with Mrs. Golda Wuichet, convalescent home resident, during a visit to the home Friday. Recruiting campaign for Gray Ladies now is underway, to bring organization up to full strength. First of two orientation classes for new members will be held from 9 to 11:30 a.m. next Thursday at Red Cross headquarters on South Grand Street. (Staff photo by John Fogleman)

DESPITE DENIALS

Rome Buzzes Over Taylor-Fisher Rift

ROME (AP)—Rome buzzed Saturday with rumor and gossip of a rift between actress Elizabeth Taylor and her singer husband, Eddie Fisher.

The reports swelled—despite denials—at Cinecitta, Rome's version of Hollywood, and in Via Veneto's sidewalk cafes.

Fisher denied the reports. So did lawyers. So did Spyros Skouras, head of 20th Century Fox, which is producing "Cleopatra," most costly film ever. Miss Taylor has the title role.

Rome newspapers most of them repeating stories published abroad, said Miss Taylor was "madly in love" with British actor Richard Burton, the Marc Antony to her Cleopatra. When reports linking their names circulated several weeks ago Burton's press agent issued a statement denying any romance, but Burton repudiated the statement.

Miss Taylor could not be reached in her walled villa near Rome's famed Appian Way. She lives there with Fisher, the children of Miss Taylor's previous marriages and an 11 month-old slightly crippled German orphan girl they adopted last January.

Skouras denied that he came to Rome—on the same flight that brought Mrs. John F. Kennedy to the Italian capital—to check on the Taylor-Fisher marriage.

"No, no," he said, "this trip has nothing to do with such reports."

Robert Abrahms, Miss Taylor's attorney, was more emphatic.

"These reports are absolutely false. I know this."

Press agents for "Cleopatra" also issued the usual denials. They have been doing that for weeks. But the reports continued to spread.

The strongest evidence, if it could be called that, supporting the rumors were the facial expressions of Miss Taylor and Fisher, in published photographs. They are grim.

Fisher accompanied Miss Taylor Friday to Rome's Salvator Mundi Hospital, where an X-ray was made of an injury to her right hand. Miss Taylor looked pallid. The reports of a marital rift bloomed when she was rushed to the same hospital several week ago with acute food poisoning. Fisher was out of Rome when that happened.

They bloomed some more at a party that Fisher, 33, gave Miss Taylor on her 30th birthday last month in a swank Rome restaurant. They scarcely looked at each other. Eddie looked at his watch. Both left before the cake arrived. Said one person who watched the party:

"He was not having a good time."

Death Claims Woman After Area Accident

JONESBORO (Special) — A 68-year-old Hornbeck woman died here Friday night after being injured in a two-car collision at Mt. Olive Community in Bienville Parish between Hodge and Arcadia.

She was Mrs. Katie P. Gandy, passenger in a car driven by her husband, Clarence P. Gandy of Hornbeck. Driver of the other car involved was F. R. McCallister, of Arcadia.

The cars collided at the intersection of Louisiana 147 and Louisiana 155 at Martin's Store.

Both McCallister and Gandy were injured slightly, the Bienville Parish Sheriff's Department reported. Mrs. Gandy was rushed to the Jackson Parish Hospital where she died a few hours later.

IN BERLIN CORRIDOR

Soviets Harrassing West Air Traffic

BERLIN (AP) — The Russians have dug up the old trick of dropping metallic strips to confuse Western plane traffic in Berlin's air corridors. But Western air force officers contend this is only a nuisance, not a menace.

Informed sources said Saturday that Russian planes filled the air approaches to Berlin for two hours Friday with what airmen call "chaff" or "garbage," thousands of thin metallic strips.

The effect is to clutter up the screens of radar sets controlling the flights of Western planes into the isolated city. Streaks of white across the screens make an unclear picture.

Declaring the effect not dangerous, an American officer said radar operators are trained to distinguish between "chaff" and images of planes.

A British officer said this was just one of the ways the Soviets were making "an aggravated nuisance of themselves" in the three 20-mile-wide air corridors across Communist East Germany to Berlin.

One expert said that improvement in radar had made chaff much less effective than it was when first used by U.S. and British bomber fleets to confuse Nazi radar in attacking Germany in World War II. He speculated that the Russians were trying to find out just how effective the tactic is now.

Western Allied officers were unworried. An American source said radar is not the only safety control on the flights to Berlin.

But Western sources expressed irritation at the Soviet harassing tactics over the past five weeks.

The nuisance campaign appeared to be timed to build up tension in a particularly sensitive area just before the opening of the Geneva disarmament conference.

Negro Fatally Burned In House Fire

An elderly Negro man died last night when the small, two-room house in which he lived caught fire and burned.

He was tentatively identified as Louis Johnson, of rear 3412 White St., who police said was aged 58. Ouachita Parish Coroner Dr. John P. Burton said Johnson was asphyxiated in the smoke-filled building.

Cause of the fire which totally destroyed the house was undetermined last night, but the firemen believed the blaze originated in the back bedroom.

According to police, there had been a fire there earlier Saturday night and he crawled out a window on the south side of the building, got some water and put the fire out.

Police said that apparently he laid back down on the bed and went to sleep and the fire blazed up again. The fire was reported to firemen by Frank Brooks, Negro, of 906 Columbia St., who lived directly behind the small house. Brooks said as he was lying in bed, he looked out the window and noticed the flames.

The house was situated in the back yard of the home of the Richard Dishroom's who lived at 3412 White St. They told police that they just let Johnson live in the house, and he comes and goes. They said they hadn't seen him in about three months.

The fire was reported to the fire department at 11:11 p.m. They had to kick the door down in order to get inside. No one knew that anyone was inside the building. The body was taken to Douglas Negro Funeral Home.

U.S. Space Gains Lauded By Kennedy

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — President Kennedy said Saturday night the orbital flight of astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. proves the United States has the ability to pace the world in this new area of progress.

Speaking in the heartland of the U.S. space effort, Kennedy said humanity was on the brink of an age of undreamed discovery.

"An age," he added, "which may well dwarf the explorations of Columbus, Magellan and Sir Francis Drake.

"It will be an age in which many of the predictions of imaginative fiction will be coming true."

The chief executive, in remarks prepared for a $100-a-plate Democratic fund-raising dinner, keyed to the Florida setting his praise for what space scientists already have achieved and his claims for the future.

Senior Glenns Doing Research On Buttermilk

NEW CONCORD, Ohio (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. John Glenn Sr., parents of the astronaut, are doing a little scientific research of their own these days.

They are testing the packaging and freezing ability of buttermilk.

Ever since the senior Glenn told a nationwide audience he spent the time of his son's orbital flight drinking buttermilk, the Glen house in New Concord has been besieged with buttermilk.

"We got buttermilk from New York State and buttermilk from the local dairy and even the neighbors are bringing buttermilk," Glenn said. Now they are expecting an eight-gallon can of buttermilk from Harry J. Clark, a dairyman in Smith Falls, Ont.

"We've been experimenting with the buttermilk we have," Glenn explained, "putting it in plastic containers and in the freezer. We know we can freeze regular milk and we suppose it will be all right with the buttermilk."

Speaker Blamed In Bill Defeat

By FRANK ELEAKER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Who killed Speaker John McCormack's plan to enlarge the House by three seats? Most members agreed Saturday that McCormack himself did the job.

Some lawmakers who had been just as anxious as McCormack to see the enlargement bill passed grumbled that the Speaker in signaling defeat of the bill "hit the panic button" after a handful of members complained.

Others said the veteran Massachusetts lawmaker had faced up to his first real test of statesmanship versus personal interest and had chosen the role of a statesman.

In any event, McCormack last Thursday personally sent down the drain a bill to raise the permanent membership of the House from 435 to 438. Along with it died McCormack's hopes to save one of two house seats to be lost by Massachusetts as a result of the 1960 census, and in so doing to break a reapportionment deadlock that threatens all Massachusetts House members—himself included—with running for reelection on a statewide basis.

The argument for adding three seats, and no more, to the membership was that this would compensate the 4 mainland states for admission to the Union of Alaska and Hawaii which, under the census reshuffle, will get one and two seats, respectively. Statistically Massachusetts, Missouri and Pennsylvania happened to be first in line.

After long and arduous preparations, which except for McCormack never would have been undertaken, the House was all set to pass the bill. It would have saved one seat each for Missouri and Pennsylvania in addition to Massachusetts.

Missouri and Pennsylvania, due to lose one seat and three seats respectively, already have redistricted to cover their losses. Their house delegations had mixed emotions about rocking the boat.

Thirteen other states also are to lose house seats as a result of the census. Their lawmakers, along with those from states untouched by the census or due to gain seats, viewed the bill with restraint.

Mostly out of loyalty to McCormack, however, a safe majority of the House was ready to go for the bill he wanted.

Trouble developed moments before the measure was due to be passed. Its sponsor, Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Pa., offered and won approval of an amendment to require that Pennsylvania and Missouri void their redistricting laws and pass new ones, on pain of running all their members at large.

Walter explained later that he did this as part of an agreement with Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck, Ind., exacted by Halleck as the price of GOP support for the bill. Halleck said he had been assured that Pennsylvania planned a new redistricting anyway, and that he wanted to make sure the plan was not changed.

Halleck's interest was in saving one jeopardized Republican seat, that of Pennsylvania's Rep. Ivor D. Fenton. In the absence of the Walter amendment, Halleck feared Pennsylvania might not redistrict again but instead would leave its extra seat to be filled in an at-large election.

In that event Fenton, whose current district under the existing redistricting law was merged with that of Democratic Rep. George M. Rhodes, might be left out in the cold.

Other Pennsylvania Republicans hit the ceiling at this, as did some of the state's Democrats. Their seats are safe under the current redistricting law. They did not want to face either running at large or in more hazardous districts. Rep. John Saylor, R-Pa., blocked a final vote for more than an hour by demanding a formally printed copy of the bill.

McCormack meantime persuaded Saylor to let the bill ride on to the Senate, where he promised that if Pennsylvania's doubts were not resolved the measure would be killed.

But during the delay, tempers had risen. New misgivings had been voiced. McCormack himself wondered if it was constitutional for Congress to void state redistricting laws.

He finally decided the game was not worth the candle. Too many people were angry. Those about to be hurt, or afraid that they were, no doubt would say McCormack sacrificed them to save Massachusetts.

To the consternation of some other Massachusetts members, he passed the word that his friends were free to pull the plug on the bill.

They did.

Vicksburg Area Hit By Floods; Many Evacuated

VICKSBURG, Miss. (Special)— Swirling waters of the Mississippi have forced about a dozen families from their homes in the Long Lake community north of here and others are trapped in their homes.

Evacuations have taken place during the past few days as water covered roads leading in and out. Reports Saturday indicated that water over roads has reached a depth of 18 inches in some spots.

The Mississippi River continued to rise Saturday at the rate of .07 inch every 24 hours with more rain expected through the weekend.

The Long Lake area is mostly a resort area and the camps are being flooded. However, those being evacuated are permanent residents of Long Lake.

Floods in the rea are not uncommon and last year many families — who waited too long to leave — have to be taken out by National Guard units.

New Nuclear Sub Edison Joins Fleet

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — The Polaris-firing submarine Thomas A. Edison joined Uncle Sam's nuclear underwater fleet Saturday in bright sunlight ceremonies.

While three generations of the inventor's family and Navy dignitaries listened, an admiral said the Edison will help the United States maintain the "assured lead that we currently hold over all ther nations" in the field of naval weapons systems.

Adm. Claude V. Ricketts, vice chief of naval operations, declared that the Edison will play a key role in a major Navy objective of using the oceans as a base for "striking an enemy who would be foolhardy enough to attack us."

The 6,900-ton, 410-foot Edison, launched last June, will carry type A2 Polaris missiles, which have a firing range of 1,700 miles.

Standing on deck of the Navy's eighth Polaris missile submarine throughout the ceremonies at the electric boat division of General Dynamics Corp., the builder, were representatives of the alternating crews, which consist of 10 officers and 100 men each.

Guests included Mrs. John Eyre Sloane of West Orange, N.J., Edison's daughter and sponsor of the submarine when it was launched; John Edison Sloane of Summit, N.J., the inventor's grandson, and Madeleine Edison Sloane, also of Summit, Edison's great-granddaughter.

The alternating skippers are Capt. Charles M. Young of Coronado, Calif., and Cmdr. Walter Dedrick of Vallejo, Calif.

IN MISSISSIPPI

Solons Divided On Liquor Issue

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—The liquor question—which has divided the House of Representatives bitterly—will face rough sledding when it reaches the floor.

Measures to abolish the post of the chief law enforcement officer of the State Game and Fish Commission and to investigate the commission also will cause feelings to run high in the Legislature.

On the liquor issue, the general strategy of the wet forces is to kill enough revenue measures in a 13-bill package so the legislature will have to pass a liquor measure to raise money to balance the state budget.

Dry forces hope to pass the revenue measures and leave the liquor situation status quo—with some collections coming from the black market tax on liquor.

The drys won two preliminary victories the past week, passing the key measure in the package deal to raise $27 million next biennium and stalling off attempts to pass the "surprise" bill at an unusual Friday session.

Dry leaders kept the chamber occupied throughout the session on other matters, and then moved for adjournment. The motion to adjourn passed by a 63-56 vote, indicative of what opposition the wet forces face.

However, wet forces said privately they would not give up hope of passing the bill this session. They likely will wait for what they consider an opportune time before considering it.

The Senate, which approved a liquor bill in 1960 that was narrowly defeated by the House, will consider the key cigarette tax measure. The Senate possibly could defeat the measure, giving new hope to the wet cause.

However, such close political ties on controversial measures are unlikely between the Senate and House.

Rep. Jerry O'Keefe of Harrison County, chairman of the Temperance Committee which reported out the bill, said the measure was simpler than the version which failed in 1960.

"It will simply legalize liquor in the counties that want it and outlaw it in those which do not want it," he said. "everybody will vote in the November general election which way they want their county to go."

The regulation details will be left to the tax bill that will be introduced if the legalization measure passes.

The House stalled off a threatened fight over the State Game and Fish Commission, but will have to face the measure during the coming week.

Rep. Talmadge Littlejohn of Union County sought permission to suspend House rules and call up a resolution authorizing the investigation. His motion won a 73-50 vote, but missed the two-thirds majority needed to suspend the rules.

The bill to abolish the post of chief law enforcement officer of the commission—held after passage on motion to reconsider—was not called up due to other business.

Rep. George Payne Cossar of Tallahatchie County has called on the legislature to follow his policy to "Never legislate a man out of office. I hope the House doesn't act as judge and jury and give a man a chance to act in his own defense."

Subcommittees Working On Huge Space Budget

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four subcommittees of the House space committee are busily at work laying the groundwork for launching a mammoth vehicle—the President's $4-billion space budget for the coming fiscal year.

A tremendous amount of work is involved. The space program, growing by leaps and bounds, has become one of the biggest civilian items in the budget. Just a list of the myriad projects planned by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration would take a column of newspaper space.

The program will continue to grow. NASA Director James Webb has told Congress he expects the manned space flight program to cost $20 billion over the next 10 years, culminating in a landing and return from the moon perhaps by 1968-70. And $15 billion more will go into other aspects of space research in the same period.

Rep. George P. Miller, D-Calif., new chairman of the space committee, has split it up into four subcommittees so as to cover more ground. They met almost every day this week and will be at it for at least a month.

It is the committee's responsibility to authorize the spending. Then the appropriations committee must pass on the actual money.

The sense of added momentum to the space program caused by Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr.'s successful flight probably has made NASA's selling job easier.

NASA is asking for $3.75 billion in the fiscal year starting July 1. Other space programs conducted by the Atomic Energy Commission, the Weather Bureau and others bring the total to just over $4 billion. In addition the Defense Department will be spending about $1.5 billion on military space projects.

The largest chunk of money, $1.6 billion, is earmarked for manned space flight. The next big step in this field is the orbiting of a two-man Gemini capsule, and after that comes the three-man Apollo.

A tremendous amount of thought, effort and planning is needed to back up manned space flight.

Some mistakes have been made. NASA officials told a subcommittee this week that about $5 million was lost when a shift was made from one kind of Mariner vehicle to another. These are unmanned space laboratories designed to probe the secrets of the moon and nearby planets.

Among the hundreds of experimental programs contemplated—they range from weather predicting to global television programs—perhaps the most fascinating to the layman is the ancient question of whether there is life on the other planets.

Dr. Homer E. Newell of NASA's Office of space Sciences discussed this question a few days ago.

"No region on earth is so arid, so hot, so cold, so exposed as the moon," he said. "Even Mars is bone-dry in comparison with a terrestrial desert. The searing temperatures of Venus are far more forbidding than the freezing cold of the earth's poles.

"Yet there may be life out there, perhaps on Mars. There may be havens out there where some forms of earth life can survive. This is what we seek to learn."

There are many approaches. A Rube Goldberg monster called Surveyor is on the drawing boards for a moon landing. It's designed to drill holes in the moon, digest the result and send television pictures back to earth, along with about 20 other experiments.

Another device called the "Wolf Trap" was dreamed up by a scientist named Wolf Vishniac at the University of Rochester. In effect it is a little laboratory that provides a culture medium for any organisms that might be sucked in from the moon or a planet. If the culture becomes cloudy, it's got something.

Perhaps the most intriguing gadget Newell showed the subcommittee was a little boxlike gimmick about the size of a pint jar.

Trailing outside the metal box is a stick string 100 feet long. When the thing is landed on a planet, the strike is reeled in, bringing particles of soil with it.

The stuff is immersed in a culture medium inside the box, and if life of some kind is present, it radios a signal back to earth.

Newell knows i tworks because he tried it out in Washington's Rock Creek Park on a recent cold and frosty morning. The gadget, which has no name, gave a positive signal within 45 minutes.

ROBERT W. CALVERT JR., president of Zeta Chapter of Pi Sigma Epsilon at Northeast State, holds a trophy awarded to the chapter for the top award in the nation by The American Salesman Magazine as the winner of "The American Salesman Award," an honor the Zeta group also won in 1960. D. Delbert Vines, faculty advisor, also admires the trophy. In addition to the trophy, the award also contained a cash prize of $250.

DESEGREGATION ORDERED

Birmingham Closes Most Public Parks

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Thursday is the deadline for desegregation of Birmingham's public parks. But probably the deadline will come and go with few people—if anybody—taking notice.

Most of the parks already are closed. The city's golf courses are posted with "no trespassing" signs. The community centers are boarded up and posted.

Technically, at least, the playgrounds are closed. They're not posted, however, and presumably the kids still can play on them. Officially, nobody is saying.

The swimming pools, closed for the winter, won't be opened.

The shutdown began around the first of the year, a few weeks after U.S. Dist. Judge H. Hobart Grooms ruled that segregation in public recreation facilities was unconstitutional.

His orginal deadline for desegregation was Jan. 15. He later extended the deadline to March 15 with the expressed hope the city could work out a way to keep the parks open. But the shutdown operation already was under way.

"As far as I'm concerned," says Mayor Arthur J. Hanes, "the parks are closed now.

"The city commission, as now constituted, will never accept forced integration. We've got great principles involved here.

"We feel we have done what the people of Birmingham wanted."

Hanes says he is hopeful that somehow the parks will be put back into use.

"We'll do all in our power to make these parks available to the people," he said.

"I keep hoping for a break in this situation," he added. "Perhaps in good time. . . ."

The Parks and Recreation Board lists 67 playgrounds, 11 community centers, 8 swimming pools and 4 golf courses as closed because of the desegregation ruling. Several parks will remain open—mainly, those of the sightseeing variety, including the zoo.

Several private groups are seeking to buy various facilities from the city. One of them, Roebuck Community Center Inc., is selling stock in an effort to raise the estimated $400,000 needed to buy a community center and adjoining golf course from the city.

City officials have not said they would be agreeable to private purchase of the facilities, but plans for a citywide referendum in May on the question have been discussed.

KEEPS BUSY IN STUDIO

Sculptress Works On 86th Birthday

REDDING, Conn. (AP) — The messages of congratulation poured in from far and wide Saturday, but in the studio the work continued as usual.

The gray-haired little lady went on briskly with her activities hardly mindful that it was her 86th birthday.

Anna Hyatt Huntington, one of the country's leading sculptresses, left no doubt she was more concerned with the casting of her latest work, "The Torchbearer," than anything so ordinary as a birthday.

"I guess everyone except me is interested in my birthday," she said, laughing. "I've had too many birthdays to start making a fuss now."

"The Torchbearer," a man on horseback carrying a symbolic flame of freedom, is only one of hundreds of heroic statues she has sculpted in her long career. It will be presented to the University of South Carolina at Columbia.

Mrs. Huntington, the widow of Archer M. Huntington, a poet and patron of the arts, began her career as a sculptor more than 60 years ago. She was one of the first women to produce heroic-sized, equestrian statues.

Her "Joan of Arc," now on New York City's Riverside Drive, was completed in 1915 and has stirred critics and laymen alike.

Last year she completed a figure on horseback of Sybil Ludington, the 16-year-old female Paul Revere who rode through Westchester and Putnam counties, N.Y., in April 1777 to alert her father's militia company of the burning of Danbury by the British.

The creator of these martial figures is herself a gentle, self-effecing woman who prefers the traditional things in art as well as in life.

She has no use for abstractionists, explaining, "Why, a monkey can do as well."

Troubled by arthritis, she does little traveling but likes to walk over her 1,000-acre estate which eventually will be turned over to the state for park use. She spends at least three hours a day in her studio, a simple room of concrete blocks attached to her 20-room house.

Her current project is a representation of Abraham Lincoln as a young lawyer on horseback. Although many major sculptors have tried the Lincoln theme, Mrs. Huntington hopes to catch a new aspect of Lincoln.

And after Lincoln?

"Oh, there are many ideas I'd like to try. Sculpting's too much fun. And if I stopped working people might think I'm getting old."

CONSUMER PROTECTION

Solons May Act On Safeguards

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy in a message to Congress next week is expected to endorse a broad philosophy of protection for the consumer when buying anything from a lipstick to common stock.

But his specific recommendations may center on the many consumer-aligned measures already in the legislative works—bills dealing mainly with medicines, cosmetics and food.

Should he choose to ask even broader legislative action at this time, Kennedy probably will ask added safeguards for those who borrow money or buy negotiable securities. Consumer-credit practices also might come in for attention.

The message is not scheduled to go to Congress before Thursday and indications are much of its contents remains to be decided, especially the number of specific new plans that will be advanced.

There seems to be substance to earlier forecasts that a special White House consumer counsel will not be called for. Such an official, to serve as the consumers' representative before federal agencies, was advocated by Kennedy in his presidential campaign but the idea apparently has been dropped.

Pending legislation already endorsed by the administration includes bills to:

Give the Food and Drug Administration authority to pass on the effectiveness of new drugs before they are marketed and require drug manufacturers to report any complaint about injuries or bad effects attributed to their drugs. FDA now has authority to pass only on the safety of drugs.

Require pre-testing of all cosmetics for safety before they can be marketed.

Provide that all antibiotics be subject to government certification. Now only eight have to be certified.

Arm FDA with additional factory-inspection authority to include access to production procedures.

Empower FDA to pass on the effectiveness and safety of therapeutic devices before they may be marketed.

Protect customers against mislabeled and deceitfully packaged products as well as worthless or unsafe foods and drugs.

Tighten controls against illicit sale of prescription drugs which, while not narcotics, can be dangerously habit-forming.

Informed sources say it seems that more different government departments and agencies are involved in activities concerned with consumer protection than are involved in almost any other field, so the message may also call for action to protect the person who buys on credit, or borrows money, or buys stock; and to provide speedier methods for handling cases involving alleged unfair trade practices and medical quackery.

In his State of the Union message in January, the President said:

"To protect our consumers from the careless and the unscrupulous, I shall recommend improvements of food and drug laws — strengthening inspection and standards, halting unsafe and worthless products, preventing misleading labels and cracking down on the illicit sale of habit-forming drugs."

Nightly lectures will be open to the public from 7:15 to 9 o'clock in the Stubbs Hall Amphitheatre.

OPPOSES CONGRESS BILL

McNamara Not Yielding On B70

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara was described Saturday as determined not to yield an inch to powerful congressmen who want the 2,000-mile-an-hour B70 bomber started on the high road toward a multibillion dollar production goal.

The defense chief, who usually wins congressional contests while juggling a dozen other military problems, attaches such importance to stopping the B70 movement that he plans to devote the next two weeks almost solely to the task.

Passions are running high in the battle of the B70—the only airplane in the world apparently that would fly three times the speed of sound—and time will tell whether the tough-minded McNamara can win another one by overwhelming the opposition with facts and logic.

His facts are that American technology does not yet know how to provide the complicated radar and computing devices the B70 needs for reconnaissance and missile firing at triple-sonic speed, and that by the time it can be done the plane may not be needed.

His facts and concepts are disputed by other experts with presumably equal credentials.

His chief antagonist is Chairman Carl Vinson, D-Ga., of the House Armed Services Committee, which supports Vinson to a man. Vinson has been in Congress two years longer than the 45-year-old McNamara has been alive and has won many a defense battle with the executive branch. Seldom has he thrown himself into a conflict with more fervor.

Like many another member of Congress and like the famed bombardment expert, Gen. Curtis E. Lemay who is chief of the Air Force, Vinson fears McNamara and the young engineers on his staff will put America "out of the bomber business." They are not persuaded by anything they have seen so far that missiles are that good.

As the battle heads into its third week, this is the situation:

The Air Force, with Defense Department encouragement, has changed the primary mission of the B70 from bomber to a reconnaissance - strike plane which could ferret out hard-to-find targets and pummel them with missiles and bombs. It is now called the RS70. Its basic structure and aerodynamics are the same but its electronics would be vastly more advanced.

McNamara wants three experimental planes, the first of which will fly next December, to test the flying qualities of a triple-sonic machine operating far above 70,000 feet—a machine that there has never been anything like. The third of the "X" models would have a bombing-navigation system but little of the additional electronics the Air Force wants. The three, including years of research and development effort, will cost $1.3 billion.

The Air Force wants three further planes ordered. These would be increasingly complex and would wind up as fully operational combat aircraft. This program would eventuate in production of the RS70—perhaps as many as 150 airplanes at a cost McNamara estimates at $10 billion.

Vinson and his committee have largely endorsed the Air Force plan, after listening to McNamara, Lemay and their experts. They have sent a bill to the House floor which "directs" the Air Force to spend not less than $491 million in the year starting July 1 on the RS70 project. McNamara wants only $171 million and contends he can't spend more than that in the 12-month period.

President Kennedy, while trying to avoid a clash with Vinson on the issue of whether Congress can order money spent, said this week that he relies "very heavily" on McNamara's judgment.

Vinson said his bill would push RS70 development to the point where there would be a possibility of having a force of planes "which can do a job so sorely needed by this country." He had "serious doubts" McNamara's program would do that.

Vinson said he was tired of having the executive ignore congressional "mandates" to spend defense money and it was time to bring the issue to a head.

Miss McCoy Set As Delegate To CP Conference

A local woman, Miss Bernice McCoy, will act as an official delegate to the United Cerebral Palsy Association's 12th annual conference in Cleveland, Ohio, in March.

Miss McCoy, who is president of UCP's northeast Louisiana affiliate, will be one of more than 1,000 delegates attending the three-day program which gets underway March 15.

She said the program will include election of officers, a review of services to the cerebral palsied, reports on current research projects sponsored by UCP grants, clinical demonstrations and will be highlighted by the announcement of the 1961 recipient of the UCP-Max Weinstein Award. This award is given annually for outstanding achievement in the field of cerebral palsy.

The program is designed to give delegates an opportunity to ask questions of leaders in various segments of the habilitation field during discussion periods, Miss McCoy said. She added that such information will be valuable to the Northeast Louisiana group in planning current and future programs.

SUMMARY

A vigorous storm center swept out of Colorado to the Oklahoma panhandle by evening Saturday, spreading a wide band of snow from the Rockies through the northern half of the Plains into upper portions of the Mississippi Valley. Amounts in excess of 4 inches have fallen in Nebraska. South of the storm center winds gusted to 50 and 60 miles per hour, raising clouds of dust over the Plains of New Mexico and northwest Texas.

Meantime over the southeast active weather of another sort was in progress. Here, a stationary front lying along the central Gulf coast marked the boundary between warm moist off the Gulf overruning cooler air to the north. Resulting rains drenched interior areas with the rain belt reaching up into Tennessee, Kentucky and portions of Illinois and Missouri. Associated thunderstorms left heavy rainfall deposits of one to two inches in Mississippi and Alabama. A small tornado was reported at Fort Valley.

Contrasting dry mild weather favored much of California and the northeast. It was particularly pleasant in New York State and New England where the mercury rose up to 50 degrees under bright clear skies. South central Texas and the Sunshine state of Florida warmed well into the 80s. Freezing temperatures were confined to the rear of a line extending from Minesota south westward through Nebraska and around the Rockies.

The outlook for Sunday — snow is forecast from the Central Plains northeastward into northern Michigan. Rain is expected over the Ohio Valley, middle and south Atlantic states, changing to showers and scattered thunder storms down to the central Gulf states, Arkansas and eastern Texas. Some light snow will linger near the Rockies while showers of rain or snow continue over the Pacific northwest.

Hotel Damaged In Fire Saturday

A mid-day fire Saturday caused an undetermined amount of damage to a Negro hotel on DeSiard Street according to the Monroe fire department.

The blaze broke out on the second floor of the frame building known as Jim Bennett's Hotel located at 609½ DeSiard Street. Trucks one, three and ladder two responded to the alarm and quickly brought the flames under control, restricing the damage to the second floor of the building.

Firemen said that some of the rental units and store rooms were damaged by the blaze, but were unable to determine what caused the fire.

The building is owned by George Romano of 312 Speed Ave., and occupied by Jim Bennett. The fire started at 11:28 a.m.

Burglar Gains Nothing In Raid

A burglary of a Monroe supply house which netted the party or parties nothing, was being investigated by Monroe police Saturday.

The breaking of Central Oil and Supply at 906 Breard St., was reported by an employee, Glay Hammons, early Saturday morning.

Investigating officers said entrance to the building was gained by using some tool to break the lock off the warehouse door, but nothing was reported missing. Officers believe the burglary to have occurred between 11:30 p.m. Friday and 7:30 a.m. Saturday.

RAIN IS FORECAST today from Mississippi Valley eastward to Appalachians, and coastal areas of Pacific northwest, with showers and thunderstorms expected in southern Mississippi Valley, Gulf states and southern Plains. Rain mixed with snow is expected in the lower Great Lakes' states and west-central Mississippi Valley. Snow is forecast for upper Lakes' areas, with light snow and flurries expected in Plateau and northern Pacific regions. Warmer weather is likely for southern Mississippi Valley and eastern Lakes, with lowering temperatures in parts of mid-Atlantic states, central Rockies and central northern Plains. New Smallpox Outbreak Hits In Wales Area

CARDIFF, Wales (AP) — Britain's smallpox outbreak, apparently almost stamped out in England, flared up in Wales Saturday as 11 more suspected cases were rushed to isolation hospitals.

The suspected new victim brought the total in hospitals throughout Britain to 23. Eighteen are in Wales.

Officials said 17 are suspected cases and six definitely confirmed.

There have been seven deaths, two of them in Wales, since the smallpox outbreak last December.

The chairman of the Welsh Board of Health called Saturday's spurt of cases a "momentous development."

State Crash Kills Airman, Six Injured

CROWLEY, La. (AP)—An automobile with Turkish Air Force personnel crashed into a pickup truck, then was struck by two other vehicles Saturday, leaving one foreign airman dead and a total of six persons injured.

The dead man was identified by state police as Vehbi Ozakbas, 31, a master sergeant in the Turkish Air Force being trained at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex. under the Joint U.S. Military Mission for Aid to Turkey program.

The three injured airmen, taken to a Crowley hospital for treatment of severe lacerations and bruises, were identified as M.Sgt. Munir Kutlu, M.Sgt. Ekrem Sunar and M.Sgt. Naci Koksal. Their condition was not considered critical.

Also injured in the accident, which occurred at about 8 a.m., were Acadia Parish deputy sheriff Dorris Thibodeaux of Rayne, and L. L. Sternberg, also of Rayne. Deputy Thibodeaux suffered a cut under the eye and bruises on the chest. Sternberg was lacerated on the face, hands and forearms. Both were released from a hospital after treatment.

A sixth person injured was identified as Annette Marie Leger, eight-year-old daughter of George Leger. The child was bruised on the head when thrown againts the dashboard of her father's car.

The accident occurred on U.S. Highway 90 east of Crowley.

Rocket Station Is Damaged By Coastal Storm

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (AP) —A National Aeronautics and Space Administration official said Saturday the storm which wrecked the eastern seaboard four days ago also did considerable damage to the rocket facility here.

Joseph E. Robbins, administrative officer for the Wallops station, said: "The storm has done extensive damage to the NASA facility. We don't know how much until we give the equipment a closer look."

Robbins stated, however, that damages should be $1 million or more. He added it would be several weeks before the facility is operational.

He said the equipment was hit by "salt water, sand and high water washing over it. Some of the equipment was in 36 inches of water for over 12 hours."

Robbins said the storm has forced the postponement of several shots, including an Aerobee sounding rocket and a sodium vapor experiment.

Lyndon Johnson Predicts Demo Congress Gains

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson predicted Saturday night that Democrats will add to their "substantial majority responsibility" in the November elections.

Johnson said, however, that more important than adding to its seats in Congress is the party's responsibility to "speak with candor and frankness—to help all the people to better understand this new world and the responsibilities thrust upon us as a people."

In a speech prepared for a Jefferson-Jackson fund-raising dinner, Johnson credited President Kennedy with taking the initiative "for peace in the world, for bringing an end to the terror of nuclear weapons, and for peaceful exploration by all men of the new frontiers of outer space."

"This progress—on every front—will cause all Democrats to rejoice," he said. "But, the success of our country—the progress of our people — the advancement of our cause of freedom—do not belong in the realm of partisanship. The strength of America lies in its people, not in its parties."

Girl Scouts Reach Golden Milestone

Tomorrow, March 12, is a double anniversary for Girl Scouts in northeast Louisiana.

It marks the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Girl Scout movement by a native of Savannah, Georgia, who had returned from England and was impressed with a similar movement in that country. Immediately upon her return home, Mrs. Juliette Gordon Low started the movement for girls in that town. From this first impression, over the years has grown the Girl Scout organization throughout this country.

Also March 12 marks the sixth anniversary of the Silver Waters Girl Scout Council, which is headquartered in Monroe and serves 11 northeast Louisiana parishes. Prior to the organization of the Silver Waters Council the Ouachita Parish Girl Scout Council and several lone troops were in operation in the area. However, because of the lack of coordination among the troops, the leaders organized the council embracing the entire area. Mr. J. Floyd Stone, Jr. is presently serving as council president.

HIGHLIGHTING

Highlighting the observance of the anniversary, scouts and leaders from all 11 parishes will hold a Service of Re - dedication beginning at 3 p.m. today in Brown Auditorium on the Northeast Louisiana State College campus. "A Golden Promise," the ceremony of rededication, will feature speaking and singing groups, representing the Brownie, Intermediate and Senior Scouts. Diane Halley, Senior Scout will be narrator for the ceremony.

The history of the Girl Scout movement is the realization of the quiet, gentle Georgia woman, who while visiting with friends in England, became impressed with the Boy Scout movement being instituted by Lord Baden-Powell, and the consequent similar movment for girls. During her stay in England, she had become acquainted with Baden-Powell and obtained first hand much of the information being used for his movement.

START

Upon returning to Savannah, Mrs. Low telephoned a friend saying "come on over. I've got something for the girls of Savannah and all the country, and we are going to start it tonight."

The "something" about which Mrs. Low was speaking was the Girl Scout movement.

She and the friend started the first Girl Scout troop in America, and the movement soon caught on with the public.

During the 50 years of existence, it is estimated by leaders that more than 18.5 million girls have been members.

National membership presently is more than 3.5 million.

Many of the Girl couts of yesteryear are now leaders for the Scouts.

On the council basis, the Silver Waters membership is presently 1,559 girls and 352 adults. These are in the 11 parishes, East Carroll, West Carroll, Morehouse, Union, Ouachita, Jackson, Caldwell, Franklin, Tensas, Madison and Richland.

Prior to the 1956 organization of the Silver Waters Council, only Ouachita Parish had a council of any recognition. However, there were several lone, or non - affiliated, troops in the outlying areas. The Ouachita council had been organized in 1944 and was in continuous operation until its dissolution and incorporation with the the Silver Waters group.

NAME

The name of the council was submitted by Mrs. O. N. Reynolds of Synope Plantation, Columbia, one of the authorites on history of the area and civic and cultural leader of Caldwell Parish. Mrs. Reynolds, in studying the region's history, had found that DeSoto in his recollections was quoted as calling the area between the Ouachita and Mississippi Rivers "the land of silver waters."

Several other names were considered, but the Silver Waters label was finally decided upon and accepted.

Presently there are 87 troops throughout the area, along with the adult volunteers who serve as leaders, troop committee members, neighborhood service teams, consultants, camp leaders and board members.

Coordinating the work of the council is a professional staff consisting of Mrs. Helen Alexander, executive director, and Miss Annis Klie, district advisor.

One of the projects being accepted nationally and locally by girl scouts this year is the planting of yellow flowers, symbolizing the Golden Anniversary.

A yellow florabunda rose, appropriately named the Girl Scout Rose, has been planted by a number of local growers. Seed of a dwarf marigold, developed especially for the anniversary and named the Brownie Scout marigold, is available at local seed stores.

Many troops planted bulbs of yellow flowers in the fall at schools and meeting places.

The big national event of the senior roundup is to be held at Button Bay, Vermont, in July. Approximately 10,000 girls and staff members will attend the encampment from every state and many foreign countries.

The Silver Waters council will be representend by a patrol of eight girls, Jane Edwards, Milan Gannaway, Dianne Halley, Becky Middleton, Deas Parrish, Gayle Smith, Barbara Suomi and Mickie Varnado.

Selected patrol leader was Deas Parrish, while Miss Varnado will serve as assistant.

PRACTICING

The group is practicing out-of-doors skills, and making travel plans under the direction of Mrs. Charles Overton, roundup trainer.

Purpose of the round - up is to improve the program in troops and camps throughout the country.

The alternate patrol to the round - up is composed of Jateen Kelly, and Mary Einhorn, both of West Monroe, Mary Beth Roberts and Linda Upshaw, both of Farmerville, and Robbie Hicks, Elaine Butler, Carole Overton and Carole Culpepper, all of Monroe.

The Girl Scout camp "Pinewood," is on the Ouachita River north of Monroe, near the Ouachita City site. It was built 11 years ago through the efforts of local civic clubs and interested individuals.

During last summer 270 girls participated in stays, overnight or longer, at the camp. There were two 10 - day day camps for the Intermediate and Senior girls, with 406 total participation.

The principal need of the council, officials pointed out, is the establishment of a permanent camp where summer sessions could be held without interference. However, the scarcity of land, and the high costs, make this almost prohibitive.

In addition to Mrs. Stone, other officers are Mrs. C. W. Overton, vice - president; Mrs. Courtland McCoy, vice - president; Mrs. Burl Franklin, secretreasurer.

Members of the board of directors at large are Derwood Cann, Mrs. D. V. Loflin, Mrs. W. H. McKelvey, Jr., Mrs. Leonard M. Jones, Jonesboro, Mrs. J. T. Spencer, Farmerville, Mrs. J A. Faucett, Mrs. Robert Easterling, Mrs. S. C. Strausser, A. C. Polk, J. R. Plaisance, and Ray Day, Bastrop.

Serving on the nominating committee were Mrs. B. F. Pate, Mrs. Bill Birchhead, Mrs. Malcolm Smith, Mrs. Henry Mayo Jr., and Mrs. Clinton Langley.

Confidence Man Recalls Several Of His Shadiest Deals

EDITOR'S NOTE — You've heard of the man who sold the Brooklyn Bridge. Well, Sulun (the Pheasant) Osman has sold its Turkish equivalent and more. Now, Osman says he has retired from the confidence game and, a bit wistfully, he tells about some of his biggest sales.

By GARVEN HUDGINS

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Naive visitors from Turkey's rural provinces may not be aware of it but their pocketbooks are safer in Istanbul now.

Sulun (the Pheasant) Osman says he's going straight.

Osman, who has spent most of his 47 years dodging cops or expiating his sins, has an unerring eye for the sucker.

To prove it, he can point to temporarily satisfied customers who have purchased from him such landmarks as the ancient Galata Bridge across the Golden Horn; a shiny, red streetcar belonging to the Istanbul Surface Transport Co. and the observatory at Istanbul University.

This is roughly equivalent to such American transactions as the sale of the Brooklyn Bridge or a New York Subway train or the Empire State Building.

"At least 60 per cent of the people I see have full pockets and empty brains," says Osman. "These made up my customers. I could sell them anything."

Now a familiar figure to police who keep a watchful eye on him, the Pheasant says he has had enough.

"In all, I've spent 16 years, nine months and 10 days in prison," he recalls. "I am trying to start a business now as a shop owner. I have my wife and four children and I would like to make a success of this."

ASSISTED

To help him get going in his new venture as proprietor of a wine and liquor shop, Istanbul newspapermen — and even some friendly cops—have chipped in from time to time.

Gone are the plush days when he could sell the Galata Bridge for $2,000, a street car for $1,000 or a public building for a quick $500.

His black eyes light up as he calls to mind his greatest sale.

"I'll never forget it. I waited around the train station all day, looking for a country trader to show up," he recalls, adding:

"Finally, I spotted my man. He obviously had full pokcets and he certainly came from Anatolia (Turkey's rural interior).

APPROACH

"First, I went up and asked him what time he had. When he looked at his watch and told me, I asked him if he came from Anatolia. Then we talked about Anatolian towns we both knew. Then I asked him to have a drink. In a half hour, we were the best of friends. He asked me what business I was in. I told him I was making a fortune in streetcars.

"Just as I thought, he asked to see one of my streetcars. I led him outside and we got on a tram passing near the train station. The conductor didn't ask for tickets because I signaled one of my men to get on ahead of us and buy all three tickets.

"I explained to this man what a wonderful business this was. I told him on a good day, you could take in as much as $2,000. He watched passengers handing over fares for a little while, then asked if I would be interested in selling one of my cars."

Osman's single upper tooth shows as he smiles in recollection.

"If I'm going to sell something, I don't like to give my man a chance to think it over. Business should be done at high speed. So I sealed the deal for the street car then and there for 10,000 lira ($1,000).

"I heard later that, after I got off the car, the new owner ordered the conductor to park the streetcar in front of his hotel. That's when it all came out in the open, I guess."

Osman's biggest financial success was the sale of the Galata Bridge. He sold his customer with a story that all auto and pedestrian traffic across the old bridge brought in tolls.

The customer bit on the bait, handed over his money and proceeded at once to one end of the bridge where he set up a collection box. In the ensuing traffic jam, police were summoned. They arrested both the customer and Osman.

Osman got his nickname, the Pheasant, from his ability to break out of prison. He escaped at least a half-dozen times and once boasted of his ability in a poem he left on his cell wall behind him.

"The poem mocked the police," he recalls. "When they recaptured me, they made me lick the poem from the wall. It was the last time I wrote poetry."

Osman's salesmanship failed him once when he was unable to clinch a deal with another Anatolian trader to whom he offered the entire Istanbul University campus for 50,000 lira ($5,000).

"I had to settle for the observatory tower at 5,000 lira ($500)," he says. "Still, I left that trader with only 100 lira ($10.00) in his pocket."

One Istanbul police captain recalls he awoke from a Sunday nap in his home one day to hear Osman outside trying to sell the house to an Anatolian produce merchant.

"I ran outside at once the captain recalls, "but Osman told me he was only joking."

Finale Of Scollay Square

BOSTON (AP)—Proper Boston is standing death watch over an aged and roguish black sheep relative.

Brazen Scollay Square, long the stamping grounds of millions of seamen and servicemen, is breathing its last raspy breaths.

Soon the burlesque theater, the cafes and their come-on girls, the tattoo studios, the penny arcade, the hamburger joints will be reduced to rubble and carted away.

In their places will rise a stately and respectable, but far less interesting, government center, housing federal, state, county and city officers with approaches of flowers and tree-lined malls.

By summer, it is expected that building wreckers will have succeeded where a generation of professional reformers have failed.

Old Scollay is going out like an aging roue, exhausted by years of revel. It was once gay, daring and clamorous. Its heyday came during World War II when frolicking sailors, soldiers, Marines and merchant seamen gathered by the thousands.

Those were the days when platinum blonde Sally Keith, the undisputed queen of Scollay Square, reigned on the stage of the main bar at the Crawford House

Aficionadoes around the world remember how she used to come on stage in a brief costume from which hung four tassels, two fore and two aft. Then she'd go into her gyrations which, appreciative customers four or five feet deep at the bar would avow, recalled a B50 bomber about to take off.

Miss Keith, daughter of a Chicago policeman, held sway over Scollay Square for 10 years despite tough competition from the lovelies who played the two burlesque houses nearby.

One of them was the famed Old Howard, which was in its 110th consecutive year as a theater when it closed down a few years ago. Later a fire left only its thick exterior walls standing.

Already the wreckers have begun to attack its sturdy granite front and the cathedral-like stained glass windows — reminders of its brief career as a church in the 1840s.

Patriotism Not Gone

The days of flag-waving patriotism are not completely gone. America's newest and probably greatest hero, Lt. Col. John H. Glenn, Jr., in his address before a joint session of Congress, gave out with patriotic oratory about flag and country that hasn't been equalled since Patrick Henry's version in the Virginia House of Burgesses.

"This has been a great experience for all of us present and for all Americans, of course, and I am certainly glad to see that pride in our country and its accomplishments is not a thing of the past. I still get a hard-to-define feeling when the flag goes by — and I know that all of you do, too. Today, as we rode up Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House and saw the tremendous outpouring of feeling on the part of so many thousands of our people I got this same feeling all over again. Let us hope that none of us ever loses it," the astronaut told the assembled Congressmen.

Colonel Glenn had better be careful. He is in danger of becoming a super-patriot or at least a right-wing extremist. This sort of feeling of love for the United States and its national ensign is not popular among the Harvard set on Capitol Hill. The colonel's attitude will not go over well with the "no win" boys in charge of policy in this country.

Colonel Glenn's speech apparently had not undergone the blue-pencil treatment that other military leaders' public utterances are now receiving. This type of basic appeal to patriotic Americanism is counter to New Frontierism. One world internationalists will be cringing in their corners from such outbursts. And, of course, Colonel Glenn is today the most popular American alive. They will hesitate to say or do anything to stir public resentment — anything unfavorable toward him would be viewed just that way.

He has been touted for a possible "good-will" tour. That will undoubtedly be dropped in a hurry. The Brothers Kennedy can't have a man with the personal popularity of Colonel Glenn running about the countryside telling people he gets a "hard-to-define feeling inside" over the flag. What will people think?

Certainly the "no win'ers" in the State Department and the Pentagon were shocked to hear the man of the hour make such unpolicy-like pronouncements in the halls of Congress, and out of the range of their "muzzles" at that, but they won't be dismayed to the point of giving up. It will be interesting to follow Colonel Glenn's personal military career from now on to determine what effect his speech will have. And if it has any effect but good, then the people must speak. Patriots and patriotism are too hard to find in these days of anti-nationalist leadership in the United States. Colonel Glenn should get all the encouragement possible to continue in this line.

Our Favorite Monsters

Two favorite monsters have been capturing the imagination of people all over the world for more than half a century. They are the Abominable Snow Man, said to have been seen on many occasions in the Himalayan mountains in Tibet, and the Loch Ness Monster in Loch Ness, bordering on Scotland.

Anything anyone else claims, the Russians will claim also. Since Siberia abounds in snow and almost any kind of imaginary creature can be seen there, especially when one is dazzled with snow blindness, it is little wonder that Russians occasionally have reported seeing "things" resembling the Abominable Snow Man.

Now the Russians are trying to horn in on the Loch Ness Monster. If the Soviet Union were more cooperative in international affairs, the Scots, especially those around Loch Ness, could sue for infringement of copyright or something like that.

In a broadcast monitored in London, Radio Moscow recently said a Soviet zoologist and a team of prospectors saw a 40-foot monster swimming in Laba Kul, a lake on a remote part of Eastern Siberia.

The broadcast said the prospectors climbed a cliff and watched the monster draw near shore. Its head was said to have been more than six feet long, the eyes wide apart and the body more than 30 feet long. It had something like a fin, traveled in spurts and made a lot of foam. It finally dived and was seen no more.

It is just about the last straw for Russia to get into the monster business, especially when tourist trade in remote Siberia is almost non-existent.

The prospectors reported further that the Laba Kul creature gobbles up dogs that go into the water and chases fishermen on occasion.

While this Laba Kul Monster may be as real as the Abominable Snow Man, we like the story of the Loch Ness Monster better.

The Soviet Monster story may indicate that the government's efforts to make the people cut down on the consumption of Vodka may not have succeeded. Vodka should produce a monster even superior to any seen by the people whose favl orite spirit is Scotch.

Formerly wierd stories started with "once upon a time," so we will tell one here that starts that way.

Once upon a time several people were standing on Johnson's Landing on Caddo Lake, some 18 miles from Marshall, Tex., and not too many more miles than that from Shreveport. It was a time when the water was getting high but, downstream, across from the landing, back in the trees, were a few knolls that had not yet gone under water.

"Look at that!" some one cried suddenly. There, emerging from the water in the woods was what appeared to be a creature 30 to 40 feet long. As it swam toward the side on which the people were standing it was almost submerged but what looked to be rough joints of a huge backbone were easily visible as they rippled and glided through the water. The nearer to shore the creature came the more terrifying it looked. The creature was somewhat downstream from the people and they were afraid to approach it. Finally, it reached shore and began crawling out. Instead of a single huge head, it had many heads.

What was this monster? It was simply a herd of hogs which had swum single-file across the lake to escape from the submerging knolls of land. So terrified were some of the people, however, that they suggested these might be the swine into which the demons had gone when they were cast out of the man who rent his clothes in Biblical times.

It might have been something like this that the Russians saw — possibly a herd of moose.

Even so, we have grave misgivings that the Russians may call their creature "The Lochski Nesski Monsterovich."

The seated figure of Lincoln at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington is 19 feet high. It was carved from Georgia marble by the late Daniel Chester French. The statue is comprised of 28 blocks, fitted so perfectly they seem to be a single piece of stone.

The Temple of Diana at Epheses, 35 miles from Izmir, Turkey, was one of the seven wonders of the world.

Appreciates Letter

WASHINGTON

To the Editor:

Thank you sincerely for your gracious and encouraging letter of February 21. I was also inspired and gratified by the splendid editorial which you wrote under the heading of, "Frightening Aspects of Urban Affairs." In fact, I was so much impressed by that good editorial I am placing it in the Congressional Record during one of our next sessions of the Senate.

I am also sending a thermofax of your fine editorial to Mr. John F. Rau, Jr., a State Legislator from Jefferson Parish, Louisiana, who tells me he is trying to do something about these Electoral College problems through your own State Legislature.

From the enclosed booklet you will note that both he and I agree that one of the big reasons why the destiny of America has been shifting from the control of the people to the control of the politicians stems from serious deficiencies in the manner in which our Electoral College now operates.

We certainly had a great victory last week on both the Senate and House side when we emphatically rejected the President's proposal to establish a Department of Urban Affairs by executive action. You can bet your bottom dollar, however, that the "liberals" of America will bring this program back in the next Congress and the next and the next so it is important that we all continue to inform our fellow citizens of the undesirable aspects of such moves.

I had a most enjoyable visit to Monroe and came away convinced you are living in a most progressive and promising community in America. Power to your hand.

With best wishes and kindest regards, I am Cordially yours,

KARL E. MUNDT, U.S.S.

Praises Passman

Monroe, La.

Hon. Otto E. Passman
Member of Congress
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Passman:

I wish to thank you and congratulate you for your untiring and constant effort to keep our nation from complete bankruptcy during the present regime of those who seem to be working overtime to assist Krushchev in carrying out his threat to make us spend ourselves out of business.

One of Krushchev's most recent schemes to promote us, or, rather the boys in Washington, into spending some of our billions is that of building fallout shelters. The shelter that we need first is one to prevent our fallout at Ft. Knox which is being shot into space by the 'Big Missile Guns' in Washington.

About twenty five years ago our dollar was worth almost 100 cents and today it is worth less than 34 cents. If something is not done to control those give-away boys in Washington, how soon will it be that our our dollar will not be worth anything? Inflation is driving many progressive businesses out of business every day.

Kennedy's apparent success within the Congress to promote Socialism and their approval to continue giving our money to our enemies is surprising and appalling to true Americans. He is also planning to impose more taxes on us to replenish the money bag and seek other avenues to give that away. One of these avenues, no doubt in his mind, is to send billions to the people on the Moon as soon as we can make that most unas we make contact there, we will make another enemy which will be looking to Washington for the usual hand-out which they can't even spend there. And certainly they would not care to come here to spend it. It is too bad that every citizen in all the other states could not impress upon their Congressmen the importance of our survival by insisting that they, too, fight as hard as you do to preserve that which we all desire and deserve most.

While on the subject of the Moon — it should be possible that little brother, Bobby Sox Robert, be shot to the Moon. Seems that he likes to travel so much at our expense. And while there he could take care of the many details that would follow later. He could take care of his pet laws such as integration, Non Civil Rights and etcetra. Could be possible that he would like it well enough to stay there.

The six foreign countries that I have visited some of them had received a Dole from us and looked down their noses at us and despised us. We were hijacked on every purchase that we made. Those who were independent and received nothing from us were cooperative and glad ot have us. This attitude is also prevelant right here at home with our Dole system.

Keep the good work up, Otto, and I trust and pray that you will soon have enough aid from other colleagues to develope a team that can whitewash the evil team which is so much opposed to you.

Sincerely your,

W. B. "BILL" JACKSON

WASHINGTON SHORTS

DIPLOMATIC WEAPON — Dr. William Walsh, head of the People to People Health Foundation, received a letter from the Nokomis Grandmothers' Club of La Crosse, Wis., asking how the club could contribute to the S. S. Hope, the relief ship. Dr. Walsh replied: "Our personnel who served during the past year in Southeast Asia many times felt that a fly swatter would be the most useful piece of equipment they could have. We believe that we would find use for them again on our next mission, which will be to Latin America." The Grandmothers' Club immediately sent 36 fly swatters to the S. S. Hope.

DE GAULLE REACTION — Violent exceptions by French President de Gaulle to some of the statements made by President Kennedy in his interview with Premier Khrushchev's son-in-law, who is the editor of Izvestia, deeply surprised Kennedy. An especial shocker was de Gaulle's reported feeling that "another Yalta" seems imminent with Khrushchev holding the winning hand as Stalin did at Yalta. De Gaulle also is regarded as feeling that recent claims by Administration men that West is winning the cold war are ridiculous. Differences between Kennedy and de Gaulle apparently are deepening rather than growing less.

FIGHT FOR WHIP — Only real unsettled portion of House hierachy question is whether Representative Richard Bolling of Missouri, or Representative Hale Boggs of Louisiana, will be chosen Whip, which may have its designation changed to "Assistant Leader." John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, is in like Flynn for Speaker. Ditto Carl Albert of Oklahoma, for Leader. Administration may ask for Boggs to get out of Whip race and assume the leadership for Administration tax and tariff bills in House. It's no secret President Kennedy would like to have seen Bolling take over from Rayburn as Speaker, or at least win Leadership. But both McCormack and Albert had unbeatable leads.

FRINGE BENEFIT — People who pass and admire Washington's beautiful National Cathedral were surprised recently to discover what appeared to be a hut perched on the top of the huge structure. It turned out that workmen at the Cathedral, under construction since 1906 and not scheduled for completion for many years, now are completing its main spire and sections of the roof. Since there are no elevators, countless man-hours would have been lost if workmen had to travel to the ground level to wash their hands. So a huge crane was moved in to install this unique wash room atop the Cathedral.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U. S. Senator From Arizona

President Kennedy sought congressional authority on February 26 to more than double the size of the Peace Corps.

It is not my intention to indulge in any speculation regarding the effectiveness of the Peace Corpsmen. I'm sure we all are hopeful these young volunteers will be able to make an effective contribution to a better understanding of the American ideals and aspirations among the people in the countries where they serve.

My point in mentioning this increase is to call your attention to the almost inevitable increase and expansion of every new governmental department or bureau.

Over the past 25 years, dozens of small beginnings have developed into expensive and elaborate establishments.

The President's suggested bill calls for 6700 volunteers in the field by June, 1963, compared with the present personnel of 2400. To make possible this increase, it will, according to the President's estimates, be necessary to provide $63.75 million for fiscal 1963. This is an increase of $33.75 million over the amount Congress appropriated for fiscal 1962, more than 100 per cent increase.

There will be many voices who will argue that $63 million for a nation possessing the wealth of the United States is a relatively unimportant amount of money. This contention may or may not be valid, but we cannot escape the fact that every increase in federal spending adds to the tax burden, increases the possibility of deficit spending and exerts an almost irresistible pressure for more inflation.

Parkinson's law, which is treated humorously by many observers, is certainly operating in this instance. If the Congress supports the President's request, it will mean that this single new agency will require almost $64 million for fiscal '63. When we consider the increases requested for the space race, military spending and a multitude of domestic programs, it becomes necessary to consider the total demand of the federal government.

When the Peace Corps was first established as an experiemnt in world public relations, a number of us predicted that its small beginning would be rapidly expanded and that the bill handed to the U. S. taxpayer would inevitably double and triple.

I'm sure that every wage earner in the United States has aspirations to purchase a number of good and desirable things which are now beyond his economic reach. Individuals are limited in the amount they can spend by the amount they earn. The present philosophy of the federal government administrators reverses this. When they have decided what they would like to spend, they then determine how much they are going to collect. The Peace Corps may be an excellent productive operation, but there are probably many other equally desirable programs which might be implemented if the federal government had unlimited funds.

It seems to me this more than doubling the budget request clearly demonstrates the almost irresistible growth of bureaus and agencies and requires the Congress and the people to put on the brakes before we find ourselves completely bankrupt.

How do you stand, sir?

GEORGE SOKOLSKY

State Department

Too Many People, So That Only Drones Have Time To Think

Stewart Alsop has performed a solid service by writing an informative article on the State Department which was published in "The Saturday Evening Post."

The State Department has always been attacked for its own sins and for those of others in the government and I must admit that I have done as much complaining as anyone. In the Cuban situation it was clear to me that two Presidents, two Secretaries of State and at least one Under-Secretary were not properly and adequately informed, by their subordinates, as to what was going on. During the 1945-1958 period, it was clear that the top officials of our country were babes in the woods concerning China and much of what they then said has by now been proved to be untrue. It was an unfortunate situation but it then indicated that the machinery for gathering, evaluating and moving information forward was faulty.

Stewart Alsop is more objective in his analysis than most of us have been. He has discussed this matter with the present Secretary of State and with two previous ones and has come up with these conclusions:

"First, there are too many people in (the State Department).

"Second, partly for this reason, the department produces too many 'waffle papers' . . . and too few clear, clean and rapid policy decisions.

"Third, partly because there are so many people producing so many waffle papers, nobody — except the drones — has enough time to think.

"Fourth, for understandable reasons, the career Foreign Service tends to put a greater premium on avoiding mistakes than on bold and original thinking about foreign policy.

"Fifth, our ambassadors abroad do not have enough independent authority and prestige. As one ambassador remarked to me in Africa, 'I have to ask Washington for permission every time I want to go to the bathroom.'

"Sixth, too many departments and agencies have got into the foreign-policy act, thus weakening the State Department's authority."

All of this is absolutely correct, but can it be cured? Difficulties are insuperable. The excessive staff and the deadwood in the State Department are there because under the Foreign Service Act and the Civil Service Act and the Veterans Acts it is practically impossible to fire anybody.

One solution might be to abolish the Department and start all over again. This is, of course, absurd and impossible but even a blizzard has to be cleared away and when men are buried in paper, it does something to clear an opening.

It would seem that every young man who comes in to sit at a desk feels that he is already a great authority, that he has read the literature and the papers and knows the subject as the Secretary of State or even the President cannot. So he is already a policy-maker and he finds other young policy-makers who can together work out policy — which could, as it has done about both China and Cuba, plague the nation for decades.

They remind me of a business man who was touring the world and whom I met in Shanghai and we were having a good time. Suddenly, he was like one demented. He said that he had built up an enormous business and had a product, the brand name of which was known to all, which was then true; that he had a son whom he had educated in several universities as a chemist; that the reason his product was successful was that he carefully took out of it an ingredient which tended to grow rancid; that his brilliant, trained chemist son had decided that this slow, costly step was inefficient. So he said, the business would be killed. It was.

The fault to which I point is lack of discipline in the State Department. The fellow who hides reports or who delays them should be fired no matter who wants to protect him. The blabber-mouth should be fired. The security risk need not be a Communist; he might be a fellow who gets drunk at parties; he should be fired on charges. If a managerial under-secretary really went after it, he could do much. Competent men would not be frightened and the Department will survive.

There is much more in Alsop's article to discuss and those who are interested would do well to read it.

Today is Sunday, March 11th, the 70th day of the year with 295 to follow in 1962.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning star is Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1861, delegates to the Confederate Congress meeting at Montgomery, Ala., adopted the Constitution of the Confederacy.

In 1941, President Roosevelt signed into law the hotly debated lend - lease bill, providing the transfer of specified military equipment to nations at war with the axis.

In 1942, Gen Douglas MacArthur and a party of 20 aides left Bataan in four torpedo boats on the first lap of their trip to Australia.

In 1959, the U.S. Senate approved Hawaii as the 50th state.

A thought for the day: Sir Winston Churchill said: "I cannot forecast to you the action of Russia. It is a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma."

BRINKMANSHIP IN AFRICA

Ruler Of Ghana Is Past Master

By ROBERT N. LINDSAY

ACCRA, Ghana (AP)—Kwame Nkrumah, the master of Ghana, has emerged as Africa's most dexterous practitioner of brinkmanship. He threads his way along the edges of communism, occasionally getting so close that some people are sure he is going over. Then he pulls back.

This week, as Ghana celebrated the fifth anniversary of its independence, the country was moving closer to socialism — Nkrumah's brand of socialism. He seems to be succeeding in scaring away the private investments that the country could use to develop itself.

Nkrumah often takes the Soviet line in international affairs, and yet does business mainly with the West. The people of Ghana, fed a continuing stream of love-that-man propaganda, hail Nkrumah as "Osagyefo," meaning redeemer or savior.

He rides roughshod over opponents.

500 IN JAIL

For opposing the government, over 500 Ghanaians are in jail, without trial and with no right of appeal. There is little to support government leaders' charges that some of those detained were plotting to assassinate Nkrumah and overthrow his government.

About 40 of those in jail have been there three years or more.

Held since October is a veteran lawyer, Joseph Danquah, ousted from nationalist leadership by young Nkrumah during the robust days of Ghana's struggle for independence from British rule. Danquah has a wife and family, but is allowed no visitors. He can send one letter a month, subject to censorship.

The West has leaned over backwards to help Ghana. The United States has promised missions in financial and economic aid. Britain isn't far behind. There are 50 American Peace Corps teachers in 31 high schools. American agriculturists are training farmers and developing what seems likely to be a highly successful rubber plantation industry. Other Americans are helping to establish a medical training institute. Canada and West Germany are helping with technical aid. Britons and Canadians are training Ghana's defense forces.

Ghana's trade with the West, currently about 95 per cent of the total, will continue at about 85 per cent even under recent negotiations with the East bloc. In the first 10 months of last year Ghana exported to America $73 million worth of goods against $40 million in the same period of 1960. Imports in the same periods rose from $16 million to $29 millions. Ghana exports cocoa and minerals; imports food, textiles, oil and machinery.

Eastern bloc countries have agreed on $280 million in credits, mostly over a 10-20 year period. About all Eastern countries have done so far in a practical way, however, is to send in technicians to make studies.

Indications are that the East's main infiltration will be in the economic field, with emphasis on developing Ghanaian industries. These are projects the West normally would leave to private enterprise. But Ghana's balance of payments position and her shortage of foreign exchange scare foreign investors. So does a budget deficit that rose from $3.6 million in the first year of independence to $17.8 million in 1960. Socialist-minded Ghana doesn't welcome foreign investors anyway.

Ghanaians are a proud and sturdy people who wear their flashy toga-style national costumes with great aplomb. Ask any Ghanaian what Nkrumah's leadership has meant and he is apt to recite a string of achievements.

One was in getting financing for the $196-million Volta River project. This is to bring cheap power for industrial development and electricity for towns and villages. It will create one of the world's largest man-made lakes with possibilities of cheap transportation, fishing and irrigation. Promised World Bank and U.S. aid for the Volta project totals $84 million; $96 million more is coming from American sources for an aluminum smelter associated with the Volta scheme.

The $75-million Tema Harbor development has given Ghana a modern port near Accra. There also have been a great expansion of education, health and medical services, greatly improved roads, and a profitable merchant fleet.

Ghanaians are not so likely to mention heavy losses last year by the state-owned airline, one of Africa's greatest white elephants. Nkrumah was talked into buying a fleet of Soviet aircraft. They are standing idle because they were unsuited to African traffic conditions.

His seven million people in general continue to worship Nkrumah as the great liberator and freedom fighter, not only for Ghanaians but for Africans everywhere. To many he can do no wrong. They may eke out a bare living in the tropical heat, but they see nothing out of place in their president's $50,000 annual emolument plus a free official residence maintained in great state, a country lodge and four Rolls-Royce cars.

Defense expenditures have doubled in the last two years, but still cost slightly less than a tenth of the annual budget. The defense forces seem intended to strengthen Ghana's position in Africa and perhaps to throw some weight in another direction—the campaign for freedom, as Ghanaians see it, in such places as Angola and South West Africa.

Hard-headed people in nearby countries show doubt about Ghana's future when they refuse to accept Ghana money in trading. By contrast, Nigerian money is readily accepted anywhere in Africa.

Even so, Westerners in Ghana agree that the country is not broke yet. But they expect that Nkrumah, who is 52, will have plenty of chances in the future to ideological brinkmanship.

Tour By First Lady Outlined By Officials

NEW DELHI (AP) — "America?"

The child sitting in the hospital bed looked perplexed. He knew nothing of the United States or its President—or its First Lady.

Tarlochan Singh, 11, said shyly he was only in the fourth grade.

Next Tuesday Mrs. John F. Kennedy will visit the hospital ward where he is critically ill with leukemia.

Next door in the children's ward of the All-India Medical Institute, Rajender lies in bed with useless legs. A bright smiling girl, she knows about Mrs. Kennedy and says she is looking forward to seeing her.

Few Indians are as well informed. For most the United States is an unknown country. Tales of its First Lady have not penetrated to 558,000 villages little changed by the ages. Many things Mrs. Kennedy will see on her visit to India and Pakistan are little changed since before the United States was founded.

When Mrs. Kennedy leaves New Delhi Thursday her visit becomes mainly a tour of ancient splendors.

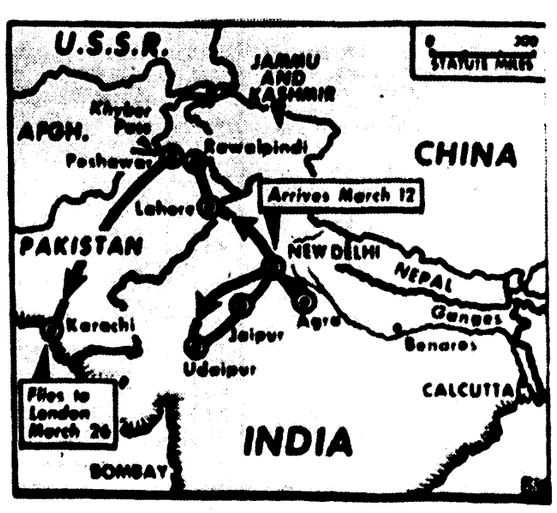
The first is Fatehpur Sikri, an intricately carved city of red sandstone, built almost 400 years ago by Moghul Emperor Akbar and abandoned to the desert when the water supply failed.

Then to nearby Agra and the famed monument to a deeply loved wife—the Taj Mahal.

Mrs. Kennedy will see it in sunlight and return by the half moon's light to see the white marble tomb built by the Emperor Shah Jahan in the 17th century.

She then flies to Udaipur, a palaced city hidden in the mountains behind the Rajasthan Desert to protect its Hindu rulers from Moslems like Akbar and Shah Jahan.

The Maharana of Udaipur—his title is a variation on the usual maharaja but means the same thing—traces his ancestry several thousand years and lives in a white marble palace overlooking a lake.



THIS MAP indicates part of the tour Mrs. John Kennedy will make during her current visits to various parts of the world. (AP Wirephoto Map).

Fitzgerald Is Alive In Biography

SCOTT FITZGERALD. BY Andrew Trumbull. Scribners. $5.95.

In retrospect, the Jazz Age seems incredibly naive and sophomoric. And Fitzgerald, a gifted but incurable sophomore who long has been the personification of that foolish time of "making whoopee," is a pretty tragic figure.

He was the small town boy who hitched his wagon to two stars in different parts of the heavens — he was awed by the rich, and he wished he could write real literature.

In that respect he was a little like Sinclair Lewis. They wanted to write undying classics, but at the same time they wanted to make millions out of best sellers. But whereas Lewis was a satirist, basically, who admired and finally became like his victims, Fitzgerald had a real lyric gift for treating tender moments in the human experience.

Trumbull's biography passes one of the major tests — it makes the man come alive. He has had the good sense not to gloss over Fitzgerald's weaknesses, but he has not been sloppy about them. He gives a thorough account of Fitzgerald's unfortunate marriage to the psychotic Zelda, but he leaves it up to the reader to speculate whether marriage to a sane and wholesome woman might have provided at least a partial balance to Fitzgerald's own flaws.

He has not attempted to offer a critical study, yet he has shown how Fitzgerald's own traits affected the things he wrote about, how his inability to stand failure and his equally strong failure to measure up to success led to his crackup.

Exploring Dark Spot Of History

MASSACRE AT MONTSEGUR. BY Zoe Oldenbourg. Pantheon. $6.95.

In the early years of the 13th Century, the splendid civilization of the Provence, in southern France, was destroyed by fire and sword in the prolonged agony of the Albigensian crusade.

It was a moral tragedy, involving the medieval church, the French monarchy, the counts of Toulouse and the heretics they protected, and the legion of innocents who regularly perish when great matters are decided by violence.

The story of this savage war, which started as a crusade but rapidly degenerated into a campaign of conquest by the northern nobility against the Languedoc, is ably told by Miss Oldenbourg, a historical novelist of note, in her first purely historical work.

Those who prefer their historians dispassionate will have some cause for objection. Miss Oldenbourg's sympathies are all on the side of the Albigensians, or, more properly Cathars who aroused the concern and then the repressions of the church in league with the secular lords.

Not much is known about Cathar doctrines and practices except through their enemies. Their outlook was dualistic; they thought the world created by evil, forever warring with God; they opposed procreation, marriage, family; they did not believe in eternal punishment, war or capital punishment; they were united in their abhorrence of the church.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Dance And Drama Take Stage Center

By JOHN CALE

Following a week of musical theatre — a live musical comedy and a filmed opera — the scale of events turns towards dance and drama.

Jose Greco and his company of Spanish dancers are slated for a Monroe appearance Tuesday at Neville Auditorium under the auspices of the Northeast Concerts Association. Curtain time for the attraction is 8:15 p.m.

Following last week's successful one-night presentation of "The Music Man," the dance troop is the second big name to appear on the Northeast series within a week. Still remaining is "A Thurber Carnival," starring Imogene Coca and Arthur Treacher which is due here April 14.

ON STAGE

Not one, but two plays from the era of Queen Elizabeth will go on stage at Louisiana Tech this weekend. Already scheduled was Friday night's English version of Schiller's "Mary Stuart," starring Faye Emerson and Eva Le Gallienne. This production is for all Tech Concert series membership holders.

Now comes word that the same company will remain in Ruston Saturday for a box office presentation of Maxwell Anderson's award winning play, "Elizabeth the Queen."

According to Morton Langbord, representative of the American National Theatre Association managing the tour of the productions, the latter play was made into a movie some years ago which featured Errol Flynn and Bette Davis. The title of the film version was "Elizabeth and Essex." When an extra date came available, the company decided to hold over at Ruston an extra day to perform its second play built around Queen Elizabeth I. In both productions, Eva Le Gallienne plays the part of Elizabeth. In the Friday feature, Faye Emerson takes the part of Mary, Queen of Scotts, and on Saturday she plays the role of a leading lady in waiting.

BOOSTING ART

A recent announcement from New Orleans revealed an intensive look at the fine arts in the Tulane Closeup telecast series. The series, telecast over station WDSU-TV in the Crescent City opened last Sunday with a discussion of light and dark areas in the paintings of the Italian master Caravaggio. Featured was the painting, "Seen Not Heard: The Calling of St. Matthew."

Today at 4:30 p.m., the series continues with a study of Eastern art; next week features location filming of a heretofore unexplored site of the ancient Mayan civilization at Dzibilchaltun; March 25, the story of New Orleans' development as a city, and April 1, a pictorial essay dealing with the process of creating art.

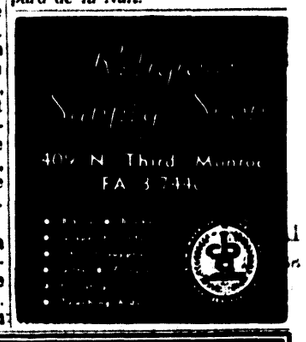
The series will run on 50 television stations throughout the United States and on all Mexican stations with a Spanish language soundtrack.

IN REVIEW

In reviewing the debut recital of a young Los Angeles pianist, Joy Pottle, New York Times critic, Alan Rich, managed some writing skill which rates a corner in this column on the performing arts.

Down in paragraph 5, the alert critic took note of a certain accessory to the fact as follows:

"Miss Pottle showed her mettle during Bartok's "Out of Doors" suite, when an inebriated listner in the balcony began a speech between the fourth and fifth movements. Not at all rattled, the pianist drowned him out with a brilliant flood of sound, consistent with the way in which she had performed the previous sections. The speechmaker was ushered to an out of doors other than the one listed on the program. The concert ended with Ravel's "Gaspard de la Nuit."



AT DISARMAMENT

Another Try This Week At Geneva

GENEVA (AP)—Here in peaceful Geneva 17 nations will make a new try Wednesday to find the key that has eluded mankind through the centuries: A way to strip the world of its weapons.

A bleak and unbroken record of failure will hang over the delegates. They know their chances for a breakthrough are slim. Yet they must negotiate with the hope that some stray beam of light will disclose the road to mutual trust.

It is officially a meeting of the U. N. Disarmament Committee, set up by the General Assembly of the United Nations.

Members are: West—United States, Britain, Canada, Italy. East — Soviet Union, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Romania. Others—Brazil, Burma, Ethiopia, India, Mexico, Nigeria, Sweden, United Arab Republic.

France also belongs to the committee, but pulled out of this meeting, saying in effect it had no hope such a large conference could find even partial solutions to the disarmament question.

Like actors in some endless play, the delegates convene with brief cases bulging with papers, their speeches nicely polished. The phrases can be predicted. Opening statements will stress the danger humanity faces and call for an end to the arms race.

Why, if all say they seek the same goals, are the prospects so slight of making any real start toward disarmament?

The stakes involved are high. The subject itself is dizzily complex. A great nation could kill itself off by making a faulty judgment in the field of arms control.

John Foster Dulles always stressed his own belief in disarmament but once told newsmen, "Maybe the human race missed its best chance to end the arms race back in the bow and arrow days. Every weapon improvement has made the problem more like a nightmare."

Even a workable agreement simply banning further nuclear tests would rank as a tremendous diplomatic achievement. Such a pact presumably would be easier to achieve than a massive treaty covering the whole field of general and complete disarmament.

There seems little hope for that, either.

To test the temperature on nuclear testing, the U. S. and British foreign secretaries, Dean Rusk and Lord Home, will get together with the Soviet Union's Andrei A. Gromyko ahead of the 17-nation talks.

Gromyko's government says it is against all testing, but the Soviets have never accepted what the West regards as adequate international policing arrangements. In the view of the American and British governments it is too late now for unverified promises. Washington and London want a test ban the whole world can trust—one resting on enforcement procedures to prevent cheating.

President Kennedy has served notice the United States—in the interest of its own safety and that of its allies—must resume atmospheric tests in a few weeks unless the Soviets accept a treaty the West can regard as having some meaning.

For three years it looked as if the three powers would come up with a treaty. Then the Soviets resumed testing.

Now another opportunity has arisen. It may be the last chance to head off a testing race between the United States and the Soviet Union with ultimate consequences no one can forecast.

Even more doubt and cynicism underlie the field of broader disarmament. The average man has been unable to extract much hope from 70 distinct international arms negotiations that have come to a dead end since 1946.

A major question is where to make a start, and how.

Which arms should be cut first and by how much so that neither power grouping will obtain an advantage? How can the size of the remaining military establishment in each country be verified? Should the control arrangements precede arms cuts or should arms be decommissioned first?

An inadequate disarmament agreement could tip the balance toward catastrophe.

Suppose, for example, that a disarmament pact cut America's nuclear power faster than it reduced the Soviet Union's conventional military strength. Suppose one great power cheated while the other reduced its arsenal in good faith. The result could be the same as a war won or lost.

Moscow calls for arms cuts but hedges on how these would be policed. The Soviets have fears of their own stemming from their dread of spies. In their view, the West could use arms control arrangements to slip agents into the Communist world.

"Any chance of success at Geneva depends on Russia's ability to cure herself of her obsession that inspection is the equivalent of espionage," said Britain's foreign secretary.

Background On Geneva's Big Three

GENEVA (AP)—The three foreign secretaries gathering in Geneva for talks on banning nuclear tests differ widely in their backgrounds but some characteristics are common to all three. They follow with precision the instructions of their bosses—President Kennedy, Prime Minister Macmillan and Premier Khrushchev. They are cool bargainers and hard workers.

Dean Rusk came off a Georgia farm and followed a scholar's way to diplomacy.

Andrei A. Gromyko was graduated from the Minsk Agricultural Institute in 1934 and in five years started his diplomatic career as head of the American desk in the Kremlin.

Lord Home is a product of British nobility, the 14th earl whose family's ancient crest boats lions rampant and popinjays.

Like poker players, diplomats try to hide their emotions. But in the cases of these three a few known signs may show how the talks are going.

"If Rusk radiates cheer in the morning there is progress," says an American source. "The secretary, given half a chance, is normally a very cheerful guy."

Should things go badly, the British expect Lord Home's stiff upper lip to get stiffer.

Gromyko is relaxed and a little talkative when he is pleased. He reverts to his role of "Grom the Glum" when displeased.

Macmillan often refers to Lord Home as "sludge," a peculiar nickname for a nobleman. In British cockney it means ordinary beer. Home likes cricket-playing, bird-watching and salmon-fishing. Many of his countrymen regarded him as a lightweight when he became foreign secretary in July, 1960. Now he ranks as one of the strongest men in Macmillan's cabinet.

At 59, Home is six years the senior of Rusk and Gromyko.

Of the three, Gromyko is the most experienced in major disarmament negotiations. In 16 years of deadlock and new starts, he has debated with such U.S. figures as John Foster Dulles, Bernard Baruch, Harold Stassen, Frederick M. Eaton, James J. Wadsworth and Arthur Dean.

Gromyko became Soviet foreign minister in 1957, moving up from first deputy foreign minister. Earlier he was ambassador to the United States, permanent representative to the U.N. Security Council, negotiator in conferences at Yalta, Potsdam and Tehran, and ambassador to the United Kingdom.

Army Control May Be Good For Burma

By TONY ESCODA

RANGOON, Burma (AP) —The average Burmese is not exactly overjoyed that the military has once more seized powers in his country, but he admits the bitter pill may do him good.

Last week's lightning coup by the armed forces chief, Gen. Ne Win, at first left most people stunned.

It dredged up memories of the army's first takeover four years ago. That resulted in 15 months of stern military discipline—alien to the Burmese people's traditionally happy-go-lucky way of life. And this time all indications were it would last a good deal longer than 15 months.

But second thoughts seem to run along this line: Things could not have gotten much worse anyhow.

"We may not be happy about it," said one retired civil servant. "But neither do we bemoan the loss of the politicans."

"Even critics of the army last time realize it was necessary," said a well-informed Burmese editor.

The comments reflected general unhappiness of recent months over developments under the civilian government of Premier U Nu.

Nu was a civilian with the necessary stature to head a government but apparently his best was not good enough. Lack of able men around him threw the burden of big decisions on Nu. A devout Buddhist with firm beliefs in the supernatural, the benign-looking premier went off on meditation periods for as long as 45 days—sometimes when swift action was needed.

Military leaders point to several problems that developed as a result of Nu's soft approach. A threat of secession had come from the state of minority Shans. Economic progress was slower than some people liked.

Even more disturbing to the military was an apparent drift toward much closer relations with Red China. An agreement in January 1961 settled a border dispute between Burma and China. Peiping followed this up with an $84 million loan to Rangoon. Both countries began trading cultural and trade missions.

"China began to regard Burma as its showcase for peaceful coexistence," said one diplomat who cannot be identified. "The army started wondering what would happen when the honeymoon was over."

Confidence Expressed In 62 Business Trend

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The economy retains its zip despite a slowing case of winter sniffles, the government maintained during the week.

President Kennedy and his economists expressed confidence that business in 1962 will live up to expectations.

Doubts had been raised by January declines in personal income, manufacturing sales, industrial production, housing starts and employment. Retail sales had been reported down, too, but a revision of statistics showed a one per cent gain.

The President seized on a February drop in unemployment to tell his news conference: "I think this economy has more vitality in it than some of its premature mourners."

The number of unemployed declined by 120,000 to 4,543,000. This represented a 19-month low of 5.6 per cent of the work force.

At the same time, employment increased by 731,000 to 65,789,000.

Both figures were better than usual for this time of year. Nevertheless, the protracted high level of unemployment was a widespread worry.

George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, called for a shorter work week with no reduction in pay as a solution to automation.

"I'd like to see the work week has a good way to go."

Walter W. Heller, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, reiterated his belief that the gross national product will hit $570 billion this year, up $50 billion from 1961.

President Kennedy announced months-long negotiations with 31 foreign countries, including the European Common Market nations, had produced tariff-reducing agreements.

The agreements will affect the cost of hundreds of U.S. import and export items, including automobiles.

These items in 1960 represented $4.3 billion in U.S. sales abroad and $2.9 billion in imports.

Initial opinion of businessmen was that the lower tariffs would have little influence on volume.

President Kennedy persuaded the steel labor negotiators to resume their talks in an effort to agree on a new contract before the current pact expires. Management and union representatives, who broke off discussions March 2, agreed to get together next Wednesday.

Steel production during the week dipped for the second week in a row but was expected to pick up if the labor negotiations show no sign of substantial progress. Output totaled 2,361,000 tons, down 1.8 per cent from the previous week.

Automobile production during the week slipped to an estimated 134,000 passenger cars, compared with 137,944 the previous week but far ahead of the 91,327 a year ago.

Sales of new domestic cars in February totaled 456,872, up 27 per cent from February 1961. Even so, the inventory of unsold new cars in dealers' hands topped the one-million mark.

Briefly around the business scene: Blizzards have created a boom in snow blowers with 150,000 sold this winter. . . . Soon to be on the market are carbonated beverage cans which can be opened by pulling a tab with the fingers. . . . American and Canadian railroads will cut fares for tourists from overseas to promote travel to interior cities.

A single mishap last year interrupted the 700,000 safe hours at work, Patterson reported.

Market Moves Higher; Halts Sluggishness

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market arrested a sluggish decline last week and moved higher on increasing volume.

Stock prices gave ground on the first three trading days in dull trading. Thursday the market enjoyed its biggest daily gain of 1962. The advance carried through moderately Friday.

The late recovery was enough to give the market a net gain on the week.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week rose 3.44 to 714.44, having reached support at a level well above the January lows of around 690.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks made a net gain of .30 at 259.60 — not much, but it was the first weekly advance in three weeks.

Meanwhile trading became lively enough to compile a total of 15,323,797 shares for the week compared with 14,981,403 in the very slow prior week. Toward the end of the week brokers commented that the general public was showing a revived interest in the market.

Even as the market was declining in the first three days, General Motors proved itself once again as a kind of market weathervane by advancing in heavy trading every day. "As GM goes, so goes the market," is one familiar Wall Street motto, and it certainly proved itself true this week.

GM's rise was based partly on a technical rebound from its decline in the previous week and partly on news that the big motormaker had expanded its share of the retail car market while Chrysler and Ford had reduced their percentage. Ford was additionally depressed by news that the Ford Foundation plans to sell an additional 2.25 million shares of Ford stock to the public.

The big Thursday rally was preceded by news of a better-than-expected rise in employment and a drop in unemployment which pushed the nation's idle rate in February down to a 19-month low of 5.6 per cent. At the same time came news that a new 1,600-mile oil pipeline was planned and that this would require about 500,000 tons of steel as well as quantities of other industrial products and considerable electric power along the route from Texas to New York.

The pipeline news was a tonic for steels, which had been spotty in their market action for some time.

Placid Runs Tests; New Field Looms

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A new oil field vay be near opening in Wayne County with Placid Oil Co. running production tests on a wildcat, the G. M. & O. Land Co., No. 1, sec. 35-8n-8w, located six miles south of the Yellow Creek oil field.

However, operators are holding information on the well. Production casing is reported at 12,000 feet to test commercial worth of deep oil shows.

Also in Wayne County, George H. Jett Drilling Co. is below 10,200 feet in its closely watched wildcat, the unit No. 29-2, sec. 29-10n-8w, located two miles northeast of the producing limits of the Eucutta Field.

The venture is reporting logged oil shows of undetermined commercial worth in the Tuscaloosa and lower cretaceous formations.

Broadhead Drilling Co. has temporarily abandoned its Wildcat, the Cary No. 1, sec. 3-12n-3w, in the Woolfe Lake area of Yazoo Cunty. A small amount of oil and salt water was tested from a Tuscaloosa sand at 6,756-73 feet. Another test at 7,383-7,400 feet also resulted in salt water.

Humble Oil and Refining Co. continues to test its Yellow Creek well, the USA No. 1, sec. 13-9n-8w, in Wayne County. The depth is 12,300 feet with reports several zones in the lower cretaceous formation had commercial possibilities.

Three strings of tubing were cemented in an effort to complete as a multiple producer.

Operators are releasing no information on the production with reports that the well has tested an unestimated amount of high gravity oil from a sand in the Cotton Valley formation.

Two new wildcat ventures are underway in the hardrock country of northeast Mississippi.

The lunchroom supervisors also visited the Northern Division office in West Monroe.

The Supervisors' tour was conducted by L. E. Gruber and James P. Kiper, both of the West Monroe office. Accompanying the students and Mrs. Price was Tommy Bond, sales representative for the West Monroe office.

OFFSHORE OIL, GAS

Lease Sales May Prompt Exploration

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A big sale of oil and gas leases in New Orleans next week may prompt a new era for offshore explorations.

The 3,700,000 acres being offered include tracts up to 100 miles from shore and in water to depths of about 600 feet.

Drillers have not ventured as yet into offshore Louisiana water deeper than 200 feet.

Success of the Tuesday and Friday sales could cause a boom in construction of tenders and equipment designed for weep water operations.

A shortage also could develop for equipment designed for operations in comparatively shallow water depths of 100 feet or less.

One supplier said this week the ground rules of the federal-state sales may place offshore drilling equipment in short supply.

"Production must be found within five years on each tract leased," he said. "Some 811 tracts are being offered. If only 500 tracts are sold, it will mean a minimum of 500 wells will have to be drilled in five years.

"The dry-hole producer ratio offshore is about four-to-one, however, so a more realistic figure would be that about 2,000 wells would have to be drilled. I'd say there are only about 50 rigs capable of operating in the areas being offered and conservative estimates indicate about 100 will be needed.

"And all this doesn't include wells that need to be drilled on undeveloped leases obtained in earlier sales."

Two factors could tend to minimize the problem.

The number of leases sold next week could fall well below 500 tracts. Federal-state officials say practically all the 811 tracts are being sought by a company or individual. Only about 50 per cent of the leases offered in the past, however, have been sold. Some 3,225,000 acres have been offered in the five previous sales since 1954 and only 1,607,000 were leased.

A second factor enables an operator, under special conditions, to retain a lease even though he has not discovered production within five years. If production is discovered near an undeveloped tract the undeveloped area can be pooled with the producing tract.

Many tracts being offered in the 1962 sale are claimed by both Louisiana and the federal government. Louisiana's claim to offshore areas beyond the three-mile limit still is in dispute. This is the sixth joint federal-state sale resulting from the controversy. Lease money is being placed in escrow pending settlement of the dispute.

All but 30 of the 811 tracts being offered are involved in the dispute. The 30 tracts being offered in the federal area off the Texas coast involve only 90,700 acres.

Part of the blame for an anticipated 1962 decline in drilling operations in the Louisiana offshore area has been placed on next week's sales. Some forecasts have indicated declines as sharp as 14 per cent.

Some operators apparently cut their 1962 offshore drilling budgets in anticipation of investing the new leases.

Water depth and distances from shore may keep next week's prices well below the $550 average set in 1960 when 1,610,000 acres were offered.

No bids amounting to less than $15 per acre will be accepted. Bids will be considered on the basis of the highest cash bonus offered for each full tract.

Cotton Futures Move Within Narrow Range

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices on domestic cotton futures moved within a narrow range most of last week on the New York Cotton Exchange before turning firmer in the final two days of trading.

Active futures closed the week unchanged to 95 cents a bale higher. Nearer contracts — March, May and July — were up 55 to 95 cents and the more distant contracts were unchanged to 85 cents higher.

Easiness of the price movement early in the week was laid to continued slow movement in the stock market and a lack of pickup in exports.

In the final two days, prices perked up on short covering in the current March contract, switching from the July to October contract and a broadening of commission house demands for new crop contracts.

Estimated exports were lower than the previous week and the same week a year ago. The exchange service bureau said they Approximated 93,000 bales, against 95,000 the week before and 121,000 the year before.

For the season through March 6, exports totaled about 3,155,000 bales, about 28 per cent less than the 1961 comparable total of 4,377,000.

Price Increase Announced By Olin Mathieson

Prices have been increased approximately 7 per cent on linerboard and 8.5 per cent on corrugating medium, it is announced by Bruce E. Brooks, product manager, pulp and paper operations, for the Packaging Division of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation. The increases became effective March 1.

"This price increase is necessary," said Mr. Brooks, "because of the severe price erosion of recent years in the face of continuing rising costs of materials and operations."

The Packaging Division produces a full line of packaging materials including kraft paper and board, shipping containers, multiwall sacks, grocery bags, folding cartons and cellophane. It also produces cigarette paper, Bible paper, lightweight printing papers and lumber.

IN BATON ROUGE

Active Pressure Program Sought In Calhoun Field

Drillers in Cadeville Sand in the Calhoun Field in Ouachita, Lincoln and Jackson Parishes are expected to thresh out a new pressure maintenance program for the area this Wednesday in Baton Rouge.

Ten operators of 27 wells, involved in a shut - in on production March 1, have been invited to a Baton Rouge session by State Conservation Commissioner James H. Gill to review measures for re - pressuring rapidly falling bottom hole pressures at the Cadeville levels.

They will seek to formulate a new plan for holding up pressures, as well as determine who, when and how such a system will be installed and operated.

The shut - in made news last week as the Conservation Commission issued orders on February 26 and March 1 ordering the hold - up in production at all 27 sites.

Meanwhile, drillers elsewhere in the 14 - parish area continued the recovery in new activity with completions on four wells — two in Tensas Parish and one each in Catahoula and LaSalle.

Monroe District Manager Duncan Cook's weekly report showed a total of 11 new locations staked, two in Ouachita Parish, both by the Cardnial Drilling Company, but most of them, three, in Concordia Parish.

Ouachita Parish had two rigs actively drilling or testing among 16 throughout the district, while one well was abandoned bringing the total on inactive sites to 94 in the district.

Locations numbered 46 and two wells were re - completed, both in LaSalle Parish — H. L. Hunt's Urania No. 1 in the Olla Field, and Placid Oil's J. W. Hailey No. 1 in the Nebo Hephill Field.

These were the completions, new locations and active rigs:

Olin Releases Statement Of '61 Operations

Net sales and operating revenues of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation in 1961 were $700,723,000, an increase of 4.9 per cet over the $668,173,000 recorded in 1960.

Consolidated net profits amounted to $32,125,000, or $2.47 per share, compared with $38,219,000, or $2.86 per share a year ago. Thirty cents of the decline in earnings was due to the fact that nuclear operations contributed $0.26 per share in 1960 and added a loss of $0.04 per share in 1961 prior to its transfer on June 1 to United Nuclear Corporation.

In its preliminary statement, Olin reported that industry overcapacity and price softness in the first nine months adversely affected operations in several divisions, but the year ended on an "encouraging and active note." Sales and profits during the final quarter of 1961 showed substantial gains over the fourth quarer of 1960.

In 1961 the corporation consolidated the results of a wholly owned foreign subsidiary, Squibb-Mathieson International Corporation, and 1960 figures have been adjusted to provide a basis for comparison.

Earnings from Squibb - Mathieson International Corporation in 1960 amounted to $0.27 per share and $0.21 per share in 1961. Profits from the company's other operations amounted to $2.33 in 1960 and $2.30 in 1961.

The corporation's financial position remained strong, with year-end cash and Government securities amounting to $55,800,000. Debt was reduced through a third payment of $3,421,000 of long-term notes.

Capital expenditures in 1961 were $36,861,000, compared with $48,895,000 in 1960. Capital spending in 1962 has been programmed at a somewhat higher rate.

Projects now under way include complete modernization and expansion of brass facilities, improvement of aluminum rolling mill, expansion of organic chemicals facilities and diversification into new product lines, completion of the company's 11th Fourdrinier machine for lightweight paper, and expansion of pharmaceutical research and manufacturing facilities.

The corporation had 67,000 shareholders at the end of 1961, compared with 73,000 at the end of 1960. The average number of shares outstanding decreased from 13,383,000 to 13,026,000, as a result of the acquisition by the corporation on April 14 of a block of 583,600 shares of its own stock at a price under the market on that date.

Ruston Renews AA Basketball Championship

Tall Bearcats Romp 69-46 At Tourney

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

SHREVEPORT — Ruston's Bearcats utilized their superior height and Natchitoches' offensive shortcomings to successfully defend their Class AA state championship with a 69-46 thrashing of the Red Devils in an inspired effort before approximately 4,000 in Hirsch Memorial Youth Center here last night.

The entire Ruston team played spirited ball as the Bearcats took an early lead and were never headed. Natchitoches did tie the score once, 3-3, with 5:20 to go in the opening period, but this was the only time.

From here Ruston eased to a 16-10 first quarter lead and by the half had turned it into a 36-18 rout.

All-Stater Charles Shuffield led Bearcat scoring with 21 points, but Ruston got good offensive performances from speedy guard Leon Barmore who had 17, and hook shot specialist Lawson Swearingen who had 13. Ruston's other two starters, Billy Weathersby and Jackson Thigpen, had six apiece.

From the begining it was apparent the Red Devils were cold offensively. They're usually good aim from long range was woefully off.

To add to their miseries, Ruston controlled the backboards, limiting Natchitoches to a single repeatedly, while snaring rebounds for second tries after their own misses.

Late in the game, the Red Devils Kenneth Arthur and Joe Beasley began sinking their long shots, but by then it was entirely too late.

Arthur, who did well on defensive, particularly in the second half, led Devil scoring with 12. Beasley was second with 11, and David Clark had 10.

The key differences in the two clubs stood out in the statistics. Ruston hit a surprising 58 per cent from its shots from the floor, chasing in on 29 of 50 attempts.

In contrast, Natchitoches got only 17 of 56 tries, good for 30 per cent.

The difference off the backboards was marked also, with Ruston coming out ahead 42-30. Shuffield was the leader here too, grabbing 12, but Swearingen and Weathersby, who played one of his finest games, had nine apiece. Arthur and Beasley had seven apiece for Natchitoches.

The victory ended a second fine year for the Bearcats, who compiled a 32-2 record in taking their second straight title. Ruston defeated Natchitoches, 64-44, in the state championship game here last year. Last night's victory was also the rubber game in the two team's series this year. They split in play earlier. Natchitoches wound up the season with a 24-4 mark.

Bearcat Coach Denmon Garner finished the game with subs. He replaced the entire starting lineup with 2:15 left in the game.

Ruston led 53-31 after three quarters and held 24 point margins early in the fourth quarter, first at 57-33 with 6:35 remaining, and again at 61-37 with 4:28 to go.

With 5:00 left, Natchitoches tried a full court press, but it did little to narrow the final margin. As it was Ruston outscored the Red Devils in every quarter.

During one stretch early in the second quarter, Shuffield went on a scoring spree and netted seven consecutive points, while Natchitoches went scoreless. Swearingen hit on two slow hook shots and was a tiger at blocking Natchitoches shots. Little Barmore was quick on defense and accurate on his long shots. Weathersby played heads up ball throughout, and Thigpen came on late with a trio of long jump shots.

In all, it was determined team effort for the repeating state champions.

AAA CHAMPIONSHIP

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—De La Salle defeated St. Aloysius 38-35 in an all-New Orleans finals Saturday night and emerged as the state's class AAA champions as the Louisiana high school basketball tournament ended.

Four other champions were named in the all-day showdowns. Ruston won the class AA title for the second straight year by defeating arch-rival Natchitoches 69-46, West Lake beat Oakdale 49-38 for the class A title, Colfax won the class B title by beating Florien 54-40 and Athens won its second straight class C championship by whipping French Settlement 70-48.

The AAA title was probably the only real defensive of the three-day tournament. The score was 9-9 at the end of the first quarter, and St. Aloysius managed a one-point lead at halftime 19-18. De La Salle took the lead by one point after three quarters at 26-25 and managed to pull it out of the fire with a semifreeze in the fourth quarter, taking only the good shots.

CLASS A CROWN

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—West Lake beat Oakdale 49-39 Saturday night to win the state class A basketball championship.

West Lake led all the way in beating Oakdale, going off to a 13-5 first quarter lead and increased the advantage to 30-13 at halftime. Oakdale cut the lead in the second half but never really threatened the southwest Louisiana team.

Grady Brittain took scoring honors for West Lake with 15 points. Game honors went to Oakdale's Ken Bohannon who had 16.

The victory gave West Lake a 24-8 record for the season. Oakdale closed with a 27-9 record.

ATHENS GETS TITLE

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Athens won its second straight class C basketball championship Saturday and Colfax succeeded Ringgold as class B titleholder in the afternoon session of the Louisiana State High School tournament.

Athens beat French Settlement 70-48 while Colfax stopped Florien 54-50.

The afternoon attendance was 2,949, a gain of 985 over the 1961 afternoon championship round to raise the total attendance for five sessions to 8,412 as compared to 9,192 last year. Tournament officials felt the night session attendance would bring the tournament over last year's initial effort.

Athens had little trouble in winning its second straight state title under coach Jimmy Bates. All-stater Donnie Henry, considered the outstanding player in this season's "Top 20" classic, scored 24 points as four Athens starters counted in double figure.

Athens ran up a fast 17-12 first quarter lead, increased to 35-24 at the half and was never seriously threatened after intermission. It was 50-32 after three quarters and Bates emptied his bench in the final period.

James Little was the top scorer for French Settlement with 23 points.

Athens closed the season with a 38-6 record while French Settlement finished with a 26-13 mark.

The class B game was close all the way although Colfax was never behind. Coach Reed Perilloux' team led 15-12 after the first quarter and 33-29 at intermission. It was 46-40 after three quarters when Florien quickly closed the gap and tied the game for the first time at 46-46 with 4:07 left to play. Colfax then went out in front on Billy Futrell's free throw and jump shot and stayed there, using a semi-freeze during the final two and one-half minutes.

James Smith was the top scorer with 20 points for Colfax. Ronnie Braud hit 18 for Florien.

Colfax ended the season with a 40-6 record and Florien was 43-6.

TO TIE WORLD RECORD

Budd Runs 60-Yard Dash Twice In 6 Seconds Flat

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Budd, an amazing combination of speed and coordination, twice ran the 60-yard dash in a magic 6 seconds flat Saturday night and led Villanova to the IC4A Track and Field Championship in Madison Square Garden.

The Wildcats from Philadelphia's Main Line piled up 30½ points to wrest the title back from Yale. In addition to Budd, Villanova produced winners in the 2-mile relay (7:45.2), the mile which Vic Zwolak negotiated in 4:09.3 and the pole vault in which Rolando Cruz climbed 15-3¾.

Both Budd and Cruz broke meet records. Other meet marks were shattered by Gary Gubner of New York University, who got off a 64-foot-3½ toss in the shot put; Bob Mack of Yale, who clocked 8:58.3 in the 2-mile run; and Ted Bailey of Harvard, who flipped the 35-pound weight 63-5.

But the crowd of 11,972 had eyes for no one but the speedy Budd, a husky senior, who first was caught in the magic 6 flat in a heat, then duplicated it in the final.

In the final, two of the three clockers caught him in 6 flat and one got his time in an unbelievable 5.9.

Both the alternate clockers in the final also caught him in 6 flat.

In the 6 flat heat, two of the three timers got him in 6 and the other in 61.

Only two other sprinters ever have hit the 6 flat mark. They are Herb Carper and Roscoe Cook. Carper did it in Dortmund, Germany, in 1960. Carper, ex-Pitt ace, hit 6 flat three times.

Yet Budd has beaten his archrival Carper five times during the current indoor season. He also trounced Cook in both the NCAA and AAU outdoor championships last spring.

Budd holds the world 100-yard dash record of 9.2. Indoor records are not recognized by the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

Budd has been clocked in 6.1, which equalled the indoor record for more than two decades, 13 times since he began running as a collegian three years ago.

"I don't know how I did it, twice in one meet," Budd panted. "I wasn't sure just what I did in both the 6 flats. I guess I was very lucky."

Tyronne Pannell of Manhattan won the 60-yard hurdles in 7.4, tieing the meet record, and Frank Tomeo of Fordham captured the 1,000 in 2:11.5.

Gary Gubner, the big New York University sophomore, smashed the meet record for the shotput with a toss of 64 feet, 3½ inches. The old mark was 57 feet by Joe MarChiony of Manhattan in 1960.

Gubner, who holds the indoor record of 64-11¾ broke Marchiony's record on every one of his five throws. Billy Joe of Villanova was second with a toss of 55-11½.

Ted Bailey of Harvard, a peewee in the muscle set, won the 35-pound weight throw and Sherman Lewis, a Michigan State football halfback, captured the broad jump—the only two afternoon finals.

Bailey, who weighed in at 197 pounds, got off a throw of 63 feet 5 inches, his best ever and good enough to break the meet record.

Lewis, the Big Ten champion, soared 23 feet, 11 inches to win the broad jump with no trouble from runner-up Winston Cooper of St. John's, whose best was 23-4½.

Larry Mengel of Army was second in the weight throw, which was held in an armory a mile or so from Madison Square Garden, the site of the rest of the meet. Mengel's runner-up flip was 58-11. George Desnoyers of Boston College was third with a 58-1 effort.

This marked the third straight year the meet record has been broken. Henry (Judd) Sage of Navy set the mark of 63-4½ last year. He had broken the 1960 standard of 63-¼ set in 1960 by John Lawlor of Boston College.

Bailey was so far ahead of the rest of his rivals, that four of his five fair throws would have won the event.

"I took up weight lifting a month or so ago," said Bailey, who won the Heptagonal championship last week, "and I think it has helped. I used to weigh 182, so I've gained 15 pounds as a result of the lifting."

Lewis, a 19-year-old, 158-pound sophomore, couldn't match his Big Ten winning jump of 24-6. But he had little competition. Only he, Cooper and Ron Hines of Penn, who was third, managed to get over 23 feet. Hines' leap was 23-4.

Shotpit—1, Gary Gubner, N.Y.U., 64 feet 3½ inches (meet record; old record, 57-0, by Joe Machiony, Manhattan, 1960). 2, Billy Joe, Villanova, 55-11½. 3, Ed Kohler, Fordham, 55-4. 4, Richard Delone, Harvard, 54-0. 5, Jerry Seay, Army, 52-6½.

Mile—1, Victor Zwolak, Villanova, 4:09.3. 2, John Reilly, Georgetown, 4:13.2. 3, Larry Rawson, Boston College, 4:14.2. 4, Steve Moorehead, Penn State, 4:18. 5, Werner Slack, Delaware, 4:18.8.

600—(Final run in two sections, places decided on time basis)—1, Jay Luck, Yale, 1:11.7. 2, Vance Carter, Pittsburgh, 1:12.0. 3, Thomas Holzel, Dartmouth, 1:12.9. 4, Doug Tynan, Fordham, 1:12.9. 5, Tie between Ed Tantorski, Boston University and Carl Wagner, Villanova, 1:13.0.

2-mile—1, Robert Mack, Yale, 8:58.3 (met record) old record, 8:59.0, by Tom Laris, Dartmouth, 1960). 2, Laris, Dartmouth, 9:03.8. 3, Gerald Norman, Penn 9:14.6.

Ruston Mentor Pleased With 'Fighting Cats'

SHREVEPORT — Ruston's victorious Bearcats lifted Coach Denmon Garner to their shoulders after they had successfully defended their Class AA state crown here with a 69-46 defeat of Natchitoches last night. While the hoopsters paraded around the Youth Center court with their mentor, a mob of screaming, confetti - throwing fans clustered about. And the inevitable, "We're number one" cries went up.

Later, after Garner had sent his noisy team to the dressing room and was surrounded by some quiet well-wishers of an older set, he admitted the game was one of Ruston's finest.

"It was a wonderful climax for the season," said the never ruffled Garner, "I thought it was one of our best games, particularly since everyone has been out to beat us all year."

"I had a fighting bunch," he added, "and they were determined to come out here and win in spite of all the pressure. I thought that was very commendable."

Then he turned to face a few more of the fans who were streaming by with congratulations.

Bressoud, obtained in a trade for Don Buddin of the Houston Colts, drove Bob Anderson's 3-2 pitch over the right field wall.

Anderson, last of three Chicago pitchers, was the loser. Earl Wilson, middleman of three Red Sox pitchers, was the winning hurler.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Cliff Hagan poured in 30 points and Bob Pettit 26 as the St. Louis Hawks downed the Cincinnati Royals 116-110 in a National Basketball Association game Saturday night. Jack Twyman led the Royals with 26 points.

The Hawks held Oscar Robertson to 24 points.

Coach Charley Wolf of the Royals was ejected from the game just before halftime. This created an odd situation in that the coaches of both teams faced each other from the center position on the floor.

OUTSTANDING OFFENSIVE COACH

Hank Stram Lecturer At NLSC Grid Clinic

LECTURER ON offense at next Saturday's Northeast Coaching Clinic will be Hank Stram, head coach of the Dallas Texans of the American Football League. Stram's Dallas team has been one of the league's top offensive clubs for the past two years. Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League will lecture on defense at the clinic.

A man long considered one of the most outstanding offensive coaches in football will lecture on that phase of the game in the second annual Northeast State Coaching Clinic here March 17.

Hank Stram, head coach of the Dallas Texans, will lecture on rushing and passing at the Northeast Clinic. Tom Landry, coach of the Dallas Cowboys, will lecture on defense.

A builder of outstanding attacks as an assistant coach at four major colleges, Stram has been Texan head coach since the team was organized in 1960 and both his clubs have been among the offensive leaders in the American Football League.

Stram's 1960 outfit was the AFL's No. 1 running team and finished second in the circuit's Western division, knocking off both the Western loop champion, Los Angeles, and the Eastern and overall titlist, Houston.

The 1961 Texans again defeated Houston and finished second in their division.

Although he is most famous as an offensive coach, Stram has not neglected defense at Dallas. His 1960 team allowed less points than any team in the league.

Stram won three football letters and four baseball letters as a Purdue undergraduate and was invited to the College All-Star game in 1943. He was the recipent of the coveted Big Ten medal, which goes annually to the athlete best combining athletics with scholarship.

He was an assistant coach at his alma mater from 1948 until 1955, at Southern Methodist in 1956, at Notre Dame in 1957 and 1958 and at Miami of Florida in 1959.

While a college assistant, Stram was given much of the credit for the development of four outstanding quarterbacks — Dale Samuels and Len Dawson of Purdue, George Izo of Notre Dame and Fran Curci of Miami.

Stram, 37, is assisted by Bill Walsh, formerly of Notre Dame and the Pittsburgh Steelers, Ed Hughes, formerly of Tulsa, the Los Angeles Rams and the New York Giants, and Tom Catlin, one-time all-America center at Oklahoma and pro star with the Cleveland Browns, Chicago Cardinals and Philadelphia Eagles.

The Texan head coach is married and the father of four children.

One of Stram's most outstanding Texans, ex-Northeast fullback Stewart "Smokey" Stover, will assist his coach in demonstrations at the clinic. Stover, a regular at Northeast in 1958 and 1959, has been a starting linebacker with the Texans for the psst two years and last season served as defensive captain.

Kentucky Clinches Tie For SEC Title

By BILL NEIKIRK

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky clinched a tie for the Southeastern Conference Basketball Championship Saturday night with a 90-59 victory over Tennessee before 12,500 fans.

Kentucky's Cotton Nash unofficially won the SEC individual scoring title over Tulane's Jim Kerwin. Nash, who scored 28 points, needed only 13 to top Kerwin in the scoring race.

Tennessee never was in the game after the first 10 minutes of play, as Kentucky proved deadly on outside shooting and led 42-29 at halftime.

The Wildcats reeled off seven straight points as the second half opened to put Tennessee out of reach.

Larry Pursiful, Kentucky's out side shooter, followed Nash with 19 points, and Scotty Baesler came next with 16.

Tommy Wilson led the Volunteers with 18 points and Orb Bowling finished with 13 points.

Nash also set another school record as he raised his season field goal total to 140. This eclipsed the old record of 139 set by Cliff Hagan in 1954. He wound up the regular season with 571 points in 24 games for a 3.8 average.

The victory left Kentucky with a 22-2 over-all record and gave the Wildcats a 13-1 conference mark, the same as Mississippi State.

Head Speaker For Little Boys Ferriday Event

FERRIDAY, La. (Special) — Big Ed Head, former no-hit pitching great of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and a native of West Monroe, will be the guest speaker at the Ferriday Little Boys League seventh annual baseball banquet next Saturday night in the Ferriday Elementary School Cafeteria.

Head became the 31st pitcher since 1880 to pitch a no-hitter when he blanked the old Boston Braves in 1946. Since then, only 12 pitchers in the major leagues have accomplished this outstanding feat.

Head addressed a capacity crowd at the league's fourth annual banquet in February, 1959, and is popular with local players and fans alike.

Other highlights of the evening will include presentations of the "Batting Championship," "Outstanding Pitcher," and the "Mel Ott" and "Ray Harris" trophies. Both Ott, former major league great, a native of Gretna, La., and Harris, former local coach and principal died in recent years.

Over 300 players, parents, league personnel, and guests are expected at this annual affair, honoring the 1961 league "graduates."

Delta Baseball Meeting Set

Second meeting for the newly formed Delta Baseball League will be held Tuesday night at the Olin-Mathieson Cafeteria. Starting time for the meeting has been set at 7:00 p.m.

There is still an opening for at least one team and maybe two or three. Anyone interested in entering a team is urged to attend.

Jones Hits 5.9 In Fifty-Yard High Hurdle Run

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Hayes Jones, the Detroit schoolteacher who treats track opponents like students, equalled his American Indoor record in winning the 50-yard high hurdles in 5.9 seconds Saturday night in the 11th annual Journal Indoor Games.

Jones, former Western Michigan star who set a record of :06.9 in the 60-yard high hurdles at Chicago Friday night, breezed to another easy triumph — his 32nd straight indoors—before a packed crowd of more than 11,000.

Jones had a comfortable margin on Michigan speedster Bennie McRae. Paul Jones of Wayne State University was third.

Jones equaled his American indoor standard he set in Cleveland in 1960 and equalled in Milwaukee last year.

Brooks Johnson of the Chicago Track Club captured the 50-yard dash in :05.3. Tom Robinson of Michigan was second and Bill Smith of Wisconsin third.

Jim Beatty, the sub-4-minute miler from the Los Angeles Track Club who did 3:59.7 in Chicago, dropped down to the 1,000 and won in 2 minutes 10.7, far off the meet record of 2:08.1 set by George Kerr of Champaign, Ill., in 1961.

Beatty moved to the front with about three laps to go and defeated Hylke Van Der Wal of Kearney, Neb. State Teachers by 12 yards.

Jerry Bashaw of Western Michigan won the college mile in 4:14.9 in a wild finish. Al Carius of Illinois was second in 4:15.2 and Don Loker of Wisconsin third in 4:16.8.

Kerr set a meet record of 1:10.8 in taking the 600. He had a 10-yard margin on Bill Boyle of South Bend, Ind., in bettering the old standard of 1:10.9 by Dave Mills in 1961. Mills was third in defense of his laurels.

Bob Shul of the Los Angeles Track Club outkicked Laszlo Tabori the former Hungarian wearing the same colors, on the gun lap and pulled away to a 10-yard victory in the 2-mile run. Shul was clocked in the slow time of 8:58.2.

The River Needs

If the Ouacita River is to be utilized to the fullest in the recreation and economy of the Monroe area, it is evident that corrective measures will have to be taken here at home to eliminate the pollution problem.

This has been brought out in studies conducted by the Louisiana Stream Control Commission, the State Health Department and federal authorities.

A polluted stream cannot be of complete value to the people in that the waters is damaged for recreation purposes as well as for economic reasons—namely industry.

Pollution stepped into the spotlight here several years ago, then in 1958 or along about that time, local officials, from Monroe and West Monroe, along with the Ouachita Wildlife Unit, backed an effort by the Louisiana Stream Control Commission to get action in Arkansas.

At that time the biggest pollution problem in Arkansas was caused by the oil producers, who used the Ouachita as a means of discharging their brines from oil fields.

Through the Arkansas Water Pollution Control Commission, a five year program was worked out under which the Arkansas oil producers were to reduce the amount of discharge on an annual basis.

That program is scheduled to be completed sometimes in 1963 and according to several sources the oil producers of Arkansas are on schedule.

In addition, the Town of Camden in Arkansas is building a half - million - dollar sewer plant and International Paper Co. at Camden has spent a sizeable sum of money on impoundment basis and oxidation plants.

It appears then that the Arkansas people are doing their part in ridding the Ouachita of the pollution problem.

According to the biologists' surveys, Monroe, West Monroe and Columbia are polluting the stream here by dumping raw, untreated sewage in the river. The cure for this is the sewer plant.

At present, Monroe is making preliminary studies toward the construction of a plant. It is doing so because once the river has been cleaned up, the chances of bringing industry here will be better.

In addition, the federal government has authority to enforce its anti-pollution laws. Mayor Parkman of Camden pointed this up by saying, in reference to the new plant at Camden, "We had to do it or else."

While much emphasis has been placed on the need of a nine-foot channel in the Ouachita, the channel project alone is not the complete solution to the needs of the river.

Pollution abatement is a must.

The Federation Convention

Louisiana sportsmen will convene in Alexandria next weekend, Friday through Saturday, for the annual convention of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation.

This is the big meeting where state sportsmen meet to discuss past and future seasons, needs in the state's game programs and listen to professional wildlife people discuss the various problems.

It's also the meeting where new officers are elected to guide the federation during the coming year.

Of course one of the better panels at the convention will be a discussion on "The 1961-62 Migratory Waterfowl Season." This panel will consist of Richard Yance, the Louisiana assistant director, plus biologist Mort Smith of Louisiana.

Representatives of the federal agencies, the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife and the Department of the Interior, will include Walter A. Grech from Atlanta and Art Hawkins from Minneapolis.

Other panels will be featured on deer, doves, squirrels and the run of the game species. There also will be special treats for the ladies attending the convention.

A highlight of the meeting, which will come at the Saturday night banquet, will be the naming of the "Outstanding Conservationist of the Year" by the Louisiana Outdoor Writers Association.

The meeting will be held at the Bentley Hotel. Make plans to attend.

Latest From Canada

A ray of sunshine has broken through on the duck picture, according to the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission.

J. Bernard Gollop, a waterfowl biologist of the Canadian Wildlife Service, has advised the commission that moisture conditions in the Province Saskatchewan are better at this time than during either of the past two winters.

Gollop, via telephone from Saskatchewan, told the Arkansas commission that conditions are about average for a 10-year period.

Advised that between October 1 and January 31 the western portion of Saskatchewan (one of the more valuable mallard duck breeding areas) had received 27 inches of snow. This, he said, compares with 12 inches a year earlier.

"The first 11 inches of that 27 was of practically no value," Gollop said. "It came early and melted too quickly. Even so, the moisture situation now looks much better than this time last year."

Gollop said that presently, the snow isn't very deep. "Green stubble can be seen in a lot of places, but we have some good drifts. And the drifts are very important to duck breeding habitat. It takes good drift conditions to have a good water runoff."

Gollop reminded, too, that a quick runoff in the early summer is better for ducks than a slow runoff. "If the winter snow holds into spring, then melts fast, it fills the sloughs, marshes and potholes. But if the melting process is slow, most of the moisture seeps into the ground and we are left with but little surface water."

Gollop made this concluding observation — "We still have two critical months to go. What happens in March and April is most important.

His report is encouraging in that the mid-winter survey conducted by the U. S. Department of the Interior showed these conclusions:

1. Mississippi Flyway — 15 per cent decline in ducks and 19 per cent fewer geese.

2. Atlantic Flyway—7 per cent reduction in ducks and geese off 23 to 50 per cent.

3. Central Flyway — 20 per cent decline in duck population and a slight reduction in geese.

4. Pacific Flyway — 7 per cent drop in overall waterfowl numbers with ducks down 5 per cent.

It must be kept in mind that the survey included coots, yet on the same token it should be pointed out that the mallard—the most poular duck—is taking the greatest set-back.

Mallard counts were off 25 per cent in the Atlantic Flyway, 38 per cent in the Mississippi Flyway and 50 per cent in the Central Flyway.

Little Man's Corner

The weather was wild, but the little men made news afield.

While the weatherman kept sending chilly temperatures, then warm temperatures, the fishing was pretty fair, but spotty. So far it's been a matter of being on the lakes when the weather is good.

White perch have been biting in Black Bayou and Bill Minor says a whole bunch of fishermen have had good luck there. Freeman Shaw landed a good string, fishing five feet deep in the buttonwillows.

Bass fishing hasn't come into its own yet, but at Vidalia, Andrew Eidt landed a whopper—8-lb., 2-oz. in a barpit behind Vidalia. Of course he did not pinpoint the spot.

Three Tallulah fishermen, Durwood Busby, Jesse Williamson and J. W. Darnell, have had good luck in the barpits around town, but the fishing around Tallulah was not good this past week.

At Bastrop, Troy Hall and Kenneth Looney landed seven bass at Bussey. White perch fishing has been good at Bussey and George Estep caught the limit twice. He was fishing with shiners.

According to our reports, the best baits going for bass have been the Yellow H&H and the Mirrow Lure.

At Lake Providence, Mrs. Morris Coleman caught a nice string of white perch in the Stump Hole and the bass fishing picked up in the lake.

Bill Scott caught two bass and Jim Baur landed four. One of Jim's went 5½-pounds. And he caught it on a homemade Helldiver.

Fishing the Gassaway, Leonard Kennedy caught five bass.

M. L. Stewart, David Smith, Doyle Screpetis and Ray Harrell, all of Bastrop, caught 25 crappies each on shiners at Bussey. J. R. Hood and James Benton, with guide Lenny Thompson, had a good catch of 29 crappies and three large bass.

Still at Bussey — Bass fisherman Larry Cooper and Keith Merriman caught six good bass on shiners; Tom Gilbert and Russell White got 41 pounds of good eating, 23 bass on medium shiners; H. B. and Barbara Hollis, Charles Spiller, and Susies Frost, Monroe, caught 72 nice specs and four bream, all on shiners; and Rilla Nelson and Carl D. Simmons had a good catch of 46 specs.

Johnson says he also hopes to line up a home meet with A&M.

Casey Collides With 'Real' Facts Of Life

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Casey Stengel's hopeful New York Mets collided with the hard facts of life Saturday and absorbed an 8-0 beating from the St. Louis Cardinals in their exhibition baseball game bow as a League.

Stengel's collection of talent, bought and drafted from other league clubs for an estimated $2,400,000, was able to collect only four hits off three St. Louis pitchers.

The Cardinals thumped Stengle's thin pitching corps for 12 hits, including a home run by rookie Gene Oliver and ex-American Leaguer Minnie Minoso.

With 71-year-old Casey watching helplessly on the bench, an opening day crowd of 6,872 at Al Lang Field saw the Cards' power hitters roll to an easy victory.

Oliver, an important rookie who may become the Cards' No. 1 catcher, hit a three-run homer in the third off Jay Hook, ex-Cincinnati Red who cost the Mets $125,000 in the expansion draft.

Minoso, who spent all his previous career in the American League, broke in as a Cardinal in spectacular fashion. He hit a two-run homer off ex-Dodger Clem Labine in the fifth, and had a single and scored three runs. Julian Javier, Card second baseman, led the hitters with three singles.

Only Charlie Neal, the former Los Angeles Dodger who cost the Mets an estimated $225,000 was able to produce more than one hit for Stengel's club. Neal singled in the first, the first base hit by a Met, and doubled in the third. Don Zimmer hammered a 450-foot triple to left in the sixth. The other hit was a single by Felix Mantilla in the fifth.

Angels Outscore Colts, 7-3, To Ruin NL Debut

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—The Los Angeles Angels ruined the exhibition debut of the Houston Colts Saturday as they defeated the National League's Texas entry 7-3.

Sharp pitching by Eli Grba, Johnny James and Tom Morgan discouraged Houston's hopes of a winning start in the Cactus League inaugural. Grba permitted 2 hits, James 2 and Morgan 3. Each pitched three innings.

Houston got two unearned runs as the Angels committed three errors. Ex-Dodger Bob Aspromonte had the lone RBI for the Colts with a double.

Dodgers Down Athletics, 8-0, Behind Pitchers

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale, Joe Moeller and Ron Perranoski limited Kansas City to three scattered hits Saturday as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Athletics 8-0 in an exhibition baseball opener before 2,841 at Holman Stadium.

Maury Wills, Willie Davis and rookie Larry Burright each collected two safeties as the Dodgers went on an 11-hit rampage against the pitching of Jim Archer, Ed Rakow and Gordon Jones. Duke Snider drove in the last two runs of the game with a pinch double in the eighth.

Koufax, an 18-game winner in 1961, pitched hitless, runless ball for three innings. Drysdale surrendered two hits. Moeller, a 19-year-old rookie, gave up one hit in two innings. Perranoski pitched a hitless ninth.

Doug Sanders Holds To Lead

By ROSS M. HAGEN

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Hot-shooting Doug Sanders fired his third straight 67, 5-under-par, to maintain a three-stroke lead Saturday in the $20,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament.

The 26-year-old Georgian goes into Sunday's championship round with a 201, 15-under-par.

Don Fairfield and Paul Harney also fired 67s and held a share of second place along with Billy Maxwell, who carded the best round of the day, a 66.

Thus Sanders, a native of Cedartown, Ga. playing out of Oaji, Calif. stands on the threshhold of his first tournament victory of the year. He was third in the New Orleans and Baton Rouge opens.

Arnold Palmer, who had a share of second at the halfway mark, fell back a stroke although he came home with a 68 for a three-round total of 205.

Tied with Palmer for third were a couple of ambitious youngsters, Bert Weaver and Bobby Nichols. Nichols fired a 67 and Weaver a 68.

Sanders, who displayed no ill effects from having a glass sliver removed from his foot Friday, rolled through the front nine of the 6,700-yard, par 36-36—72 Pensacola Country Club course in 32.

He scored only one birdie on the back nine, on a 4-foot putt on No. 13.

Harney, playing out of Worcester, Mass., hit the most sensational shot of the day when his wedge shot rolled into the cup from 60 yards out for an eagle 2 on the 317-yard No. 13.

Maxwell was five strokes off the pace at the start of the round. He parred the first six holes, then punched in a 15-foot birdie putt on No. 7. He followed that up with an eagle 3 on the 495-yard No. 8. His approach shot stopped 3 feet from the pin and he easily tapped in the ball.

Nationals Turn Back Syracuse By 128-111 Count

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The Syracuse Nationals, leading most of the way, turned back Detroit 128-111 in a nationally televised game Saturday and captured their National Basketball Association season's series from the Pistons.

The victory was Syracuse's fifth in eight games with Detroit. Lee Shaffer sparked the Nats with 31 points and Larry Costello contributed 22.

gsyracuse opened up a 32-23 margin at the end of the first period and was ahead 68-61 at halftime. The Nats outscored the Pistons 28-18 in the third quarter and entered the final stanza in front 96-79.

The injury-riddled Nats used only seven men and only one player failed to hit double scoring figures. Syracuse's ability to control the backboards and its fast break were contributing factors in the triumph.

Bailey Howell was high for Detroit with 21 points.

Cleveland Wins On 4 Run Rally Over SF Giants

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Cleveland came from behind with four runs off Gaylord Perry Saturday and beat San Francisco 5-4 in an exhibition baseball opener.

Center fielder Ty Cline and first baseman Gene Green tripled in the three-run fifth. Willie Kirkland doubled and Mike de la Hoz singled in the outburst.

Cleveland's Bob Allen stifled a ninth inning bid. The Giants had one run in, the bases loaded and none out. But Allen struck out Bob Perry and got Hal Lanier to hit into a doubleplay.

Jim Perry, brother of Gaylord, was the winning pitcher, hurling three scoreless frames in the middle of the contest.

Detroit Displays Power In Win Over Milwaukee

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Pennant-hopeful Detroit displayed power, timely hitting and speed Saturday in opening its Grapefruit League baseball season with a 11-3 trouncing of the Milwaukee Braves.

The Tigers erupted for two five-run rallies and smashed out 13 hits off four Milwaukee hurlers.

Dick Brown and Purnal Goldy, a rookie not even on the Detroit roster, led the Tiger attack. Brown belted a 410-foot two-run home run in the second inning and had a two-run single in the five-run fifth.

Goldy hit a home run the first pitching. A sharp single to left by Goldy scored one run in the fifth.

Baton Rouge Open

Stocky cigar - chewing Joe Campbell, the former NCAA golf champion playing out of Pendleton, Indiana, beat off the threats of some of the best veterans in the business to win the Baton Rouge Open by two shots last week.

Campbell fired 3-under-par 69 in the final round and, in doing so, set a new record of 274, 14-under-par. The previous record was 275 held by the great Sam Snead.

Bob Rosburg finished second for the second straight week. Bo Winiger beat Rosburg by 2 shots in the New Orleans Open the week before.

Doug Sanders, finished third for the second straight time. Sanders had been tied for the lead going into Sunday's 36-hole finals. Arnold Palmer, the defending champion, wound up in a three-way tie for ninth with 290. Burl Burdick was the low amateur with 293.

Campbell won the NCAA when he was a senior at Purdue University in 1956. He beat John Garrett of Rice by a 4 and 3 margin in the finals.

Garrett holds the official Bayou DeSiard Country Club course record of 63 that he set while qualifying for the Cotton States Invitational in 1956. Just for the record, Julius Boros, former National Open champ, and Jimmy McGonagil, former Louisiana State champ, have both shot 62 on the course but these scores were not shot during official play.

Joe Campbell started off in a tie for first with a 68 and was never headed during the tournament. His last pro win was the Beaumont Open in '61.

Tallulah Four-Ball

Jimmy Green, Tallulah Country Cub pro, has announced that the annual one-day Tallulah Four-Ball Tournament will be held on Sunday, April 1.

There will be eight teams to the flight and three -hole matches in each to determine the winners of the flights. Qualifying may be done on your home course. These scores must be turned in to Jim Green by 6 p.m. Saturday, March 31.

This tournament has grown in popularity and produces a fine field each year. Many of the finer players in the state compete plus a large crowd from Mississippi. The prizes are always tops as is the hospitality.

Lamar Loe, Jr. and Roe Cagnolatti beat Jim Harper and Robert Ewing in the championship finals last year. The entry fee is $10 and well worth it!

Pensacola Open

Doug Sanders with his now respected short swing seems to be well on his way to annexing his first golf win of the young season.

Sanders was last year's third leading money winner and came close to overtaking Arnold Palmer as the second money winner. He finished second in the 1961 National Open and is a good bet to cop many of golf's top honors this year.

At this writing, Sanders has a good lead but not golf tournament is over until the final hole has been completed. However, take a guess and stick with the prediction that Sanders will finish on top week.

Northeast Beats Centenary

The Northeast Louisiana State Golf Team of 1962 looked real good in its first outing of the year as it defeated Centenary of Shreveport 15½-2½ last Friday. The match was played over the Bayou DeSiard Country Club course.

Freshman Glen Walker fired a 1-over-par 71 over the rain-soaked 6,095 yard DeSiard layout for the day's best showing. Walker played as the No. 3 man on the team.

In the top match, Gent Don Easterwood edged out Jim Harper by one shot to win Centenary's only points during a frustrating day for the Gents.

Harper and Easterwood halved the front nine with 1-over-par 36's. Easterwood finally got the lead with a par 4 on the sixteenth to Harper's bogie 5. Harper and Easterwood both birdied the seventeenth and then finished with pars on the tough eighteenth.

Gene Adams, the No. 2 Indian, beat Don Harris 6 and 5 and Ken Renwick, the No. 4 man, beat Freddie Peters 3 and 2.

For the information of the readers, points are scored on this basis: 1 point for each nine holes won, 1 point for each 18 holes won. If a nine is halved, then each team gets ½ point. If both nines and the eighteen are halved, then each team gets 1½, etc.

This team could win the Gulf States Conference with a little seasoning so come out and watch them play and give them your support.

The team plays McNeese at Lake Charles next Wednesday and then competes in the two-day McNeese Invitational the following day. We'll keep you posted on the results and we'll also let you know when to watch them locally.

REBEL LEAGUE baseball championship playoff trophy, won last summer by Monroe Concrete, Sand and Gravel, was presented this week at a meeting of league officials and team representatives. James Martin, third from right, accepts the trophy for Monroe Concrete from Loy Heard, second from right, member of the league's board of directors. Others in picture are Cecil Pirkey, right, coach of West Monroe High who is also West Monroe recreation director; and the three men at the left, are in order Harold Hill, league secretary-treasurer, and Ralph Fields and Dick Smith, board members. OSU Ends 'Golden Era' In Win Over Indiana

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —Ohio State said so long to the greatest basketball team in its history Saturday and the Bucks responded with a resounding 90-65 victory over Indiana.

The conquest was more impressive than the score indicates for with less than six minutes to go the Buckeyes held a huge 81-42 margin. Eight substitutes played the rest of the way.

The game wrapped up a 13-1 record for Ohio State's third straight Big Ten champions, a 23-1 over-all mark for the season, 34 straight victories at home and a three-year record of 75 wins in 80 starts for the five seniors.

Indiana broke away to a 3-0 lead and held the edge five times ino the early going, but Mel Nowell's jump shot with 9:20 to go in the first half gave the Bucks a 16-15 lead and from there on they had it all their way.

Big Jerry Lucas, three-time All-America, swept the boards with 19 rebounds in the first half and added 11 in the second session before he went to the bench with about 5½ minutes left smothered by the greatest ovation St. John Arena has ever seen.

The fans stood and cheered for several minutes as play was suspended and the 13,497 ticket holders poured out their praise of the Middletown kid who has lost only six times in six years of high school and collegiate basketball.

The ovation continued unabated until Jerry stood up and took a bashful bow.

Mel Nowell led Ohio State with 22 points, two more than Lucas, but the game's scoring honors went to 145-pound Jimmy Rayl, Indiana junior who came up with 25. Rayl, who went into the game tied at 429 points with Purdue's Terry Dischinger for the Big Ten scoring lead, scored 17 in the final half. Dischinger scored 30 points against Michigan to claim his third straight loop scoring title.

Lucas, Nowell, captain John Havlicek, Robert Knight and Gary Gearhart, the five seniors who completed their regular season chores for Ohio State, have never been beaten on the Buckeye floor.

ATTENDANCE, PERFORMANCE

Baseball Facing Some Big Problems In 1962 Season

By TED SMITS
Associated Press Sports Editor

Baseball faces up to some big questions in 1962.

Can the downward trend in attendance be checked?

Can the quality of play be maintained despite the dilution in talent caused by adding two new clubs in the National League on top of the two added in 1961 in the American League?

Does professional football seriously threaten to displace baseball as the national pastime?

Can the minor leagues be saved, and stabilized, so as to provide a training ground for major league players?

These questions have sparked some deep, serious thinking in high baseball places.

The attendance problem looks to be the most critical. Last year there was a close, thrilling race in the National League but attendance dropped from the 1962 figure of 10,684,963 to 8,731,502.

Until the last month there was an unexpectedly good race in the American League between the New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers, plus the excitement of the Mickey Mantle-Roger Maris home run duel. Attendance rose from the 1960 figure of 9,226,526 to 10,163,016—but 1,860,233 of this came from the new clubs at Los Angeles and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Even counting the new clubs the total attendance of the two leagues fell 5 per cent and not counting them it fell 15 per cent.

For the last 15 years attendance in each league has ranged around 9,000,000, with half of this credited to night ball. This is a static condition in a rapidly expanding national population. That isn't healthy either.

Meanwhile minor league attendance has withered away until now it is a question of heavy subsidization by the major leagues to maintain the minor league training ground so necessary for the development of major league stars.

Some baseball men think all the attendance problem needs is a fair break in the spring weather plus rousing races in both leagues. Undoubtedly either or both would help.

But in the long run baseball is bucking the trend away from spectator sports and towards participation sports such as golf, fishing, hunting, bowling, and the like.

Better, brighter stadiums with ample parking facilities would undoubtedly help, such as are now available in Milwaukee, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Washington, San Francisco, and Los Angeles, and under construction in New York and Houston.

But a good stadium costs $15 million and up, and baseball can't afford it. Public generosity must be relied on instead, and there is a limit to this.

Professional football has been able to utilize television to build up interest but baseball has not been so fortunate. Away - from-home games of football teams are televised, allowing the fans to follow them, and then home games are blacked out, creating ticket demand.

It has not been possible to create such a productive pattern in baseball. For instance, because the New York market is so rich that high television fees can be paid, all home games of the New York Yankees are televised, and this will be the case with the New York Mets as well. Some, but not all, away - from - home games are brought back to New York TV screens. Due to spirited bidding, the revenue to the Mets from TV will exceed $1 million. This can make up for a lot of empty seats.

Most other clubs televise only a few games during the season, plus of course, the "game of the week" of the networks.

Despite a certain envy of football for making such good use of television, and having an unlimited pool of talent developed by the colleges, baseball can afford to be tolerant of fast growing football.

But what if professional football decided to cut down on exhibition games and start its season extra early, say in mid-August instead of September? That could create a real tussle for the entertainment dollar.

What about the quality of play now that there are 20 major league teams instead of 16?

There were two new clubs in the American League last year. One of them was Washington, as the old Washington club moved intact to Minnesota. Washington finished 47½ games behind the Yankees and won only 61 while losing 100. The other, Los Angeles, finished 38½ games behind, winning 70 and losing 91. Two old clubs were in the same category. Kansas City was 61-100 and 47½ behind, and Minnesota was 70-90 and 38 behind.

So it would seem that a new club can be built that will equal a weaker old one, but leagues can't thrive on weak clubs.

Baseball's final problem is the minor league situation. Everyone recognizes these must be maintained as a training ground. College baseball does not do the job in producing talent that college football does.

White Sox Whip Cincinnati, 8-2; Klippstein Loses

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — The Chicago White Sox scored six runs off Johnny Klippstein in the second inning Saturday and went on to an 8-2 exhibition baseball victory over the National League defending champion Cincinnati Reds.

Klippstein, trying to catch on with the Reds as a reliever, was rocked for four hits in the round but was also the victim of three Cincinnati errors.

The Sox finished with eight hits against Klippstein. Bob Risenhoover and Dave Hillman, Charlie Smith, who will be Chicago's opening day third baseman, had a single and a 400-feet double.

Rookie Joel Horlen pitched the opening three innings for the White Sox and allowed only two singles. Frank Baumann and Dom Zanni finished for the Sox.

Shuffield, Nolan Head 2-AA Picks

By KEITH PRINCE
Monroe Morning World
(Written for the Louisiana Sportswriters Association)

Talented Charles Shuffield, Ruston's top gun, and Neville's scoring ace, Truett Nolan, paced an all senior group selected to the 2-AA All-District squad voted on by the coaches for the Louisiana Sports Writers Association.

Shuffield and Nolan, who are the only repeaters to make the first team this year, both were unanimous choices.

All five boys selected for the first team are seniors and only one junior was picked on the second team.

Rounding out the first team were Leon Barmore of Ruston, and two Jonesboro players, Gary Black and Randy Ewing.

Butch Cerniglia of Neville and Jonesboro's Keith Hall were the only other repeaters from last year's team.

Cerniglia and Hall headed the second team this year after landing first team berths last year.

Lawson Swearingen was Ruston's representative on the second five. Frank Keith gave Neville its other second team choice and Rich Bailey presented Jonesboro with another boy on the second squad. Bailey was the only junior among the All-District choices.

Ruston had two players on the honorable mention list and Jonesboro one.

Jackson Thigpen and Billy Weatherby of Ruston and Don Page of Jonesboro were the three mentioned.

Shuffield was the principal cog around which the powerful Ruston Bearcats were built this year and his statistics tell the reason why.

The six-two forward was an All-State performer last year and has left little doubt that he will repeat in 1962. He has done everything an All-Stater should do and he has done it well.

Shuffield patrolled the boards with authority, pulling in more than 14 a game. Along with this, the 180-pounder has scored at a 24.6 clip throughout the season just concluded.

Nolan paced Neville's Tigers to a fine season with his timely scoring and rebounding. The six-footer averaged 16.0 points a game.

The five-eleven Barmore gave Ruston the much needed outside punch. The scrappy guard popped in 18 points a contest and did an excellent job of setting up plays.

Black earned his All-District slot with top-notch defensive efforts the entire year plus his 10.3 scoring average.

Ewing gave Jonesboro its top rebounding punch. The six-three, 175-pounder also scored at a 10.7 clip.

Senator Byrd Lauds Conduct Of U2 Pilot

[redacted], VA. (AP) —Sen. [redacted], D-Va., has written [redacted] U2 spy plane pilot Francis Gary Powers expressing pride in the way the flyer has conducted himself.

In a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Powers, Byrd declared their son "made a splendid appearance" before the Senate Armed Services Committee.

"As a Virginian," the senator said, "I was very proud of the fine showing he made. He had a most difficult situation but he met it manfully and like a true American."

Byrd concluded his letter by expressing hope he could soon meet the elder Powers and have—as he put it—"the opportunity to congratulate you on the record of your son."

The flyer's parents live in the southwest Virginia community of Pound.

Mardi Gras, gayest of seasons for Louisianians, this week provided excuse for a round of parties large and small in Monroe as well as New Orleans, Washington, Lafayette and other carnival-spirited locales. Here at home, Bayou DeSiard country club was scene of the largest celebration of the year.

College age daughters of club members were maids in the court, and were escorted by members of the club Board of Directors. MAIDYE JEAN STRICKLAND as queen and JIMMY MOORE, king, reigned over the festivities.

Costumes of merrymakers ranged from the elegant to the uninhibited. First prize was awarded to HAYDN CUTLER, JR., for his far-out representation of Jayne Mansfield. Others in the party included SUE CUTLER as a press-agent; BOBBY SHAFTO as Mickey Hagerty; SALLY SHAFTO as a [illegible]ree. . . . Winning honorable mention were the JOHN SAVAGES and the CHARLES PLANCHARDS as the Flintstones.

Other costumes noted on the floor included the W. L. DEANS in elegant green velvet and gold lame as Napoleon and Josephine. . . . and the LARRY ROBERTS as a pair of dice. . . . ASHLEY HAMILTON and her escort, TONY TORSA, were Argentine gauchos, complete with gaily-striped ponchos. . . . Wearing medieval outfits of orange velvet slashed with brocade, the FELIX WILEYS carried an artist's palette and a small sculpture to point up their theme of "The Agony and the Ecstasy." . . . DOT AMMAN and JUDY TURPIN were costumed as pink bunnies, while FRED AMMAN and CORBIN TURPIN were formally attired, with top hats, wolf masks, and keys to the Playboy Club.

Among out of town guests here for the party were the BOB KENNONS of Baton Rouge, who were visiting the D. A. STRICKLANDS. Eugenia wore for the ball a black floor-length sheath embroidered with jet beads.

Preceeding the ball, the HILMAN MADISONS and the BOB CURRYS were hosts for open house in the Madison home. Their special guests were the WILLIAM J. ATKINS of Shreveport, who were visiting the Madisons over the week end. For the party, the hosts were wearing their Mardi Gras ball outfits: the Madisons as Cleopatra and Caesar; the Currys, beatniks. Spring flowers were used to decorate for the party. Jonquils and narcissus filled a silver chafing dish on the living room coffee table. In the den, brass scales filled with jonquils were placed on a side table, while an Oriental line arrangement of pussy willow and jonquils decorated the refreshment table.

In the dining room, the lace covered table was centered with a traditional bouquet of Dutch iris, jonquils, and white flowering peach in a footed silver bowl. Six-branched candelabra held burning tapers at each end of the table. Included on the buffet were hot Swedish meat balls, ham with assorted breads, and several dips.

In Washington, D. C. last week end for the Mardi Gras celebrations there were RUTH and THOMAS HENRY, who met EDITH and CLAUDE KIRKPATRICK of Baton Rouge. They were guests at the king's cocktail party in the West ballroom of The Shoreham hotel Friday night, and later at dinner in the Blue Room honoring the Louisiana queens. Saturday morning they visited the Capitol, the Smithsonian Institute, and the White House, where they caught a glimpse of the first lady. Saturday night they attended the Grand Ball at the Sheraton Park hotel. JAMES A. NOE and OTTO PASSMAN were other Monroyans seen at the party by the Henrys, who returned home Sunday.

Sunday, following Mardi Gras at Bayou DeSiard, FLORA POTTS left for New Orleans and celebrations there. She had a call-out for the Comus Ball Tuesday night. . . . The GEORGE SNELLINGS, JR., also were in New Orleans for Tuesday's gaiety . . . and the GEORGE GUERRIEROS and daughter TRUE attended the ball in Lafayette.

Tuesday evening the KENT BREARDS invited a small group of friends to celebrate Mardi Gras at home. Carnival colors of yellow, purple, and green were noted in decorations throughout the reception suite. In the entrance hall, yellow jonquils and lavender crabapple stood on a chest before a mirror festooned with serpentine. King Alfred daffodils were placed on the living room coffee table, while crabapple branches decorated the mantel.

Centering the dining table was a footed silver bowl filled with daffodils, crabapple, and green foliage arranged with gilded masks. Serpentine hung from the chandelier and curled across the table. Goodies on the menu included roast beef with tiny rolls, spiced tongue, caviar, ham and cheese dips.

Celebrating the carnival season, the ED SEYMOURS were hosts at two parties this week. Thursday evening, with their children the ED SEYMOURS, JR., they entertained at buffet supper for twenty. A silver bowl filled with fruit centered the dining table, which was further appointed with seven-branch candelabra holding yellow candles. Individual tables were decorated with nosegays of spring bulbs.

About forty were invited to a Mardi Gras open house Tuesday evening at the Seymours. Louise used a silver lazy Susan on the dining table, filling it with hyacinths, jonquils, and gilded carnival masks. Finger foods — ham with hot biscuits, Swedish meat balls, assorted spreads —were served.

Honoring three visitors from Baton Rouge, MABEL LANN was hostess at a coffee party Saturday afternoon. Her honored guests were her sister, CORRIE LANN, MRS. T. J. REGAN, and a former teacher in the Ouachita Parish system, MARY ANNIE WALL. Spring flowers decorated the house, when about forty friends of the honorees were invited for coffee. The visitors returned to Baton Rouge Sunday afternoon.

"Misleading Evidence" by Hal Chadwick.

At night the arms of Morpheus
So readily forsake me
My sleeping wife need only sigh
Or twitch an arm to wake me

Yet, when I tell her so, she scoffs,

When H-bombs wouldn't budge me

CAPTURING THREE TOP titles in ten days is the record of Miss Judy Cathey, Northeast Louisiana State College student of West Monroe, who was crowned Queen of the Mardi Gras Ball Tuesday night on campus by President George T. Walker. The coed previously won the Miss Stock Show honor at Delhi and the Northeast Military Ball Queen's crown

Gala Mardi Gras Ball Inaugurated At Northeast

Initial Mardi Gras ball for Northeast Louisiana State College students was held Tuesday night, March 6, in Gunby Dining Hall on campus, where myriad lanterns in shades of silver, red, blue and lavender with glittering sequins formed an overhead canopy for the dancers.

The event, sponsored by Phi Theta Chi Pharmaceutical fraternity, was highlighted by coronation of the Mardi Gras Queen and parade of costumes before the judges. Music for dancing was provided by The Capris.

Chairman of the ball was Richard Aycock, pharmacy student and Student Body president, working with Phi Theta Chi president, John LeTard, faculty adviser, Dr. John T. Goorley and master of ceremonies, John Greer.

Miss Judy Cathey of West Monroe, was crowned queen of the Mardi Gras ball by Northeast President George T. Walker, who also presented her a trophy and a bouquet of crimson roses. Selection of Miss Cathey marked her third honor in ten days, previously being chosen as Miss Stock Show at Delhi and as queen of the traditional military ball at Northeast.

Members of the queen's court were Miss Ricki Kepner of Monroe; Miss Glenda McCann of Pineville; Miss Norma Jean Magee of Monroe; Miss Beverly Payne of Delhi; Miss Jean Gray of Collinston and Miss Sandra Edwards of Monroe.

Dancing followed the royal ceremony and in the late evening presentation of awards was made to three couples, chosen for the most attractive or original costumes.

Winners of first place were Miss Julia LeBlanc of Erath and Rodney Longlanais of Abbeville, competing as the Midget Man and the Giant Woman. Miss LeBlanc was wearing a blue satin gown and long white gloves with an artificial head to create her additional height. Her escort, in contrast, wore a voluminous black hat, which practically covered his body.

Second place honors went to Miss Lorene Bushnell and L.M. Welch, both of Monroe. Miss Bushnell wore a green satin frock trimmed in velvet and designed with a cascade of ruffles extending from the waist to the hem of the skirt on one side. Complementing her costume were a black velvet rose at the neck, black mesh hose with jeweled garters. Her escort "Doc," also emphasized color in his red vest worn with a black suit and tall matching hat. His characterization was complete with a black mustache and old fashioned glasses.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Roy of Erath captured third place with their costumes termed "Mardi Gras." He wore rich blue and gold satin with black fur trim on the tunic and glittering gold trousers. Her costume was of similar material with black fur bands on the full short skirt. Completing their costumes were identical hats of black silk, embellished with sequins and blue satin plumes.

Judges for the costumes were Mrs. Era Davis, Charles Correia and Mrs. Annie Lee West Stahl. Winners were chosen from students wearing Chinese and Hawaiian, costumes, Roman togas and gowns, costume depicting the flapper age, cowboy regalia, football uniforms, old fashioned folk, beatniks and others.

Garden Club Has Outing At Oaklawn

Those attending the spring outing were Mrs. J. P. Lewis, Mrs. C. T. Johnson, Mrs. Morris Harrison, Mrs. G. F. Becker, Mrs. W. L. Mitchell, Mrs. G. B. Haynes, Mrs. J. F. Stone Sr., Mrs. Ardis Caldwell and Mrs. Coon.

Complete Look Is Theme For Pilot Style Show

"The Complete Look for 1962," was theme for the Pilot Club's annual spring style show held Saturday, March 10 at the ballroom of the Paragon Club with approximately 400 women in attendance. Proceeds from the annual event are used to sponsor a dental care program for underprivileged school children.

Greenery banked the base of the walkway for the models, which extended the complete length of the ballroom. The stage was also banked with greenery with huge potted plants in front of white screens to form a background for the style show. Pots of blooming hyacinth among the greenery provided a spring landscape that blended with the colorful clothes worn by the models.

A St. Patrick's theme was carried out and each table was centered with a white potted shamrock tree placed upon a huge shamrock mat. Included in the pot with the shamrock tree were colorful spring daisies. Favors at each place were heart-shaped bottles of perfume tied with green ribbons. At one side of the stage was a huge St. Patrick hat filled with spring flowers. All Pilot members, who served as hostesses, were wearing their Pilot pins attached to green shamrock.

Mrs. Zula Chatham, president, gave the welcome to the guests. The narrator, Mrs. Ann May, in keeping with the colorful St. Patrick motif, was wearing a kelly green silk linen dress with matching jacket and a flower covered cloche hat in shades of green and white.

As Mrs. May opened the style show, the Choral Department of Ouachita Parish High School, directed by Mrs. Lloydell Thomas, sang, "My Wild Irish Rose."

Modeling spring fashions in a dazzling array of colors were Mrs. Osborn Willis, Mrs. Sybil Neill, Mrs. Peggie Buie, Miss Ginger Regan, Miss Ginger Donald, Miss Mary Ann Purvis, Mrs. F. A. Brown, Miss Linda Humphries, Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, Mrs. Bernard Soto, Mrs. Anna Mae Breece, Mrs. J. Echard Wheeler, Miss Diane Garner, Mrs. Joan Ursery and Mrs. Diane Smith.

"The Complete Look for '62" exemplified new shapes, textures and modern interpretations in cottons, silk prints and wild or mild colors.

A highlight of the show was Mrs. Anna Mae Breece, modeling a laminated denim raincoat and accompanied by Snoopie, a white French poodle, complete with vivid gold collar and leash and gold drizzle boots.

Entertainment was provided by the OPHS choral department and Ronnie Brothers, who played back ground music for the show. Door prizes were awarded by Mrs. Cecile Parker.

Hair-Bagwell Vows Are Read

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bagwell announce the marriage of their daughter, Kathleen to Charles Curtis Hair, son of Mrs. Curtis Benjamin Hair and the late Mr. Hair of Monroe.

The vows were exchanged Friday, February 16 at 8 p.m. in St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Bastrop, with members of the immediate family in attendance.

They are residing at 314 Columbia Avenue in Monroe, where both are attending school.

COMPLETE LOOK for '62 is exemplified in fashions worn by Mrs. Osborn Willis, standing, vice-president of Pilot club and Mrs. George Breece, chairman of Pilot Club's annual style show held Saturday at the Paragon Club, an annual fund raising project to provide dental care for underprivileged children.

Couple Wed In Church Ceremony

Baskets of white gladioli, fern trees and branched candelabra entwined with southern smilax formed a setting in McClendon Baptist Church for the wedding of Miss Mary Luttrell and Wilfred Cloyd.

Rev. Darrell O. Foster performed the double ring ceremony at 6:30 p.m. February 24.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Laura Luttrell, 212 Bell Lane, West Monroe, and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cloyd of Sulphur.

Appropriate nuptial music incuding "The Wedding Prayer," and "Whither Thou Goest," was presented by Mrs. Glenn Cloyd, organist; Miss Grace Rodgers, soloist and Harold Griggs, painist.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, wore a street-length dress of light blue crystal satin, styled with bell shaped skirt, bateau neckline and three quarter length sleeves. Her hat of lace and net and her shoes matched her frock and she wore elbow length gloves of white kid. Her bouquet was a white orchid, surrounded by stephanotis, surmounted on a white Bible.

Mrs. Hilton Tolbird attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a dress and hat in royal blue styled identical to the bride's, with white gloves and royal shoes and carried a cascade bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

Dennis Hinch Jr. served as best man and ushers were Reggie Guice and Kelton Bacon.

Mrs. Luttrell chose for her daughter's wedding a rose pink dress of mattelasse crepe with white hat and gloves and a corsage of white chrysanthemums. The bridegroom's mother wore a sheath model, toast colored dacron blend with navy accessories and a white chrysanthemum corsage.

A reception was held in the church social hall following the ceremony. Arrangements of pink chrysanthemums decorated the bride's table.

For a wedding trip to New Orleans, the bride changed to a white brocade ensemble with fur trimmed jacket, black accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

The bride graduated from West Monroe High School and Louisiana Business College. Mr. Cloyd was graduated from Sulphur High School and attended Southwestern State University before entering the navy. He is presently stationed at Norfolk, Virginia.

Out - of - town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Milton Cloyd, Waterproof; Mrs. Dennis Hinch, Sulphur; Mr. and Mrs. James Foster Alexandria and Coyce Johnson of Jonesboro.

Magnolia boughs, tied with ribbon streamers in the designated colors adorned the entrance hall and throughout the ballroom where the queen coronation was held, against a background of gold cellophane fringe which completely covered the wall. Suspended from the ceiling in center of the room was a hanging basket of flowers.

Reigning as queen of the Mardi Gras court was Miss Maidye Strickland, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. A. Strickland, who was escorted by King James W. Moore, president of the club's Board of Directors.

Spring Friendship Tea Set By ABWA March 18

Launching an annual membership drive at the Spring Hand of Friendship teas and enrollment parties are the American Business Women's Association throughout the country, which encompasses over 260 chapters in 45 states with a membership of over 14,000.

Mrs. Clifford Byrd, tea chairman of the local chapter which was installed on May 28, 1958, announces that the local tea will be held Sunday, March 18 at 2:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Reece Overton, 115 Mallard, West Monroe. Highlighting the event will be a fashion show presented by Mrs. Mabs Jollisaint and models.

Purpose of this non-union, non-sectarian, non-political organization is to advance women in business, to maintain a high standard of employer-employee relations and to provide congenial social opportunity and participation of its members.

Believing that education is the keynote to advancement in business, professional men and women are asked to speak at the monthly dinner meetings held by Tupawek Chapter. An annual Boss Night dinner honors the employers and gives management an opportunity to see ABWA in action. Educational scholarships awarded by ABWA chapters aid deserving women in grasping opportunities that advanced business deveopments present to them.

Recognition of outstanding achievement is given each year when a plaque is awarded the "American Business Woman of the Year" at the National Convention. Each chapter is eligible to recommend a candidate for this honor.

ABWA represents a wide field of business ability. Local officers are Mrs. Garland DeCell, president; Mrs. Hardy Wells; vice president; Mrs. Guy McDonald, recording secretary; Mrs. John T. Gaddis, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. John Morton, treasurer. Mrs. Clifford Byrd of FA 2-4078 and Mrs. Florence Biggar of FA 3-3396 will welcome inquiries about membership in the Association.

Short Or Long, Gloves Are Smart

There's lots of news in the ups and downs of sleeves on all fashions, especially on dresses, calling for the smart accents of the new gloves.

The "little white glove" will remain good for spring — but there's lots more to the glove picture this season.

The "little glove," or shorty, gives way to the longer four - to -10 - button lengths. Dresses and suit sleeves are beginning to lengthen, but still remain close enough to the elbow to require longer gloves.

Color, for example, really comes into its own. There are ten top colors being shown, but many more choices than that are available. At the tip of the top are: apricot, lime green and vivid orange.

Elegant Rayons Shaping-Up Smart Fashions

The season ahead promises a bright and gay panorama of color, as new pastels are less muted, and tri-color blazers, paired off with white or off-white dresses, stage a big fashion come-back.

With color so important in the fashion picture, it stands to reason fabrics that can add to and enhance color tones are important. That's why many of the newest fabrics in new season fashions feature Avisco rayon fibers. Used in blends with natural or man-made fibers, new rayon with with its built-in color affinity adds to the eye appeal of spring's newest suits and dresses.

There is versatility in these rayons; paired with other man made fibers as well as cotton, they assure lighter weight, greater depth of color, and a softer, silkier hand. New fabrics fall into soft graceful folds, so important to fashion's emphasis on the feminine look.

Color has come to reptiles and patents, and they show up in the new belts as well as in shoes and handbags.

GAY COMEDY

'Lover Come Back' Showing At Jim

DORIS DAY and Rock Hudson play the girl who cried "wolf" and the "hunter" who answered the call in "Lover Come Back," now showing at the Jim Theatre.

"Lover Come Back," the season's new comedy smash, starring Rock Hudson, Doris Day and Tony Randall, is now showing at the Jim Theatre. The Universal madcap melange reunites the stars of the successful "Pillow Talk."

A highly vulnerable target — Gotham's Madison Avenue and its quixotic mixture of foibles and fanfare — provides a tailor-made thematic background for the antics of the players.

Rock appears as Jerry Webster, whose prowess as an advertising mastermind matches his outstanding gifts as a lady killer renowned over all the happy hunting grounds of Manhattan.

The tempting bait placed in his fast-paced stride to eminence in all his diverse pursuits is captivating Miss Day, his arch rival, ready to make almost any sacrifice to wrest away his choice accounts.

And the ever-entertaining catalyst in this magic brew is Tony Randall, a scatter-brained neurotic who is front man, but certainly not the guiding light, for the agency at which Rock parks his Madison Avenue-style fedora.

Through an incredible twist of events it is the delectable Miss Day who finds herself pursuing Rock, a circumstance played to the hilt by the Don Juan she mistakenly believes to be a naive bumpkin unversed in the ways and wiles of the more pneumatic sex.

How adroitly Rock plays his nefarious hand may be learned from his feat in arranging matters so that, to protect him from the machinations of various designing persons, Miss Day persuades him, much against his wishes of course, to spend that night at her own little apartment.

For diversionary interest the film also offers a spectacular eyeful of titan-dressed Edie Adams, seen as Rebel Davis, a high-stepping chorine whose kicks are unerringly aimed at dead-center bullseye.

One of the screen's foremost comedians, Jack Oakie, adds further appeal to the cast, portraying a bourbon-imbibing southern patriot and floor wax king.

New Policy Announced By Paramount

Ted Hatfield, city manager for the Paramount Gulf Theatres, has announced a reduced admission for young people, aged 12 through 17, at the Paramount Theatre. The reduction was established through the cooperation of the Parent - Teacher Associatons and the local school officials.

Savings will be up to 50 per cent of the adult admission

Application blanks are now available at the Paramount Thatre or students may use the blank published in today's issue of the Morning World on the amusement page. These blanks are to be completed by the applicant, signed by a parent or guardian cashier with $1.

The movie discount card, Hatfield explained, will meet the ever increasing demand for an intermediary price between the children and adult brackets.

STARRING IN "Satan Never Sleeps," now showing at the Paramount Theatre are France Nuyen and William Holden, along with Clifton Webb. Pearl S. Buck's story of life in modern China was filmed by Leo McCarey for 20th Century-Fox.

'Satan Never Sleeps' Now At Paramount

Following in the tradition of "The Good Earth," another Pearl S. Buck story has been transferred successfully to the screen in Leo McCarey's epic of faith, courage, innocence and beauty, "Satan Never Sleeps." The 20th Century - Fox CinemaScope - DeLuxe Color drama, set in China of today, stars William Holden, France Nuyen and Clifton Webb and arrives today at the Paramount Theater.

This turbulent story describes the unique relationship between two priests and a young Chinese maiden who takes refuge in their mission. Since these men of the cloth represent freedom and love to the poor villagers of Kwangtung, they are tortured, ridiculed and shamed in attempts to make them forsake their faith.

Director Leo McCarey, who will be remembered for the award-winning "The Bells of St. Mary's" and "Going My Way," has fashioned an authentic, stark human drama of conflict.

Academy Award winner William Holden, making his fifth film with an Oriental locale, stars as the young Father O'Banion who gains a deeper understanding of his vows, while lovely France Nuyen, who scored in the screen version of Rodgers and Hammerstein's "South Pacific," portrays Siu-Lan, a young girl searching for the meaning of love.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Five Arrangements Displayed At Show

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Last week's T. V. and Garden Center show was presented by the Epps Garden Club. Five beautiful arrangements featuring spring flowers were brought for display and were judged by Mrs. M. W. Montgomery, an accredited flower show judge from Monroe, Fifth District Judges' Council.

These lovely arrangements were point scored according to design, color, distinction, condition, and relation to container. The highest score was given to the design made by Mrs. Karl Cook. Second in scoring was made by Mrs. Eula Grigsby.

The high scoring design, a massed triangle, was created by placing three types of dafodils in a triangle design in a black footed bowl edged in gold at the base and placed on a black square base.

LINE SOFTENED

Anemone foliage was used to soften the line of the container's edge and tie the flowers into it.

The judge commented that this was indeed a lovely design with perfect color combination. She suggested that more height could be used since the black base had a tendency to add weight. Then, too, the larger daffodils would be a better focal area had they been placed in a triangle pattern within the overall triangle design instead of straight across in the design. Thus, it was a triangle within a triangle.

The second arrangement made by Mrs. Eula Grigsby was inspired by pussy willow which had been placed to form a crescent design. The container was a large green oval shaped compote. The line of the pussy willow was filled in with Dutch iris, purple anemones, and juniper foliage.

The anemones formed the focal area and were tied into the container by the sprigs of juniper.

The judge commented that this was a lovely combination of materials. Color was very good. The pussy willow line could have had more height and needed a little strengthening since the container was large and quite a few flowers were used in the basic part of the design.

She suggested that the juniper could have been brought up into the line more and left off in the lower left part of the design to stay within the crescent line more. This seems to be a common weakness most of us have when making a crescent design. Keep a true crescent line when we start one.

ORIENTAL STYLE

Design number three was made by Mrs. Myrtis Brunson who picked an oriental pattern in the Japanese manner. Lovely materials were used in this design. Equisedium formed the triangle line which was placed in a black usabata container. As a filler she used fou. Japanese tulip tree buds (purple) and four very graceful pinkish lavender calladium leaves. The main flower used low in the design was the purple anemones. The whole design was placed on a lovely oriental woven mat. The judge commented that this was indeed very lovely, but, since it was made in the Japanese manner certain rules had to be followed. All line materials of the Japanese arrangements curve upward at the tips, never down as did the lovely calladium leaves, also, when making an oriental design, it is best to use no more than three materials to create your design, very few flowers are needed. Sometimes the Japanese use only one kind of foliage to form a design.

MASSED OVAL

Mrs. Earline Lusk created a massed oval design using Dutch iris and King Alford daffodils. The container was an amber glass compote. The anemone foliage was used to tie the flowers into the container and soften the edge of the container. The blue, yellow and green combination of color in this design is very beautiful. The judge commented that in this design as in the first massed triangle made by Mrs. Karl Cook the King Alfred daffodils would form a more pleasing focal had they been placed within the overall oval design in the same oval design instead of horizontally. The iris in this design has a tendency to over weight the design. This could be altered by using a base to balance weight of design or by using less iris.

The last horizontal design was made by Mrs. Pauline Jarmon who used a mass of lovely deep pink into light pink hyacinths. The line material was daffodil foliage enhanced by a small placement of spirea buds. The container was a rectangular ceramic bowl (gray and white mixture) on a gold base. Pink calladium leaves were used low in the focal area. It was a lovely combination of meterials and colors. The judge commented that the line in this arrangement could have more strengthening since the hyacenths were massed to form a heavy central area. She suggested more of the spirea would help this or more of the light pink hyacinths used toward the outer ends of the design. This would be lovely to use on a luncheon table.

While writing this column I have many visitors come by the center to admire the flowers. Wish I could write all the favorable comments that they have brought. Hope you were one of the ones to see them. Congratulations to these Epps Garden Club ladies, and their president, Mrs. Sam McIntosh.

NEW BOOKS

There are quite a number of new books in the garden center. Some of them are as follows: "Art Out of Doors," by Van Rensselaer, originally published in 1893, it is now regarded as a "period piece," of landscape architecture literature. "Art and Nature Appreciation," by George H. Opdyke, a book with a view to laying a foundation for the appreciation of the so-called visual, or space, arts, the arts based on the visual elements, line, form, color, light and dark. These arts include architecture, landscape design, interior decorating and dress. In this book we learn that art is a language and should be approached directly like other languages. Another book "Landscape Design," by Ortloff and Raymore, which is very important for the non-professional landscape architect. It covers all that the layman should know — from history to community planning to landscaping the home. I'll give more book titles next week. Come in to see these new books when you get a chance.

Date to remember — March 19, Monday, the Welcome Garden Club of the Twin Cities is sponsoring a "House to House" Spring flower show (Time is 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.). This is an open meeting, inviting the non members to attend for a fee of 1.00. The first home to visit is "The Oriental Home" of Mrs. Charles E. Hayes, Bon Aire Drive, Monroe; next "The Contemporary Home" of Mrs. Z. Haddad, 3601 Cypress St., West Monroe is next. Then "The Period Home" of Mrs. Clifton Mize, 118 Copely St., W.M will be visited. Last is "The Patio" of Mrs. W. Dan Clark, 1301 Parnell St., West Monroe.

Council Date Recalls Era Of The Past

By Jules Loh
Associated Press Writer

Pope John XXIII's selection of Oct. 11 as opening date for the Second Vatican Council "because it links us with the memory of the great Council of Ephesus," focuses attention on one of the world's most interesting holy places.

Many believe Ephesus, Turkey, was the home of both the Virgin Mary and the "beloved disciple" John during their last years on earth.

The Council of Ephesus, to which the Pope referred, was held there in the year 431 and defined the doctrine that Mary is the mother of God. Catholics celebrate the feast of the Divine Maternity of Mary on Oct. 11.

BELIEF

Most Catholic spokesmen feel the Pope selected Oct. 11 mainly because it was an appropriate feast day close to the time when preparations for the council will be complete. Prelates frequently use feast days to announce important church decisions, merely to add to their solemnity.

But, in light of the emphasis the Second Vatican Council is placing on religious unity, many feel that linking it with the Council of Ephesus was a happy, if incidental, turn of events.

For one thing, the Council of Ephesus was one of the few early Ecumenical Councils whose decisions are accepted by Orthodox and most Protestant bodies as well as Catholics.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

This week's Tailor Trix winner is Mrs. David L. DeWolfe, Falls Village, Conn., with this suggestion.

"After making a cotton print dress for my small school child, I nearly always have enough material left for a ruffle for a petticoat. It takes practically no extra time and what a pretty 'ensemble' this makes. I find your column a gold mine of good help, and your information has gotten me 'off the hook' so often."

BACK LINING

"Dear Mrs. Farmer:

"How do you line a one-piece skirt in the back only?"

Mrs. R. T.

Dear Mrs. R. T.:

This is one of the disadvantages of a skirt that is cut in one piece, by this we mean, without side seams. You must either line the skirt completely or not at all, since there are no side seams to attach a partial lining to. You must also be sure to measure the skirt at your hip line and then measure yourself, the skirt must be 2" larger than your own measurement. This is very important to do before cutting your skirt because a one-piece skirt cannot be let out or taken in after it has been cut.

SEAM PRESSING

"Dear Eunice:

"I put a hem in a satin sheath dress and used hem binding on the cut edge. When I pressed the hem with a steam iron on the wrong side of the skirt, there was a ridge showing on the right side. Is it the material, or do all materials make a ridge when pressed?"

Mrs. P. W.

Dear Mrs. P. W.:

After the hemline has been accurately marked on you, turn up the hem on this line and baste through both thicknesses of fabric, then press. After the hem has been pressed, lift the loose edge of fabric up and press under the hem, this will remove any ridge that has been pressed in. After the width of the hem has been cut evenly, apply hem tape, and loosely slip-stitch the edge of the hem tape to your garment. It is not necessary to press this hem again.

BUTTON BLOUSON

"Dear Eunice:

"The dress I am making has a blouson bodice with a zipper down the center back. The zipper has made the bodice back appear very stiff and I think it has ruined the soft appearance it should have had. Is it too late to do anything about it?"

Mrs. P. E. S.

Dear Mrs. P. E. S.:

In most blouson dresses, you will find that buttons are used for the closing instead of the zipper, in order to achieve that "soft" look. Since you have already cut your garment and must use a zipper, try putting it in by hand instead of machine. It will be much more flexible and you will have more of the blouson effect to your bodice.

BEGINNERS

"Dear Mrs. Farmer:

"We are a group of teen age girls who would like to know how to sew but aren't offered such a course in school. Couldn't you please make your column a little easier to understand for 'beginners'?"

Dear Teen-Agers:

I have tried to vary the questions used each week hoping that at least one question would be helpful to everyone. It's up to you to send me the questions, I'll do my best to answer them. I'm pleased as punch about the interest from girls your age. Having two teen-agers myself, we keep our sewing machine humming all the time.

If you want sewing help with the 20 most common problems, send your request with 25 cents and a self - addressed, stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of Monroe Morning World. Please send all questions and suggestions to Sew Simple in care of this newspaper.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

'Netted Iris' Bright Violet

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The brightest violet flower of late winter and early spring that we can grow in southern gardens is the small "netted iris" (Iris reticulata). This little iris grows wild in the mountains of that great land bridge, the Caucasus, which runs down from modern Russia to Persia and Turkey. Plants from the Caucasus, especially bulbs, have always been hard for gardeners to come by. Twenty years ago, those of us who wished to experiment with Caucasian bulbs had to get them from collectors of rare bulbs in Holland and England. We planted these foreigners with the greatest care in soils and situations that we hoped would be enough like their native conditions up in the Caucasian mountains so that they might grow for us in southern gardens.

BEST SUITED

Of all the tiny bulbous irises that were tried out from Persia, Turkey, Syria and the Caucasus, the netted iris seems to be the one best suited to southern gardens. It grows and multiplies here in southern gardens in the hills and mountains. Several years ago, the Dutch bulb nurseries began to offer the bulbs in their tulip and daffodil catalogues, and they are available each autumn even in the seed and bulb stores.

The experimental gardener is always thrilled when a plant from some other part of the world will grow and bloom, year after year. When, however, the new plant reseeds itself and begins to make a colony of its own kind, he knows for sure that it likes its new situation and is suitable for cultivation in parts of this country where the same conditions can be provided.

ESTABLISHED

The little netted iris has now established itself in a spot under some big pines where it is growing on a slight slope in a mixture of about one third each of very coarse gravel, leaf mold and ordinary clay garden soil. A liberal amount of bone meal was dug into the spot when the bulbs were planted 10 years ago, and more is added by simply sprinkling it over the area each year whenever I think of it.

Tiny flowers can be best appreciated where they are near a path and all to themselves, so the several forms of the netted iris were planted in a small section next to one - foot squares with about a dozen each of the hoop-petticoat daffodils, the miniature trumpet daffodil (narcissus asturiensis) from hot parts of Spain, the tiny cyclamen - flowered narcissus cyclameneus, some autumn crocuses and other miniatures. All of these have seeded themselves into each other's squares now, until they bid fair to form, in a few years, a mixed patch from the original bulbs. This is a real triumph because it means that we know now how to please these little plants from other countries in our own gardens.

Law Problems Discussed At D.A. Meeting

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Edward S. Silver, Kings County, N.Y., (Brooklyn) district attorney, urged Saturday a national conference on the administration and prosecution of criminal law in the United States.

Silver told a panel of the annual convention of the National District Attorneys association that little attention had been paid to the problems of criminal prosecutor.

Another speaker, J. St. Clair Favrot of Baton Rouge, called for organized lobbying by prosecutors for legislation they want. He urged creation of a full-time national executive secretary's post in Washington.

Sylvester C. Smith of Newark, N.J., president-elect of the group, was scheduled to deliver the final address of the three-day meeting at a banquet Saturday night.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Many Interesting Books In Library

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

The winter publishing season has released a flood of interesting new books and great numbers of them are being added to the book collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. Among the additions this week there are books for every type of reader. "Pride of the Moor" by Vian Smoth is a story which has been compared with "Lassie Come Home" and "National Velvet." This is an exciting story about the virtues of loyalty and integrity and has it's setting in the English farming country. Manley Wade Wellman who is best known for his stories written for young people, has a new adult novel, "Not at These Hands." It is a quiet perceptive novel about life in a small Southern town just before World War I. It's hero is George Cobbett, who leaves the plough to make his fortune in town. The events which happen to him are presented within an authentic background of the period, which will appeal to many readers. Probably the outstanding fiction book of the week is "Devil Water" by Anya Seton. Her locale is England and Scotland and the period is the early 18th Century. She brings in many historical characters and events, especially the two Jacobite uprisings. It is the story of the Radcliffe family and the many diverse characters of this family. While at times the pace of the story is blurred by the complexities of the issues which dominated these uneasy years, finally the lines come clear and the reader is caught up in the mood and vitality of the theme. "The Encounter" by Henri Troyat is a continuation of the story of "Tender and Violent Elizabeth." The time is France during the years of German occupation and liberation. The writing is smooth and it will appeal to all who enjoyed the former book.

Books of non - fiction offer a great variety of material. John D. Gerlitti and others have compiled a very fine book on the subject of "Nursing Home Administration." With the rapid increase of homes of this type, there is a definite need for such a book. Copies may be found at the main library and at the West Monroe Library. If you are engaged in this field, you will want to see this book. The Life Publishing company is putting out a series of lovely books called "The Life Nature Library." The latest in this series is "The Mountains." It is a beautiful book and one which is well worth reading. An anthology of patriotic poetry which should fill many needs has just been compiled by Robert Gordon Smith. The title is "One Nation Under God" and the selections are very fine.

So many people in this community go to Europe each year, that the Library is constantly buying new guide books. The latest one is edited by Eugene Fodor and the title is "Fodor's Jet Age Guide to Europe, 1962." This is a comprehensive handbook containing information on 34 countries. It includes 860 pages of text and many maps. Especially usefull will be the city maps of 43 different cities. Again let me urge all of you who are planning trips this spring or summer, to consult your public library and read before you travel. There is no substitute for this type of information. A book which will be especially useful to students in geography, both in high school and college is "Our Fifty States" by Earl Schenck Miers. This is a large book which contains information about each of the 50 states. Copies of this book are available at each of the libraries and from the Bookmobile.

A very useful new book in the reference field is "Barronos Guide to the Two Year College," edited by Seymour Eskow. This book contains a great deal of useful information for parents who want to send their child to one of the smaller schools for the first two years.

A fascinating little book, which will appeal to everyone of Scottish ancestry is "Tartans" by Christian Hesketh. It contains a great deal of information about the traditional tartans and how they should be worn. Books of biography offer a great variety of subject. Rudolf Caracciola has written his autobiography, which he calls "A Racing Car Driver's World." This will appeal to the racing enthusiast. There are many people who are eager to read anything about Louisiana. The latest addition to this group is "Louisiana Swamp Doctor," the diary of Henry Clay Lewis, edited by John Q. Anderson. Dr. Lewis lived in Tensas Parish about the middle of the last century and wrote and published many interesting accounts of life in the swamp country under the penname of Madison Tensas, M.D. This is a fascinating book and Dr. Anderson has done us a real service by collecting and editing it. "The King" by Charles Samuels is the third biography of Clark Gable to appear since his death and it is by far the best one. Mr. Samuels gives a good picture of this man and adds much material which has not been printed before. Probably the most popular period in English history is the Elizabethan one and although many books have been written about Elizabeth I, a new one still has a popular appeal. The latest one concerns her love for the Earl of Leicester and is called "Elizabeth and Leicester." The author is Elizabeth Jenkins and the book is well written. Students of the English drama will want to read "Betsy Sheridan's Journal," which consists of letters from the sister of the great Sheridan, written in the years 1784-1786. It presents a fascinating picture of London in the latter years of the 18th century.

EXTENSION NEWS

Give Plants Fertilizer

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

This is the month to fertilize plants in the landscape. Roses should be fertilized with a complete fertilizer as 8-8-8. Use about one - half cup per rose bush and be sure to distribute the fertilizer around the plant extending about a foot to 18 inches in every direction from the crown of the plant.

Do not allow fertilizer to touch the stems of the plants as it will burn. If you have not pruned your rose bushes, better get busy. Wait until after the climbers bloom to prune them. Better begin regular spraying to control mildew, black spot and aphids. If you need information on roses we still have some bulletins and you may have a copy by calling FA 3-2251.

FERTILIZE TREES

Now is an excellent time to fertilize trees. Apply one half pound of a complete fertilizer as 8-8-8 per year of age of the tree. In applying the fertilizer begin about one - third distance of spread of the tree in holes approximately four to six inches deep and 24 inches apart in circles. The area fertilized should extend about three feet beyond the spread of the branches.

If you, Mrs. New Home Owner, are planning a new plan here are some helpful tips: Keep areas simple with respect to design. Use plants in groups (except for specimen effect.) Plants spotted throughout the landscape gives a feeling of poor planning. Use plants that are in scale with the house. Large massive planting dwarf the appearance of the house. Whereas dwarf plants, in small numbers, tend to be insignificiant on large properties. Special attention should be given to the entrance, make it inviting. Plan for seasonal interest. Remember that plants grow. Allow for maximum height and spread. Pruning, if not handled correctly, will destroy the form of trees and shrubs. Plan your landscape to provide for maximum family enjoyment.

Completely new and different are the cotton knits being featured for spring and summer. "Double" is the word heard most often, meaning that two layers of fabric are knitted together. This gives a firmer more stable fabric than the single knit. In addition many double knits are chemically treated to help maintain their stability, or to make them spot and stain resistant or water repellent.

The double knits adapt perfectly to casual sportswear, such as shorts and jackets. They are equally adaptable, however, to the more sophisticated apparel, street and dressy dresses. Double knits are especially good travelers since they are wrinkle free. Not all of the double knit cottons are going into ready to wear. Some are available by piece goods and come in 60 to 66 inch widths.

If the double knit garment is machine washable, it should not be subjected to high wash temperatures and harsh agitation. Overdrying and prolonged tumbling should be avoided. For garments which need to be hand laundered, use a mild detergent and squeeze the suds through the garment. Rinse thoroughly. Roll the garment in a terry bath towel to remove as much water as possible, then place it on a flat surface to dry.

NON-FRAY COLLARS

The day of the "turned" shirt is fast disappearing. The U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists have found a way to make long long lasting collars and cuffs for men's cotton wash - wear shirts. An interliner of wash and wear fabric is bounded to outer layers of untreated cotton cloth. Together, these give shirt collars and cuffs the wash wear qualities of the interliner and the high resistance to fraying and abrasion of untreated cotton.

Laboratory samples made with the treated interliner were somewhat stiffer than the usual soft collars and cuffs of wash - wear shirts, but they were less stiff than acceptable starched collars and cuffs. The wash wear qualities of the interlined sample were excellent.

WEIGHT CONTROL

The council of foods and nutrition of the American Medical Association has become concerned over the 900 calorie diets for reducing. Although the council admits that the low calorie formula diet may be taken for a short period of time by those not grossly overweight it is not a rational approach to the problem of weight control. The diet must be adequate in all nutrients but calories and should be based as much as possible on the previous diet of the overweight person. A diet high in protein, moderate in fat, and low in carbohydrate, including one pint of whole milk per day has been most successful for a great number of patients. A diet providing about 1,400 calories is palatable and results in less between meal hunger than one lower in protein or extremely reduced in calories.

Stamp News

When Lt. Col. John Glenn completed his globe - circling mission, he did not realize that he was also responsible for recording U.S. stamp history.

The U.S. Post Office Dartment, acting under wraps, prepared a new commemorative stamp honoring the first orbital flight of a U.S. astronaut and arranged for the sale of such stamps the exact hour the flight was officially completed.

It was the first time that a previously unannounced commemorative stamp was issued simultaneously with the event it honored.

This new stamp depicts a capsule in space with a portion of the earth in the lower left corner of the design. The wording "4c U.S. MAN IN SPACE" is superimposed over the globe and "PROJECT MERCURY" is across the bottom.

Although there was no wording signifying "U.S. POSTAGE" this was NOT the first time a U.S. stamp appeared without such designation. According to the Scott U.S. American Stamp Catalog, the Pilgrim Tercentenary issue of 1920 was released WITHOUT the words U.S. Postage. In this set there were three stamps — a 1 cent green showing the Mayflower, 2 cent rose red depicting the landing of the Pilgrims and a 5 cent dark blue illustrating the signing of the Compact.

The 4 cent Project Mercury stamp was distributed well in advance to more than 300 large postal installations where the adhesives were held intact until the flight was successfully completed When Col. Glenn's mission was over, the post offices were notified to remove the wrappers from the stamps and place them on sale. None of the postmasters knew what the package contained until the word was given from Washington.

For those collectors desiring first day covers, however, provisions have een ade to abtain envelopes bearing the new stamp with the cancellation "CAPE CANAVERAL, FLORIDA, 3:30 P.M., FEB. 20, 1962" and the wording "FIRST DAY OF ISSUE."

Just write to the Philatelic Sales Agency, Post Office Department, Washington 25, D.C. immediately and the cost will be 1 cent above the face value of the stamps involved. Outer envelopes should be endorsed "4c Project Mercury Covers."

Mail orders for first day covers should NOT be send to Cape Canaveral or Cocoa Beach, Fla.,

Liberia has announced the issuance of bi-colored set of two stamps honoring the late secretary general of the United Nations, Dag Hammarskjold. The design is the same for both values showing a photo portrait of Hammarskjold, the U.N. emblem, and the inscription "In Memoriam." The values are 20 cents blue and black for regular postage, and 25 cents purple and black airmail. A miniature sheet bearing a 50 cent airmail stamp of the same design in blue and black was prepared for release on the same date.

Foreign Travel Spending Same For Past Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first year since World War II, Americans in 1961 did not increase their spending for foreign travel.

Last year's total, estimated Saturday by the Commerce Department, was $2.6[illegible] billion. This was the same as in 1960, a record year.

Travel outlays in Europe dropped by 9 per cent in 1961, from $666 milli[illegible] to $[illegible] billion.

A major factor was a decline in average spending per traveler, probably related to shorter visits in Europe. More tourists went to Europe by air in 1961 and these tended to spend less time there.

Canada again received the greatest share of the U.S. travel dollar, $412 million compared with $380 million in 1960.

Travelers to Mexico increased their spending by $5 million to $370 million. Outlays in the rest of Latin America dropped by $10 million to $72 million because of the ending of tourist travel to Cuba.

Foreigners who visted the United States spent $962 million, a decrease of $6 million. Europeans spent more here, as did Mexicans, but outlays by Canadians declined about $18 million to $450 million.

Of the total amount spent on foreign travel by American residents, $897 million went for transportation. Foreign carriers received more than half the fare revenues.

NEW COLOR MAGIC — Here's the P-100, an automatic machine which delivers a finished color print from a color negative in three minutes. The machine's built-in brain computes color balance and exposure. The operator needs no darkroom or technical skill.

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

A remarkable development in automatic, simplified, quick color printing from color negatives is announced by the Pavelle Corp., of Rockefeller Center, New York City. It permits amateur photographers to make slightly enlarged color prints at home without a darkroom with pushbutton ease. The process takes three minutes and requires no technical skill.

I watched a demonstration of the process at the firm's White Plains, N.Y., rearch lab just prior to its recent public unveiling at the photo trade show in Chicago. I brought my own color negatives and made my own color prints with a few moments' instruction.

The complete process, except for washing and drying, takes place in a plastic machine which resembles a slide projector. The machine's full name is the P-100 Automatic Daylight Color Printer-Processor. It has a front (processing) and rear (light source) compartment and a set of dials (computation) along the side.

The color negative fits in a negative holder in the rear compartment. The processing tray slides into the front compartment. There are two sections for only two chemical solutions: a color developer and a bleach - fix. A roll of special colorprinting material is also in the front compartment.

The P-100 is plugged into an electric outlet to start the machine working. Its brain is a miniature analog computer which analyzes a color negative and determines its color balance and exposure in a matter of seconds. This is done by turning three dials, one at a time, until a pointer on each dial is brought to a center point. Two of the dials select the proper color filter combinations and a third dial electronically gauges the proper exposure.

The selected exposure is timed while pressing a knob which turns on the enlarger lamp in the rear compartment — a standard photoflood. This exposes a fixed focus enlargement on the special print material in the front compartment. Pressing another knob, in front, slices off the exposed print and starts it on its automatic route through the two processing solutions. At the end of three minutes the completed color print emerges through a groove in the front. It must be thoroughly washed (up to eight minutes,) then dried.

After seeing the print, photographers can deliberately change the color balance or make color corrections to suit their own taste or creative urge by shifting the pointers on the color filter knobs.

The P-100 handles roll film color negatives from 35mm to 2¼" x 2¼". Color prints range from wallet size (2½" x 3½") to 3½ inches square. One roll of print material produces 42 wallet size prints or 30 square ones. The color coupler emulsion is coated on a waterproof acetate base. The print material is spooled with a paper leader to provide daylight loading in the machine — like loading film in a camera.

The Pavelle process is a simplification and speeding up of present color chemistry. Standard color processing today may require 40 minutes at 75 degrees using five chemical solutions and four water washes. Pavelle scientists in England developed new nondiffusing color couplers and high speed sensitizers so that the process requires only two solutions and a single wash with the processing cycle down to three minutes.

At present only handmade prototypes exist, but with favorable trade acceptance, it is hoped the machines will be available for the public for the Christmas season. Price: between $150 and $200 each. As for color quality, the prints I made with the Pavelle process were not as good as standard Kodacolor prints made with the same negatives. They were a bit yellowish, a little less sharp and less color brilliant. I was told the prints needed more washing and the machine required more critical lens adjustment to correct these faults.

POPULATION BOOM

NEW YORK (UPI) — Population of the United States is expected to grow by 33 million people in the next decade, according to Allied Chemical Corp.

The company said this is like adding a city the size of Toledo, Ohio, or Rochester, N. Y., "every two months."

JFK Accepts U.N. Bonds Buying Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy is going along with a modified version of his U.N. bond purchase plan in the hope of defeating a coalition alternative for stopgap aid to the United Nations.

The President's decision was described by one administration official as a reluctant one, designed to salvage as much as possible of his original proposal. He asked that the United States subscribe to half of a $200-million issue of 25-year, 2-per-cent bonds to finance emergency U.N. operations in the Congo and Middle East.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has voted to permit the unrestricted purchase of $25 million in such bonds. But it limited additional U.S. buying to amounts equal to what other U.N. members buy, up to an over-all $100-million total.

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said in an interview the Senate may be able to take up the committee-approved proposal late next week. In the House, where some members have had sharp criticism of U.N. policies, the Foreign Affairs Committee has yet to schedule hearings on the matter.

Mansfield said he expects the issue to be discussed at Tuesday's regular meeting of Democratic congressional leaders with the President.

"I thing the measure the committee reported out will be acceptable to the administration," he said, "I believe we can live with it."

Republican leaders have signaled their intention of offering in the Senate an alternative proposal, which was defeated by an 8-7 vote in the committee. Under it, the United States would lend the U.N. $100 million for two years at interest rates this government pays when it borrows.

With the controversy over the bond proposal still boiling, the White House said Kennedy will send his foreign aid message to Congress Tuesday or Wednesday.

Mansfield declined to forecast the form this program will take, but he said he is sure that Congress is going to want to make certain other free world nations take on a greater share of the aid burden than they have in the past.

Negroes Booked In Two Thefts By City Police

Two Negroes have been booked for theft in separate incidents by Monroe police.

Chief James C. Kelly identified them as Eugene Robinson, 19, of 1003½ Nicks Alley, and Willie Mack, Jr., 52 of Bruscato's Alley, both of Monroe.

With Mack's arrest, 28 cartons of assorted brands of cigarettes were recovered by the police. He was observed around 11:45 p.m. Friday walking from behind the Delta Music Shop at 807 DeSiard St., carrying something wrapped in his raincoat.

The officer took him into custody and in searching him, found eight cartons of cigarettes in the raincoat, allegedly taken from the music company where Mack is employed.

He was booked for theft, disturbing the peace by public drunkenness and carrying a concealed weapon and held under a $500 bond. Further questioning Saturday morning revealed the other 20 cartons of cigarettes were stored in his home.

Robinson was apprehended at 9:20 a.m. Saturday and booked with the theft of a six-transistor radio valued at $35 which was taken sometime Friday from Jerry Grayson at 110 South Second St.

Robinson was held under a $300 bond and both he and Mack will be tried in municipal court.

TOOTSIE LOCKED HERSELF IN HER ROOM AND WON'T SPEAK TO ME
YOU MUST'VE DONE SOME-THING WRONG, HERB
YOU CAN GET IN HER GOOD GRACES AGAIN BY BUYING HER SOME NICE PRESENTS
SURE--WIVES LOVE GIFTS-- WE'LL HELP YOU PICK THEM OUT
JEWEL
GIVE ME THAT NECKLACE AND THAT WATCH AND THOSE EARRINGS
AND GET HER THAT BRACELET WRAP THEM REAL PRETTY
NOW KNOCK ON HER DOOR AND PRESENT THEM TO HER ONE AT A TIME, AND SOON SHE'LL GIVE IN WISH ME GOOD LUCK
UNLOCK THE DOOR, MY TURTLEDOVE-- I BOUGHT SOME LOVELY PERFUME FOR YOU
SHE JUST OPENED THE DOOR A FEW INCHES, TOOK THE PERFUME AND LOCKED THE DOOR AGAIN
KEEP HANDING THEM TO HER AND MAKE A PRETTY SPEECH AFTER EACH GIFT
MY DARLING--ACCEPT THIS STRING OF PEARLS TO GRACE YOUR SWAN-LIKE NECK
AND TO FURTHER PROVE MY UNDYING LOVE, HERE IS A SILK SCARF AND A NEW WRIST WATCH
SHE TOOK ALL THE PRESENTS AND LOCKED HER DOOR AGAIN AND NEVER EVEN SAID THANK YOU
THAT'S STRANGE-- COME DOWN, HERB, AND WE'LL CONSULT SOME MORE
HELLO EVERYBODY-- WHAT'S GOING ON ?
WHY, HERE'S TOOTSIE
SHE DIDN'T LOCK HERSELF IN HER ROOM-- SHE'S NOT MAD
WHO DID I PRESENT ALL THE GIFTS TO ?
A BURGLAR

BOY! BIG ONES.
YES, TOO BIG TO BE HUMAN.
IT'S PRETTY OBVIOUS, DOC, YOUR MONEY WAS TAKEN BY THE CHIMP.
DID THE CHIMP'S TRAINER LEAVE AN ADDRESS?
NO--I TOLD HIM TO BRING THE ANIMAL BACK IN A WEEK FOR AN EXAMINATION
MEANWHILE, AT THE BRUSH'S HEADQUARTERS--
WAKE UP, SMYTHE-- PLEASE WAKE UP.
BRUSH, THE CHIMP IS TAKING THE CAST OFF HIS HAND!
WELL, PUT IT BACK ON. I'VE GOT TROUBLES OF MY OWN.
JO-JO, STOP IT.
YOUR HAND WILL NEVER GET WELL --WITHOUT THE CAST.

WE'LL START OUR LITTLE STUDY COURSE WITH ART, PATTI!.. FORTUNATELY, MRS. COATES HAS PRINTS OF SOME GREAT PAINTINGS HERE ON HER WALLS!
CONRAD PICKED THEM OUT, MRS. WORTH!.. HE SAID, "BETTER A GOOD REPRODUCTION THAN A BAD ORIGINAL"!
FIRST, LET'S TAKE UP COMPOSITION!
YOU MEAN... LIKE WRITING STUFF?... IN SCHOOL?
COMPOSITION IS SIMPLY THE WAY THE ARTIST PLANNED HIS PICTURE..TO MAKE IT BALANCE.. AND TO LEAD YOUR EYE TO THE CENTER OF INTEREST!
SOMETIMES "X MARKS THE SPOT"!
SEE HOW BOTTICELLI ARRANGED THE FIGURES AND BUILDING LINES TO DRAW OUR EYES TO THE MOTHER AND CHILD?
THE "X" ISN'T AS CLEAR IN THIS RENOIR... BUT IT'S THERE!
YEAH! I SEE IT!..IN THIS ONE THE LINES GO RIGHT THROUGH THE KID'S HEAD!
THERE ARE OTHER THINGS TO WATCH FOR..LIGHT, COLOR, UNITY!
HEY! LOOK! KITTEN HAS MADE AN "X"!
GEE! MAYBE SHE'S GOT TALENT?... WHAT A PITY HER FATHER'S NOT AROUND.. TO... MAKE SOMETHING OF IT!

I'M SORRY, EVERYONE — I JUST CAN'T CONCENTRATE WITH THIS COLD. WE'LL START AGAIN BRIGHT AND EARLY IN THE MORNING.
SURE, CRISPIN. IF YOU'RE NOT FEELING BETTER TOMORROW, I'LL TAKE IT FOR YOU.

I UNDERSTAND, DEAR. YOU WERE JEALOUS.
OH? IS THAT WHAT YOU CONCLUDED?
OF COURSE! YOU MUSTN'T FEEL GUILTY ABOUT IT, DEAR. YOU'D BE UNREALISTIC NOT TO WORRY ABOUT YOUR HUSBAND BEING IN DAILY CONTACT WITH ME...
...I HAVE ENORMOUS WEALTH AND POWER, I CAN DO ANYTHING A MAN CAN DO, I'M RUTHLESS, AND TO CAP IT ALL; I HAVE A BEAUTIFUL FACE AND FIGURE!
UNLESS YOU'RE LEADING UP TO SOMETHING, LEAVE A CATALOGUE OF YOUR ASSETS AND I'LL LOOK IT OVER LATER.
